Lake Superior Ore Carrier Is Presumed Sunk

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — An oil slick, two empty lifeboats and debris were spotted today on Lake Superior near where the ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald was believed sunk in a storm with 29 crewmen aboard, the Coast Guard said. Oglebay-Norton Co., owner of the 17-year-old freighter, identified the Fitzgerald's captain as E.R. McSorley of Toledo, Ohio, and said 28 others, including a cadet sailor, were aboard.

Waves in the area today diminished to four to seven feet after mounting to as high as 25 feet Monday night in winds gusting to 75 miles per hour. The water temperature was 51 degrees. A spokesman for the Coast Guard regional headquarters in Cleveland, Lt. Dan Shotwell, said there was "a remote possibility" that the Fitzgerald could be anchored somewhere and unable to use its radio. "It sure looks like she sank," he said.

The Fitzgerald was last heard from about 7:10 p.m. Monday when it said it was taking on water but had turned on working pumps. The Fitzgerald was last reported near the U.S.-Canadian boundary about 65 miles northwest of here. The lifejackets and debris were spotted about 5 a.m. by searchers on the Anderson about 13 miles north of Whitefish Point, 45 miles northwest of the Soo in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. A flare was seen about 1 a.m. some 16 miles northeast of the last known location of the Fitzgerald, according to Coast Guard officials here. However, the flare could have been dropped by searching aircraft planes to illuminate the area, sources said.

The Anderson heard the Fitzgerald radio she was taking on water Monday night and followed the Fitzgerald for about 10 miles, keeping the vessel in sight, Coast Guard officials said. The Anderson, a U.S. Steel fleet vessel, also tracked the Fitzgerald on its radar scope, the Coast Guard said. Two other freighters, the 858-foot Roger Blough and the 678-foot Wilfred Sykes were expected on the scene about dawn. The William Clay Ford also was on the scene. No distress call was reported from the Fitzgerald. It told the Anderson it was out in danger as its pumps were working, officials said. Then, with seas cresting, the Fitzgerald disappeared from the Anderson's radar screen (See back page, sec. 1, col. 1)

Retaliation For Anti-Zionism Vote U.S. Ponders Aid Slash To U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly's adoption of a resolution declaring Zionism a form of racism and racial discrimination raised the threat today of U.S. financial retaliation against the United Nations and the supporters of the resolution. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., suggested withholding American aid from nations that voted for the resolution Monday. President Ford's plans to ask Congress for $848 million for Egypt, one of the Arab sponsors of the resolution, appeared a likely target. Another candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, said the assembly vote may result in a "full reappraisal of the United States' participation and its role in funding the U.N." Sen. Clifford Case, D-N.J., said the assembly action was "an irresponsible action and a victory for no one." Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the vote compromised the principles on which the United Nations was founded.

The vote on the resolution, which Cuba joined the Arabs in sponsoring, was 72 to 35 with 32 abstentions and three nations absent. The declaration has no binding force, but the United States and other critics warned that it could provide some countries a legal excuse for reviving anti-Semitism. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who never comments on assembly votes, took the unusual step of declaring that the passions aroused by the Zionism issue brought the United Nations to "a critical situation" that could be resolved only through urgent settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute. Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog said Israel regards the declaration as "no more than a piece of paper." The issue is not Israel or Zionism, he said, but "the continued existence of this organization which has been dragged to the lowest point of discredit." U.S. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan told the assembly it was guilty of an "infamous act." Zionism is the movement for a Jewish national homeland in Palestine, realized with the creation of Israel and propagated today as the guiding philosophy of the Jewish state and its supporters. Faysel Al Sayegh of Iraq told the assembly that the target of the resolution was a political ideology based on exclusivity and discrimination against non-Jews. Riaz Oureshi of Pakistan declared that Zionism was responsible for the expulsion of Palestinians from their homes and their continued dispersion and exile. "The resolution was opposed by the nine nations of the European Common Market, all the other Scandinavian countries and about half of the members of the British Commonwealth. Its supporters included the Communist countries except Romania, which was absent, most Asian nations and Cyprus, Portugal, Turkey, Guyana and Mexico. Most Latin-American governments voted against the resolution or abstained.

The issue split the normally solid African group, with 10 abstaining, five opposing and the rest supporting the declaration. The Africans were anxious about the future of the U.N. Decade Against Racial Discrimination to which the anti-Zionist declaration became linked. Sweden announced it would no longer help finance that program. Several Western countries, including the United States, voted against other resolutions implementing the Decade program and authorizing a conference against racism to be held in Ghana. These resolutions were adopted 115 to 18, with seven abstentions, and 116 to 18, with seven abstentions. The General Assembly in a late morning vote Monday called for the participation of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) "in all efforts, deliberations and conferences on the Middle East" held under the United Nations auspices. The vote was 101 to 8 with 25 abstentions. The United States, Israel, Britain, West Germany, the

Quinlan Father Ponders Appeal To Higher Court

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — One legal battle has been lost, but Joseph Quinlan is thinking today about taking to a higher court his fight to let his daughter, Karen Anne, "pass into the hands of the Lord." Karen, 21, slipped into a coma April 15 and has been sustained in a "persistent vegetative state" by a respirator ever since. On Monday a state judge ruled that the respirator must not be disconnected. Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. said in his decision, "There is no constitutional right to die that can be asserted by a parent for his incompetent adult child." Muir said the court is empowered to protect Karen's interests and decided "the determination whether or not Karen Anne Quinlan be removed from the respirator is to be left to the treating physician. It is a medical decision, not a judicial one." Karen's physicians opposed the family's request to unplug the respirator. "Numb" and "surprised" were words used by Quinlan to describe his reaction to the judge's decision. "We know what she would say if she were here right now," he said. "She'd say, 'Let's end all this. It's time for me to go home now to my Heavenly Father.'"

Quinlan said he was still weighing whether to appeal the decision to higher courts and had to consider his other two children. Julia Quinlan, Karen's mother, said the legal proceedings were "something we felt we must do morally. We had already done everything medically and spiritually. So we had to take it to the courts." "We'll still have the heartache and the anxiety," she said after Monday's ruling. The Quinlans filed a petition in Judge Muir's court in September asking that Quinlan be appointed Karen's guardian and seeking the court's sanction for ordering her respirator disconnected.

In a 44-page decision, the judge said that Quinlan's attorney, Paul W. Armstrong, failed to prove that the court should order Dr. Robert Morse, Miss Quinlan's treating physician, to shut off the respirator. "There is a duty to continue the life sustaining apparatus, if within the treating physician's opinion it should be done. Here Dr. Morse has refused to concur in the removal of Karen from the respirator," the judge said. Armstrong had claimed there were constitutional grounds for granting the Quinlans' petition. Karen's constitutional rights to privacy and self-determination must be weighed against the state's rights to protect life, Muir said, noting that Armstrong conceded Miss Quinlan "is by legal and medical definition alive." Muir disagreed with the argument that Karen has no hope of recovery. "None of the doctors testified there was no hope," he said. The cause of Miss Quinlan's (See back page, sec. 1, col. 7)

Worst Storm Struck In 1913

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
It was Nov. 9, 1913, when the Great Lakes suffered their greatest disaster. The disappearance Monday of the 729-foot Edmund Fitzgerald in the storm-tossed waters of Lake Superior recalled the 1913 tragedy when two massive storms collided, swirling into blinding snow driven by winds of up to 80 miles an hour and swept over the five inland seas. The astounding toll added up to 12 ships sunk, seven lost without a trace, and a loss of some 240 lives. Estimated financial loss was $3 million. In addition, 16 ships were driven aground, seven of them destroyed. In all, 71 ships were damaged or sunk. Seven of the lost ships were large carriers more than 400 feet long and grossing about 9,000 tons. The Charles S. Price went down with 30 men, the H.B. Smith with another 30, the Carruthers sank with 28, the L.M. Smith and J.A. McGean vanished with 26 men each, the Argus, the Hydrex, the Regina, the Westford with 20 men each. The Leaffield and the Lafayette also went down. Communications, poor in those days, hampered rescue operations. Ships were sinking just offshore, but no one knew what was happening. No one tried to launch any rescue operation. The tragedy didn't begin to unfold until bodies began to wash up onto the snow-covered shores. Soon relatives and friends of sailing men crowded into the coast towns by the hundreds to identify the bodies, five of which never were identified. The Sheddle, a 50-foot tug was one of the luckier vessels. It was caught for hours in the raging sea but managed to ride out the storm. The ship's master, Capt. S.A. Lyons, described what happened. A gigantic sea poured into the stern of the Sheddle, flooding it and sending walls of water gushing through the passageways on each side of the cabin. It crashed in the cabin walls and washed provisions out of the refrigerator room. Lyons ordered the men to cling to a life rail. A wheelman was ripped loose but was saved from going overboard when his foot caught in a bulwark brace. Fearing the vessel would go aground, Lyons ordered it turned away from the coast, and it limped into port later. Others were not so lucky. The Carruthers had been just ahead of the Sheddle and the Hydrex just behind. Both sank in Lake Huron, along with six others. A week after the storm, an undated message was found in a bottle five miles from Pentwater. It was from Chris Keenan, U.S. Marshal in custody of a barge which had been abandoned in distress. "Dear Wife and Children," it read. "We were left up here in Lake Michigan by McKinnon, captain of the James H. Martin, tug, at anchor. He went away and never said goodbye or anything to us. Last one man yesterday. We have been out in storm 40 hours. Goodbye, dear ones, I might see you in Heaven. Pray for me."

BENTON TOWNSHIP Police, Firemen Save Three Lives

Two Benton township firemen and a police officer this morning were credited with saving the lives of a mother and her two young daughters trapped in a house when fire broke out about 9 a.m. Rescued from a bedroom in the burning house at 340 Walnut street were Olivia Bailey, 26, and her daughters, Kalorine, 8 months, and Yolanda, 4 years, according to township Fire Chief Kenneth Kraiger. All three were still being treated this morning at Benton Harbor Mercy hospital. Kraiger cited the prompt actions of fire Lt. William Klemm, fireman David Mayberry and patrolman Jimmie Coburn, who broke a window at the home and pulled the mother and girls to safety. Kraiger said the three were pounding on a window when police and firemen arrived and were unable to get out. The chief said the fire, of unknown origin, was principally confined to another bedroom near the one in which the trio was trapped. Kraiger said fire officials are continuing the investigation into the cause of the blaze, which was mostly confined to the interior of the house.

Worst Storm Struck In 1913

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
It was Nov. 9, 1913, when the Great Lakes suffered their greatest disaster. Bicentennial Souvenirs

"BUYCENTENNIAL," the cynics mutter, as merchandise commemorating the 200th anniversary of American independence continues to flood the market. Even the New Jersey State Lottery has gotten into the act. Starting next Monday the Garden State will offer "1776 Instant Lottery" at $1 per ticket. The grand prize, which will be drawn for every 16 million tickets sold, is $1,776 a week for life.

The lucky winner could easily squander his earnings, if he so desired, on bicentennial souvenirs. How about a model of the Mayflower in silver? Shreve, Crump & Low, the Boston jeweler, offered one for $30,000. The U.S. Bicentennial Society of Richmond, Va., a private concern, despite its official-sounding name, is selling $2,500-per-pair replicas of George Washington's flintlock pistols and $1,295 reproductions of the chair John Hancock sat in when he signed the Declaration of Independence.

So much for the carriage trade. Most bicentennial mementos are moderately priced, and some of them are free. There are T-shirts, belt buckles, ice buckets, tricorn hats, alarm clocks and assorted knickknacks. Giveaways include ballpoint pens and shopping bags. A Michigan firm has come up with a red white and blue garbage bag with a Liberty Bell printed on one side.

Merchandising the Spirit of '76 is nothing new. Souvenirs and advertising giveaways were common a century ago, when the nation celebrated its 100th anniversary with an exposition at Philadelphia. Companies gave away such items as bars of soap and tiny tin buckets of lard manufactured for the occasion. Pattern glass tumblers bearing patriotic mottoes were sold, as were George Washington bookmarks and coffee cups, and George and Martha belt buckles.

These and other centennial souvenirs are now collector's items whose value has increased over the years, but not as much as one might think. One antique catalogue puts the price of a George Washington centennial coffee mug at $40. An empty tin sample of Naphy's Leaf Lard, stamped with the dates 1776 and 1876, sells for $18. A wooden napkin ring originally brought at the Philadelphia exposition recently was purchased for $8 at an auction in Northern Virginia.

Despite the precedent of 1876, some people profess to be appalled by the merchandising aspects of the bicentennial. "Red, white and blue lawn chairs are just another means of commercialism," said Edward McColgan, executive director of the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission. "Red, white and blue chairs are totally irrelevant to 1976, and I doubt that the Founding Fathers would have considered them relevant."

Others object to the use of bicentennial themes in advertising copy. Commenting on a newspaper ad by Mobil Oil that featured Revolutionary patriot Samuel Adams, advertising executive Jerry Della Femina said that "it would have been valid for Mobil to use Sam Adams if Adams has used Mobil gas to drive his horse."

It can be argued that a high toned bicentennial celebration entirely lacking in hoopla and kitschy souvenirs would not be only boring but a false reflection of the American spirit. As an English writer, Frances Trollope, said of Americans in 1832, "Nothing can exceed their activity and perseverance in all kinds of speculation, handicraft and enterprise, which promises a profitable pecuniary result."

Step Forward, Step Back For Rail Transportation

Through the weekend the railroad industry went through a financial wall.

Conrail, the federally chartered though as yet inadequately funded corporation to take over the Penn Central and six other bankrupt eastern rail lines, became operable.

Despite a barrage of local criticism against lopping off pieces of trackage which no longer serve a useful purpose, Congress accepted Conrail's proposed operational manual.

The next step is for Washington to appropriate an as yet undetermined amount of billions to buy the seven properties. This likely will be a prolonged, litigious struggle because the owners and creditors of the seven companies hold widely divergent views as to the value of the tracks, rolling stock and buildings, much of which is in great disrepair.

This difficult task to the contrary, at the very least there is now the promise that a vitally needed service can continue to function.

Seventy-two hours before Conrail took over as a going concern, a federal district court in New York City granted a petition by the Railway Express Agency, REA express, Inc., to be exact, to go into complete bankruptcy and ordered its liquidation.

REA had been operating under Chapter XI, that section in the bankruptcy statutes which enables the debtor to continue in possession of its assets for the hopeful purpose of paying off the creditors without having to take a blood bath.

The same court had approved Chapter XI proceedings last February.

For a while it appeared the REA might emerge from the woods until three reverses came along. The recession reduced freight shipments. A three-week wildcat strike in June funneled traffic to other shipping services. The Civil Aeronautics Board later on ordered REA to cease operating its 47-year-old air express service.

In a matter of days REA will complete distributing freight on hand and another 8,000 people will be looking for different work.

It was keyed as a fast freight service to the rail passenger carriers. For reasons never made clear, neither past management in REA nor Congress moved to free it from its limited delivery beyond its terminals. Consignees within the city limits where a terminal was located could obtain their freight from REA trucks. Those outside the incorporated limits had to send their trucks to the terminals.

The shift of business and industry into the countryside and the growth of competing door to door trucking service dug a hole for REA from which it never could climb out.

It is another unnecessary example of government regulators and, sad to say, quiescent management combining to sink a business which never should have been allowed to go under.

Young Couples Still Want Own Land

By JOHN CUNIFF
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —

The savings and loan people, who like to remind you how much they've done to finance the houses of America, feel they need some understanding and perhaps some aid.

They are deeply concerned, for example, that the typical American family no longer can afford to purchase the typical new single-family home. They are worried about the deep social implications of this.

More to the point, they are concerned about the decisions this thrusts upon them. Their business is lending money to finance home ownership, but their first responsibility is to protect their customers' savings.

Builders, however, seem unable to bring housing costs down. Attempts to do so have been frustrated by rising prices of land, labor and materials, and often by old-fashioned, restrictive building codes.

But there's another complicating factor: the American dream of a single-family home on its own green quarter-acre lives on.

More than one financial institution was convinced it could change this aspiration, and failed.

That is, they tried to move young families into modern town house-style dwellings, but the young moderns interpreted modern to mean less.

"They observed that town houses were connected, that they shared 'party walls' and that above all, they were not distinctly separate houses on their own grassy plots."

The head of one savings and loan association relates how his company still owns a town house development in which it managed to reduce the price of a two-bedroom unit to about $20,000. There was little demand. It now rents, instead.

"Young couples still want the old-fashioned, single-family unit on its own plot," said the frustrated president of the association, which is situated in the Pacific Northwest. "They want what mom and dad had," he said.

Something has to give, he indicated, and you get the feeling that many other housing and finance people share that belief.

WANTS DETENTE WITH NEW YORK CITY

Editor,
It's too bad New York city got into such a mess. Must be because of unintelligent city officials, poor management of monetary affairs, shortsightedness that should point morally to all local governments everywhere. New York's crisis was brought abruptly by the combined impact of inflation and recession which increased the costs of city government while tax revenue fell. Basically they had been spending too much for years, postponing payments by escalating borrowing. A situation that had been screened from the public. Nearly one out of every eight of the city's population is on welfare. The city's University professors are the highest paid in the country. A great majority of nearly 270,000 students pay no tuition. The unions whose strength grew steadily in the 1960's, today bargain for 90 per cent of city employees helping to account for the surge in labor costs.

Former Mayor, John Lindsay, wanted to be in harmony with unions so gave in to excessive demands. Mayor Abraham Beame went to Washington to plead for federal assistance and was rejected. A mayor from our own country pleaded for his city of New York which went into a terrible slump. Did Russia and other foreign nations have to come to Washington pleading for the billions and billions of dollars? Besides all the other help they received from the United States, our men were sent to Russia to help build industries. And about these latest grain and oil deals with Russia it is well known Russians cannot be trusted. Since they have the grain deal settled with the United States first now how are we sure we're going to get an honorable oil deal from Russia. Is that what detente means, the Soviet Union comes first in everything?

About New York city, it is degraded enough so please don't let it go down the drain.

Ray Cromley Second Guessing Domestic Terror

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Terrorist bombs killed 20 and injured 122 in the United States in the year ending April 30. That compares with three dead and 51 wounded in the previous 12 months.

Some of the more prominent terrorist groups seem extremely well funded, supplied with able attorneys.

Neither President Ford's men nor local police know what to do. Most suggested solutions would expand police intelligence, and powers and compromise personal freedoms to a degree most Americans would not be willing to accept. And might, in any event, be counterproductive.

In President Ford's attempts at finding an answer, some knowledge of U.S. terrorists has emerged.

Contrary to prevalent opinion, Pentagon studies show the ideological terrorist to be an intelligent young man or woman, very often attractive and conventional looking. With few exceptions, he or she is middle class with some university training, reasonably affluent and with no history of material or cultural deprivation. The prominence of women in the movements and in leadership posts is striking.

Most began their political activism between age 17 and 20. The average today is in his or her mid-30s.

Typically, they have a deeply emotional, sometimes suicidal, sense of commitment. A great deal of their motivation seems to be psychological rather than political.

Though some seem to have rejected the values of their parents, and are in revolt, more frequently they "appear to have simply extended into violent action the socially critical attitudes of their parents."

Worldwide, few terrorists have total disregard for their own lives. Many daring acts of hostage-taking appear to be based on a fair calculation of getting away.

Though there have been suicide attacks, such as that on Israel's Lod Airport in 1972, bombing buildings at night is relatively safe if the target is poorly guarded.

Terrorism tends to escalate under its own momentum. The movements tend to disintegrate in the absence of action; maintenance of discipline becomes difficult.

Because they find it difficult to compromise, and tend to fragment in disagreement when compromise is attempted, terrorists typically and deliberately avoid saying too much about what they would propose to substitute for the existing system. There is, in fact, usually a lack of plan — because a plan entails compromises which could break up the movement. It is easier to take the offensive.

These internal weaknesses may offer a promising line of attack.

There's a possibility, for example, terrorist groups will win their own destruction, as witness the Tupamaros, extremely effective in Uruguay a few years back. The movement became too large, making discipline, control and security difficult. Fringe elements, lacking the dedication of the original group, joined the organization, facilitating government penetration.

Jeffrey Horn Causes For Party Upheaval

In a recent column, I described the upheaval that appears about to take place in our two major parties. I would like to discuss its major cause.

The upheaval in the Democratic Party reflects the emergence in American society of a "new class" possessing a distinctive, indeed a novel, ideology. The stresses within the Republican Party reflect an argument about how to respond to the fissure within the Democrats.

The Yugoslav writer Milovan Djilas once published a book entitled "The New Class." He meant the group of party functionaries, bureaucrats, and managers that had consolidated itself during 15 years of Tito's rule.

Our own situation exhibits some striking analogies to the one described by Djilas. Our own "new class" consists of the college educated professionals, bureaucrats, social scientists, and educators who have been greatly increasing in numbers during the past decade and who have been crystallizing a distinctive ideology.

Economists customarily speak of the production of goods and services. The "new class," however, has been concerned almost entirely with the production of services, usually social services.

Whereas the old American liberalism was tied to economic growth, the "new class" opposes growth on environmental grounds. The "new growth" also has a strong puritanical streak which leads it to look upon economic growth and high levels of consumption as morally repellent.

The "new class" favors a drastic redistribution of income, both inside the United States and as between the United States and the Third World. For this and other reasons, it is hostile to capitalism and favors strong centralized planning of the economy.

The "new class" is Third World-oriented, and vaguely anti-Western. It sympathizes with "liberation" movements, and, as noted above, desires to make the Third World the beneficiary of American largesse.

As compared with the older liberalism, the "new class" is relatively indifferent to traditional U.S. allies, such as the NATO countries and Israel.

The "new class" has become the most articulate and aggressive element within the Democratic Party. At the present time, for example, forums run by "new class" liberals have been meeting in different cities.

But the growing power of the "new class" has been driving out of the Democratic coalition the traditional labor and ethnic voters who have little in common with it, sharing neither its economic and political goals nor its cultural style.

The result has been the birth of two separate parties within the Democratic Party, what I called in my column the "Wallace Party" and the "Udall Party" — though by that I did not mean to imply that Udall is now the single preferred candidate of the "new class." He can merely serve as a nice symbol.

The Republican argument concerns how the party should deal with the Democratic voters now up for grabs. The most imaginative Republican strategists, and they tend to be the younger ones, favor active pursuit of these alienated Democrats. The more orthodox Republicans, and we can call them the Ford-styled Republicans, place a much lower priority on such pursuit. The Democratic earthquake has thus rocked Republican foundations as well.

Bicentennial Souvenirs

"BUYCENTENNIAL," the cynics mutter, as merchandise commemorating the 200th anniversary of American independence continues to flood the market. Even the New Jersey State Lottery has gotten into the act. Starting next Monday the Garden State will offer "1776 Instant Lottery" at $1 per ticket. The grand prize, which will be drawn for every 16 million tickets sold, is $1,776 a week for life.

The lucky winner could easily squander his earnings, if he so desired, on bicentennial souvenirs. How about a model of the Mayflower in silver? Shreve, Crump & Low, the Boston jewelers, offered one for $30,000. The U.S. Bicentennial Society of Richmond, Va., a private concern, despite its official-sounding name, is selling $2,500-per-pair replicas of George Washington's flintlock pistols and $1,295 reproductions of the chair John Hancock sat in when he signed the Declaration of Independence.

So much for the carriage trade. Most bicentennial mementos are moderately priced, and some of them are free. There are T-shirts, belt buckles, ice buckets, tricorne hats, alarm clocks and assorted knickknacks. Giveaways include ballpoint pens and shopping bags. A Michigan firm has come up with a red white and blue garbage bag with a Liberty Bell printed on one side.

Merchandising the Spirit of '76 is nothing new. Souvenirs and advertising giveaways were common a century ago when the nation celebrated its 100th anniversary with an exposition at Philadelphia. Companies gave away such items as bars of soap and tiny tin buckets of lard manufactured for the occasion. Pattern glass tumblers bearing patriotic mottoes were sold, as were George Washington bookmarks and coffee cups, and George and Martha belt buckles.

These and other centennial souvenirs are now collector's items whose value has increased over the years, but not as much as one might think. One antiques catalogue puts the price of a George Washington centennial coffee mug at $40. An empty tin sample of Naphy's Leaf Lard, stamped with the dates 1776 and 1876, sells for $18. A wooden napkin ring originally brought at the Philadelphia exposition recently was purchased for $6 at an auction in Northern Virginia.

Despite the precedent of 1876, some people profess to be appalled by the merchandising aspects of the bicentennial. "Red, white and blue lawn chairs are just another means of commercialism," said Edward McColgan, executive director of the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission. "Red, white and blue chairs are totally irrelevant to 1776, and I doubt that the Founding Fathers would have considered them relevant."

Others object to the use of bicentennial themes in advertising copy. Commenting on a newspaper ad by Mobil Oil that featured Revolutionary patriot Samuel Adams, advertising executive Jerry Della Femina said that "it would have been valid for Mobil to use Sam Adams if Adams has used Mobil gas to drive his horse."

It can be argued that a high toned bicentennial celebration entirely lacking in hoopla and kitschy souvenirs would not be only boring but a false reflection of the American spirit. As an English writer, Frances Trollope, said of Americans in 1832, "Nothing can exceed their activity and perseverance in all kinds of speculation, handicraft and enterprise, which promises a profitable pecuniary result."

Step Forward, Step Back For Rail Transportation

Through the weekend the railroad industry went through a financial walk.

Conrail, the federally chartered though as yet inadequately funded corporation to take over the Penn Central and six other bankrupt eastern rail lines, became operable.

Despite a barrage of local criticism against lopping off pieces of trackage which no longer serve a useful purpose, Congress accepted Conrail's proposed operational manual.

The next step is for Washington to appropriate an as yet undetermined amount of billions to buy the seven properties. This likely will be a prolonged, litigious struggle because the owners and creditors of the seven companies hold widely divergent views as to the value of the tracks, rolling stock and buildings, much of which is in great disrepair.

This difficult task to the contrary,

at the very least there is now the promise that a vitally needed service can continue to function.

Seventy-two hours before Conrail took over as a going concern, a federal district court in New York City granted a petition by the Railway Express Agency, REA express, Inc., to be exact, to go into complete bankruptcy and ordered its liquidation.

REA had been operating under Chapter XI, that section in the bankruptcy statutes which enables the debtor to continue in possession of its assets for the hopeful purpose of paying off the creditors without having to take a blood bath.

The same court had approved Chapter XI proceedings last February.

For a while it appeared the REA might emerge from the woods until three reverses came along. The recession reduced freight shipments. A three-week wildcat strike in June funneled traffic to other shipping services. The Civil Aeronautics Board later on ordered REA to cease operating its 47-year-old air express service.

In a matter of days REA will complete distributing freight on hand and another 8,000 people will be looking for different work.

It was keyed as a fast freight service to the rail passenger carriers. For reasons never made clear, neither past management in REA nor Congress moved to free it from its limited delivery beyond its terminals. Consignees within the city limits where a terminal was located could obtain their freight from REA trucks. Those outside the incorporated limits had to send their trucks to the terminals.

The shift of business and industry into the countryside and the growth of competing door to door trucking service dug a hole for REA from which it never could climb out.

It is another unnecessary example of government regulators and, sad to say, quiescent management combining to sink a business which never should have been allowed to go under.

Cash Seized, Three Teens Charged In Benton Burglary

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

Benton township police have arrested three teenage boys and confiscated $8,754 that officers believe was part of $20,000 loot reported stolen from the home of a Benton Harbor street cleaner Saturday night.

Booked on a charge of breaking and entering was John E. Young, 17, of 732 North Pike street, Benton Heights.

Petitioned to juvenile court on similar charges were two 16-year-old boys, both of Benton township.

Officers also confiscated four large plastic containers of suspected marijuana, allegedly purchased by one of the juveniles for $1,800. Details of the purchase were not learned, police said.

John W. Searls, 61, a Benton Harbor street cleaner, told police Saturday night that more than $20,000 in cash was stolen from his Benton township home at 2125 Territorial road, at Euclid avenue.

Searls said at least $20,000 was in a homemade metal cylinder, stolen from a bedroom. He discovered the theft upon returning from church.

Township Lt. Raymond Frye said that when leaving for church, Searls noticed four youths at a gasoline station across the street from Searls' home. One of the youths spoke about going to church with Searls some time.

The arrests stemmed from follow-up investigation of Searls' account concerning the youths at the service station.

Frye said Young was apprehended at 7:20 p.m. Monday on a street near his home. Frye said Young then took officers to the Young home and handed over $5,300. Frye said one juvenile was picked up at his home about 9:07 p.m. and handed over $3,454 and the suspected marijuana. The other juvenile was arrested early this morning.

The money confiscated was reported to consist of $20 bills. Frye noted that if the money confiscated is part of the $20,000 loot, the remainder is unaccounted for.

The metal cylinder has not been located, Frye indicated.

SJ Board Sets Hearing Monday On $5.3 Million School Budget

The St. Joseph board of education will hold a public hearing at 8 p.m. next Monday in Jefferson school on a $5.3 million operating budget for fiscal 1974-75.

Paced with financial problems, the board last night agreed to continue the busing system currently in operation as "the best balance between the district's total demands for busing services and the funds available."

Board President Ray Dumke also announced additional tentative budget reductions, totaling more than $40,000.

Dumke urged citizens to write their state legislators in opposition to state aid to education reductions proposed by Gov. William Milliken.

No formal board action was taken on this, but Vice President James Mason responded: "I've talked to two legislators and all they say is, 'Sorry, but there's no money available.'"

The governor's recommendation to reduce education state aid outlays and expenditures in other areas is reported to be an effort to balance the state budget. The plan has been blocked by Democrats in the legislature, who are now preparing their own plan.

The Benton Harbor board of education voted earlier to oppose the governor's education cutbacks.

About 100 people packed the meeting room at E.P. Clarke elementary school, with most present concerned with the St. Joseph district's busing schedule. Several spoke in favor of additional busing, but tempers remained cool for the most part.

The board's decision to continue its policy, which has terminated bus service for about 400 students was reached by not taking any action.

The recommendation to continue the current scheduling was in a position paper. The paper was prepared by Board Secretary Orinda Griswold, Trustee Freda Sparks and district Business Manager Dennis Percy.

The position paper cited traffic surveys, dangers to children on any street and listed five possible courses of action. These ranged from discontinuing bus service for all children who reside less than 1 1/2 miles from their school to reinstating service discontinued for the balance of the year.

The position paper recommended the fifth alternative and stated:

"Alternative number 5, though it certainly will not satisfy all concerned, seems to be the best balance between the district's total demands for busing services and the funds available."

The present bus schedules were adopted at the start of the school year. Transportation is limited to students who reside 1 1/2 miles or more from their schools, except for those who reside on or walk across

U.S. Constitution to secure these rights."

The Benton Harbor city commission on Oct. 6 voted to support the coalition's move to urge the U.S. Labor department to stop federal funding to Berrien county because of "discriminatory practices of Berrien county" against minorities.

A telegram was sent to the labor department director which lashed out at the county government, the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, the county health department and the county manpower program for the alleged discriminatory practices.

Joseph told reporters last night after the meeting that he has received several responses in connection with the telegram and said that "I understand that several investigations of the matter are underway."

In other action, the commission approved a one-year lease with Monitor Sound Systems to use a building at 59 Wall street which the city owns. The company, which manufactures alarm systems, will lease the building from the city for $176 per month. The building is the former site of the Palladium Publishing Co. which moved out of the Wall street office in 1955.

City Manager Charles Morrison reported that expenditures for the city's boat launch off Riverview drive on the St. Joseph river were $12,401 this year and that revenues collected at the boat launch were $11,116. He said the $1,285 loss on the boat launch was due to one-time expenses which included the relocation of the fish tank and other improvements at the boat launching site.

Mayor Joseph also offered four resolutions aimed at improving operation of the city. The three resolutions approved were:

— That a geodesic survey of the city's underground utilities, such as sewer and water, be mapped.

— To direct the city manager, city clerk and city treasurer to develop a policy to delay city bills one week so that city commissioners could review them before they come to the commission floor for approval.

— To direct all city staff to submit all matters requiring a legal opinion to the city attorney.

Tabled was a resolution that would require city department heads to file a report on meetings they attend with other governmental units. City Manager Morrison said the requirement "could be a burden" because the 14 department heads each attend an average of a meeting per day. Mayor Joseph said the requirement would "establish accountability to the commission and keep the commission informed."

Referred to committee was a contract to subsidize ambulance service under a combined emergency services plan involving seven governmental units in the Twin Cities area.

Campaign Tactics Draw BH Commissioners' Ire

The Benton Harbor city commission passed a resolution last night to clean up "irresponsible" campaign tactics as a result of last Tuesday's municipal election.

Commissioner Arnold Bolin offered the resolution and referred to a leaflet distributed by mail which was signed by the "United Homeowners of Benton Harbor." The leaflet allegedly sought to defame Candidates Carl Brown, Annie Lee Robinson, and Charles Yarbrough.

The resolution directed the chief of police to conduct an investigation to find the source of the leaflet, required that a public ordinance be drafted concerning the public uttering or publishing of unsupported and defaming statements, and required that apologies be made to those attacked in the leaflet.

The commission approved the resolution 9 to 1. Commissioner Winston Minott, who was not a candidate in Tuesday's election, cast the lone "no" vote, stating that he had not had an opportunity to read the leaflet.

Of the three candidates named in the leaflet, only Commissioner-at-Large Yarbrough won re-election. Brown was defeated in his bid for re-election to the Second Ward commission seat by Charles Shepherd, and his mother, Annie Lee Robinson, lost in her bid for a commissioner-at-large seat.

John W. Searls, 61, a Benton Harbor street cleaner, told police Saturday night that more than $20,000 in cash was stolen from his Benton township home at 2125 Territorial road, at Euclid avenue.

Searls said at least $20,000 was in a homemade metal cylinder, stolen from a bedroom. He discovered the theft upon returning from church.

Township Lt. Raymond Frye said that when leaving for church, Searls noticed four youths at a gasoline station across the street from Searls' home. One of the youths spoke about going to church with Searls some time.

Help Sought In County Fund Feud

BH To March On Washington

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

A coalition of Benton Harbor citizens will go to Washington D.C. next Monday to protest the distribution of federal funds and hiring practices in Berrien county.

Mayor Charles Joseph announced the "Pilgrimage to Washington" last night at the city commission meeting and said he would head the group of an estimated 50 people who will go to Washington.

Some 75 people, comprising the "community coalition," formerly known as the black coalition, crowded into the city commission chambers before the commission meeting last night to make plans for the trip. The 50 people will travel by bus at a cost of $48.50 per person.

Joseph said the group will confront officials from the U.S. Labor, Commerce, Justice and Housing and Urban Development departments in Washington and will "ask them to back us up." Joseph said the group will also present the officials with petitions with about 1,000 signatures from residents of Benton Harbor and Benton township.

Joseph read a portion of the Declaration of Independence at the commission meeting and said the group was "petitioning the government in accordance with the Declaration and the U.S. Constitution to secure these rights."

The Benton Harbor city commission on Oct. 6 voted to support the coalition's move to urge the U.S. Labor department to stop federal funding to Berrien county because of "discriminatory practices of Berrien county" against minorities.

A telegram was sent to the labor department director which lashed out at the county government, the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, the county health department and the county manpower program for the alleged discriminatory practices.

SJ Board Sets Hearing Monday On $5.3 Million School Budget

The St. Joseph board of education will hold a public hearing at 8 p.m. next Monday in Jefferson school on a $5.3 million operating budget for fiscal 1975-76.

Faced with financial problems, the board last night agreed to continue the budget system currently in operation as "the best balance between the district's total demands for bus services and the funds available."

Board President Ray Dumke also announced additional tentative budget reductions, totaling more than $40,000.

Dumke urged citizens to write their state legislators in opposition to state aid to education reductions proposed by Gov. William Milliken.

No formal board action was taken on this, but Vice President James Mason responded: "I've talked to two legislators and all they say is, 'Sorry, but there's no money available.'"

The governor's recommendation to reduce education state aid outlays and expenditures in other areas is reported to be an effort to balance the state budget. The plan has been blocked by Democrats in the legislature, who are now preparing their own plan.

The Benton Harbor board of education voted earlier to oppose the governor's education cutbacks.

About 100 people packed the meeting room at E.P. Clarke elementary school, with most present concerned with the St. Joseph district's bus schedule. Several spoke in favor of additional busing, but tempers remained cool for the most part.

The board's decision to continue its policy, which has terminated bus service for about 400 students was reached by not taking any action.

The recommendation to continue the current scheduling was in a position paper. The paper was prepared by Board Secretary Orinda Griswold, Trustee Freda Sparks and district Business Manager Dennis Percy.

The position paper cited traffic surveys, dangers to children on any street and listed five possible courses of action. These ranged from discontinuing bus service for all children who reside less than 1½ miles from their school to reinstating service discontinued for the balance of the year.

The position paper recommended the fifth alternative and stated:

"Alternative number 5, though it certainly will not satisfy all concerned, seems to be the best balance between the district's total demands for bus services and the funds available."

The present bus schedules were adopted at the start of the school year. Transportation is limited to students who reside 1½ miles or more from their schools, except for those who reside on or walk across

US-31-33 (Niles road), Red Arrow highway, or north of the Blossomland bridge. Parents, mostly from the Brown school area, had sought a "cluster" plan to pick up children in groups, within the 1½-mile range.

Schools Supt. Burton Aldrich said the lateness of next Monday's budget hearing reflects an honest effort to assemble a working budget against adversities and uncertainties. Aldrich cited lack of knowledge about the amount of state aid the district will receive, and also two millage election defeats earlier this year.

Carpenter Broker Pleads No Contest To False Ad

A businessman conducting an alleged "going out of business" carpet sale in St. Joseph pleaded no contest yesterday in Berrien Fifth District court to a charge of placing a false or misleading advertisement.

Placed on presentence investigation was Lawrence Hoffman, of Lansing, owner of Southern Carpet Brokers, Inc., Dalton, Ga.

He pleaded no contest to a charge of placing a false advertisement in this newspaper Nov. 5 which created the impression that he was selling $150,000 worth of carpeting acquired from a former Benton Harbor carpet business, according to Randy Arnt, investigator for the Berrien Consumer Protection Unit.

Actually, Arnt said, some $60,000 worth of carpeting is being sold, only about $6,700 of which was acquired from the Benton Harbor store of Dean Stanard Floor Covering. The store went out of business last month.

District Judge Hugh Black told Hoffman yesterday in court that the newspaper advertisement should be rewritten. Hoffman's sentence will depend upon the new draft of the ad, Black said.

According to Arnt, the carpet sale is still going on at Shadowland, near Silver Beach. He filed the charge because he wanted "people to know what they're buying," he said yesterday.

Upon Hoffman's plea, a charge of violation of the Michigan Act which requires having a permit before conducting a going out of business sale was dismissed. St. Joseph Det. Lt. Tom Cooper aided in the investigation, Arnt said.

Symphony Concert Sunday

ROBERTA BOWERS

Twin Cities Symphony's second concert of the season will be held Sunday, Nov. 16, at 4:30 p.m. at St. Joseph high school auditorium.

Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Featured in the program will be Dvorak's "Symphony No. 8 in G," and highlights from Bizet's opera, "Carmen."

A reception will be held following the concert at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

Guest soloist will be mezzo-soprano Roberta Bowers of Chicago.

"Carmen" received its world premiere 100 years ago — the same year as the composer George Bizet's death. "Carmen" tells the story of a gypsy girl and the influence she has on the life of a young army officer, Don Jose.

According to Robert Vodnoy, music director and conductor, the opera is filled with bright, colorful tunes, including the Flower song, the Toreador song and four Carmen arias — the Habanera (when Carmen sings of her philosophy of love), the Seguidilla, the Gypsy Song and the Card aria (in which Carmen reads her fate in the Tarot cards).

Miss Bowers will sing all of these arias, interwoven with the orchestral music — the Prelude and three Entr'actes.

Miss Bowers will also sing the aria "O Mio Fernando" from Donizetti's opera, "La Favorita."

Antonin Dvorak wrote his "Symphony No. 8 in G," before leaving for his brief stay in the United States. The work is based on many, light, exciting Bohemian dance tunes and is unusual in that there are three fast movements and only one slow one. It is one of his three most popular works, according to Vodnoy.

Miss Bowers is a graduate of the Music Conservatory of Roosevelt University, Chicago. She has appeared at several Midwestern colleges including Andrews University and Notre Dame. She has appeared twice on Artists' Showcase television program in Chicago.

During the 1970 Pierce tour of the holy Land, Miss Bowers was featured as soloist, including a concert given in the Garden of Gethesmane. On her return, she performed in Corinth, Greece.

A former member of the Alex Sharpe Ensemble of Los Angeles, she is now mezzo-soprano in the Choral of the Chicago Temple. A vocal music teacher in the Chicago schools, she has also appeared as soloist on Channel 11's Sunday Evening Club.

Members of the St. Joseph Art association are cooperating with the symphony and are designing the covers for each concert's programs. Ann Vandermolen is designing the cover for the Nov. 16 concert. The program for the first concert of the season was created by Phyllis Rhoads and the cover for the Christmas concert will be done by Foster Willey.

Coed Receives Honor Society Grant

Julie Overton, of Lawrence, was presented a $200 grant-in-aid Nov. 10, when members of Beta Zeta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society, an international honor society for women educators, met at Southwestern Michigan Indian Center, Watervliet.

Miss Overton was costumed in Indian dress, in her role as "Miss Woodland Indian Princess," an honor she received at the SMIC pageant last spring. She is a 1975 graduate of Lawrence high school and is now a freshman at Grand Valley State College, majoring in sociology to prepare her for working with Indian children.

to the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Overton.

Joe Winchester, executive director of the Southwestern Michigan Indian Center, which includes a staff of eight, spoke on "Local Potawatomi History" at the meeting.

Using territorial maps, Winchester explained some of the 13 Potawatomi treaties that are an indelible part of the United States history and of particular relevance to the midwestern states.

He pointed out the four federal and one state reservations in Michigan and gave a few statistics relative to their acreage and population.

Winchester is also a member of the board of directors of the Coalition of Eastern Native Americans, Inc. (CENA), with headquarters in Washington, D.C. CENA is a national organization which serves 51 Indian tribes east of the Mississippi river.

Beta Zeta chapter, with Ruth Johnson of St. Joseph as president, is comprised of 28 teachers from the Benton Harbor, St. Joseph and Lakeshore schools. Through Delta Kappa Gamma's "Project North America," a new undertaking adopted by the international society and initiated in Arizona, interest is encouraged in promoting Indian education.

Among guests at the meeting was Mary Dixon of Benton Harbor, a founder of the local Rho chapter and a past state president of the society.

Arrangements for the program were made by the legislation committee, led by

John Stubblefield To Be Speaker

John Stubblefield of St. Joseph will be the speaker at a meeting of the Genealogical Association of Southwestern Michigan Friday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the South State street branch of People State Bank, St. Joseph.

The association will also sponsor a workshop Saturday, Nov. 15, at 1:30 p.m. at Maud Preston Palenske Memorial library, St. Joseph.

Stubblefield, who is president of People's State Bank, "St. Joseph, will speak on "One Man's Search," at the Friday meeting. He has been interested in genealogy for many years and will discuss what he has accomplished in tracing his family.

Anyone interested in a published index to the graves in Union cemetery, Berrien township, may secure a copy of the November issue of "Past-finder," publication of the local association, which features the index, at the meeting.

Heed Old Adage -- Says Marketing Agent

"An apple a day" is an old adage that's worth heeding and it's a smart way to be economical as well, says Maryann Beckman, Food Marketing Agent.

Michigan's apple crop is now in peak season all over the state and at lower prices than a year ago.

The crop, estimated at just over 17 million bushels, is considered as "just an average" crop for Michigan, but is larger than the crops of the past two years, which is good news for consumers, but not necessarily for producers.

More-than-usual apples are appearing on fresh markets and fewer going to processors this year.

At current prices there's no excuse for not serving an apple a day, for prices are most economical. Serve them in a wide variety of different ways too, for apples are so very versatile.

Quality of this year's crop appears to be excellent too, for the weather has cooperated beautifully to put both color and size on most apples. The August and September rains, that damaged many crops, were beneficial to apples as have been the warm days and cool nights. Picking has been running about a week ahead of schedule and is nearly all completed now, except for a few of the latest varieties.

Red Delicious, Northern Spy, Golden Delicious, Rome and Ida Red are in supply in this order. Jonathan and McIntosh are all purpose apples, good for every imaginable use.

Red Delicious are best for fresh eating and salads, while Rome are considered excellent for baking. Northern Spys are unexcelled for pies. Golden Delicious are excellent for fresh eating and pies and very good for all other purposes.

Don't let skin color fool you. Michigan weather conditions cause russeting on the skins of some Golden Delicious, but beauty is only skin deep, and peeled or unpeeled, appearance doesn't affect the great flavor.

Another variety that's growing in popularity is the Ida Red variety — a bright, red, smooth finished apple that has firm, white flesh and keeps extremely well. It's considered an all purpose apple, too, so give it a try when and where you find it available.

Apple time means cider time, too. Prices this year have varied greatly so far, mostly due to whether the cider is this year's or last year's crop. Prices have ranged from loss leader features of 89 cents a gallon to almost $2 a gallon. From this week on, however, you'll see mostly this year's crop and prices will be more stabilized and down some from the beginning highs on last year's stocks.

Symphony Concert Sunday

ROBERTA BOWERS

Twin Cities Symphony's second concert of the season will be held Sunday, Nov. 16, at 4:30 p.m. at St. Joseph high school auditorium.

Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Featured in the program will be Dvorak's "Symphony No. 8 in G," and highlights from Bizet's opera, "Carmen."

A reception will be held following the concert at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

Guest soloist will be mezzo-soprano Roberta Bowers of Chicago.

"Carmen" received its world premiere 100 years ago — the same year as the composer George Bizet's death. "Carmen" tells the story of a gypsy girl and the influence she has on the life of a young army officer, Don Jose.

According to Robert Vodnoy, music director and conductor, the opera is filled with bright, colorful tunes, including the Flower song, the Toreador song and four Carmen arias — the Habanera (when Carmen sings of her philosophy of love), the Seguidilla, the Gypsy Song and the Card aria (in which Carmen reads her fate in the Tarot cards).

Miss Bowers will sing all of these arias, interwoven with the orchestral music — the Prelude and three Entr'actes.

Miss Bowers will also sing the aria "O Mio Fernando" from Donizetti's opera, "La Favorita."

Antonin Dvorak wrote his "Symphony No. 8 in G," before leaving for his brief stay in the United States. The work is based on many, light, exciting Bohemian dance tunes and is unusual in that there are three fast movements and only one slow one. It is one of his three most popular works, according to Vodnoy.

Miss Bowers is a graduate of the Music Conservatory of Roosevelt university, Chicago. She has appeared at several Midwestern colleges including Andrews university and Notre Dame. She has appeared twice on Artists' Showcase television program in Chicago.

During the 1970 Pierce tour of the holy Land, Miss Bowers was featured as soloist, including a concert given in the Garden of Gethesamane. On her return, she performed in Corinth, Greece.

A former member of the Alex Sharpe Ensemble of Los Angeles, she is now mezzo-soprano in the Choral of the Chicago Temple. A vocal music teacher in the Chicago schools, she has also appeared as soloist on Channel 11's Sunday Evening club.

Members of the St. Joseph Art association are cooperating with the symphony and are designing the covers for each concert's programs. Ann Vandermolen is designing the cover for the Nov. 16 concert. The program for the first concert of the season was created by Phyllis Rhoads and the cover for the Christmas concert will be done by Foster Willey.

Announce Tournament

BRIDGE EVENT: Opening day of play in the annual bridge tournament sponsored by women of St. Paul's Episcopal church, St. Joseph, will be Monday, Jan. 19. The tournament will be held at the church and continue for six consecutive Mondays, according to Mrs. Charles Rhodes and Mrs. Bart Kruse, co-chairmen. Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Gene Durren, St. Joseph. Arranging the event are, from left, Mrs. Rhodes, Mrs. Durren and Mrs. Harvey Johnson, prizes. (Staff photo)

Coed Receives Honor Society Grant

Julie Overton, of Lawrence, was presented a $200 grant-in-aid Nov. 10, when members of Beta Zeta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society, an international honor society for women educators, met at Southwestern Michigan Indian Center, Watervliet.

Miss Overton was costumed in Indian dress, in her role as "Miss Woodland Indian Princess," an honor she received at the SMIC pageant last spring. She is a 1975 graduate of Lawrence high school and is now a freshman at Grand Valley State college, majoring in sociology to prepare her for working with Indian children.

Nancy Schroeder, Beta Zeta treasurer, presented the check

to the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Overton.

Joe Winchester, executive director of the Southwestern Michigan Indian Center, which includes a staff of eight, spoke on "Local Potawatome History" at the meeting.

Using territorial maps, Winchester explained some of the 13 Potawatome treaties that are an indelible part of the United States history and of particular relevance to the midwestern states.

He pointed out the four federal and one state reservations in Michigan and gave a few statistics relative to their acreage and population.

Winchester is also a member of the board of directors of the Coalition of Eastern Native Americans, Inc. (CENA), with headquarters in Washington, D.C. CENA is a national organization which serves 51 Indian tribes east of the Mississippi river.

Beta Zeta chapter, with Ruth Johnson of St. Joseph as president, is comprised of 28 teachers from the Benton Harbor, St. Joseph and Lakeshore schools. Through Delta Kappa Gamma's "Project North America," a new undertaking adopted by the international society and initiated in Arizona, interest is encouraged in promoting Indian education.

Among guests at the meeting was Mary Dixon of Benton Harbor, a founder of the local Rho chapter and a past state president of the society.

Arrangements for the program were made by the legislation committee, led by Ibba Glaske and Jean Gast, chairman of professional affairs. Hostesses were Mary Jackson, Dawn Piraino, Peg VanAmerongen, Margaret Brown, Doris Badgley and Dorothy Cannell.

John Stubblefield To Be Speaker

John Stubblefield of St. Joseph will be the speaker at a meeting of the Genealogical Association of Southwestern Michigan Friday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the South State street branch of People State Bank, St. Joseph.

The association will also sponsor a workshop Saturday, Nov. 15, at 1:30 p.m. at Maud Preston Palenske Memorial library, St. Joseph.

Stubblefield, who is president of People's State Bank, St. Joseph, will speak on "One Man's Search," at the Friday meeting. He has been interested in genealogy for many years and will discuss what he has accomplished in tracing his family.

Anyone interested in a published index to the graves in Union cemetery, Berrien township, may secure a copy of the November issue of "Past-finder," publication of the local association, which features the index, at the meeting.

The workshop Saturday, of which Mrs. Harry Ball is in charge, will give assistance to genealogical association members and anyone interested in preparing their family charts.

Art Gallery Serves Food To Patrons

Dinners Prove Successful

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Women's luncheons, gourmet dinners and important town meetings have been used by one art gallery entrepreneur "to give artists and their works longer exposure." He works at it.

"Ladies have enjoyed lunching in the main art gallery with someone talking about art, so we went to the dinners and they've been extremely successful," explained James Hunt Barker.

His galleries in Palm Beach, Fla., and New York, offer art preview guests libation, but so far the convivial art-mix with food has taken place in the Nantucket, Mass., gallery, a large, old, three-story mansion. Barker would like to expand the idea to the other galleries but space has been a problem.

"People like the opportunity to talk at length with the artists and it helps to sell art. After each exhibit the artist's work moves into another room where it can remain on display through the gallery season," he explained.

A quiet, relaxed Southerner — he's from Lexington, Ky. — Barker cannot be nonplused by the most horrendous turn of events. He recently planned a special dinner art preview for some prominent guests and 75 members of the town's land council, a group interested in the preservation of Nantucket. It was discovered that invitations to dinner had been sent to 300 by mistake.

Undaunted, Barker acquired extra food and prepared and served a dinner of cold borscht with sour cream, stuffed chicken and grapes with wild rice, zucchini, salad, sherbet and fruit to the 220 people who showed up.

"It was really a cool performance," said Mrs. E. Dun Gifford, a member of the land council's board. Her husband has worked with Senator Ted Kennedy on the preservation bill (Nantucket Sound Islands) that is before Congress.

Barker gives little talks about the artists before a meal begins. Introducing Cecil Beaton at one luncheon, he described how the artist-designer had particular concern for details of clothes in his paintings. It resulted in several commissions for Beaton.

He uses other intriguing ideas: In showing old costumes that had belonged to his mother and memorabilia of the Victorian age he lamented that the beauty of such ornamentation was seldom captured on canvas. It motivated some women to dress up for a portrait.

Artists often stay at his large home on a cliff if they are visitors to Nantucket. This 19 King Charles spaniels run about the house complemented by his mother's collection of 66 Staffordshire King Charles Spaniels on shelves. Gloria Vanderbilt and her husband stayed there, he says, when she had an exhibit of paintings, her first.

At the gallery dinners there is likely to be entertainment, a guitar player or singer of both. Guests are a mix of townspeople, tourists, celebrities from far and near.

Barker's host-chef performance — he does all the cooking himself — begins at the door. Impeccably attired and with gracious manners he greets guests and sits with them at dinner. While they sip a drink and wander about the gallery, he cooks the food which is served by attractive college students — one was living on a yacht with her parents — who also help in the cleanup.

"For small dinners, I keep guests to 35, the number of steaks I can get in a baking pan," Barker explained in reviewing his shortcuts. "I season the pan before arranging the meat, sprinkle a little red wine and seasonings on top and when it is time I broil it for five minutes or so. The top is brown, middle is pinky and no one turns it over to see if it is browned underneath. Little potatoes and green beans or other vegetables are partially cooked and brought to high heat while guests eat the soup..."

Dessert — orange sherbet and blueberries on one occasion — is usually chosen to match the tablecloths which are aglow with light from antique candleabra.

Barker's method of selling art may be expensive — costs have soared recently — but he's not about to abandon the popular idea. Elegance is part of the scene and instinctively excited. In a Grandma Moses room where eight of her works are displayed, he set little tables with beautiful old handmade quilts at one dinner.

MASCOTS: King Charles Spaniels that shuttle between James Barker's art gallery in Nantucket and his home pose in front of collection of Staffordshire spaniels that belonged to Barker's mother.

U-M Alumni Plan Buffet

A family buffet dinner for University of Michigan alumni, children and friends will be held at St. Joseph Holiday Inn, Sunday, Nov. 16, at 6 p.m.

The dinner, sponsored by the U of M Alumni club of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, will precede the 8 p.m. showing of that weekend's Michigan-Illinois football game.

Special guest will be Dr. William Stegath, assistant to the director of the U of M Alumni Association. He has served as director of each of the Alumni Association's four campuses, including the newest one, Camp Michigania in Switzerland.

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Carroll Gerbel.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Gerbel or Mrs. John Dewane, both of St. Joseph.

Do You Consider

Yourself A Conformist?

Do you worry about what the neighbors think? Do you consider yourself a conformist?

If your answer is yes, your level of ethical intelligence is probably not very advanced, reports the November Seventeen magazine. Ethical intelligence (one of 120 different categories of human smartness) is an indicator of moral growth. In the same way I.Q. is considered a measurement of intellectual achievement.

Psychologists are concerned that possibly half the United States adult population are underachievers in ethical areas — a shortcoming that can be overcome. According to University of Minnesota developmental psychologist Alan Briskin, strong character develops "by salvaging life's dilemmas, experiencing conflict, desiring to improve and becoming concerned for others."

There's another way: Take an ethics course, a new fad on college campuses. Some 50 business schools are offering ethical subject matter for the first time this year, and many liberal arts colleges and law schools are adding more selections to their traditional ethics courses. In the classes, students view videotapes from the Watergate hearings, listen to visiting lecturers, debate issues with classmates or set up personal ethical guidelines.

All in all, one booster calls this the biggest year for ethics since Socrates.

Buchanan Meetings

BUCHANAN — The Jolly Dozen club will hold a birthday meeting Thursday, Nov. 13, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. May Rouse, 501 1/2 Main street.

BUCHANAN — Buchanan Chapter 450, Women of the Moose, will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 13, in Moose Lodge.

Mrs. Onofria Morelli will serve as chairman of the program and refreshments committee.

STORE UNCOVERED Don't cover ripe tomatoes when you are storing them in the refrigerator.

Market Tips

To get the most from your meat money, learn where the cuts come from on the carcass of the animal and then prepare accordingly.

Meat from the upper middle sections (rib and loin) is the most tender (and most expensive) and can be cooked by dry heat methods. Meat from the shoulder (chuck), round or rump, shank and plate is less tender and usually is cooked by moist heat cookery methods.

Cost is generally less on these moist-heat cookery cuts, too, so offers a place to save money as well.

Federal inspection is required by law for all meat, poultry and their products shipped in interstate and foreign commerce, to ensure clean, wholesome, unadulterated meat and poultry.

Since cauliflower is now in peak season, many people are wondering how to use and cook it.

Cauliflower is excellent raw, on hors d'oeuvre trays, in salads or to simply eat as plain snacks, like celery and carrot sticks. To cook it, simply cook in a pan of boiling water (about an inch) for about five minutes uncovered; then cover and cook the whole head about 15-20 additional minutes, until crisp tender.

If divided in cauliflowerettes, cook for about 10 minutes less. A teaspoon of lemon juice added to the cooking water helps cauliflower retain its whiteness.

Cracked or soiled eggs may contain harmful bacteria, so be sure you use them in foods that are to be thoroughly cooked, such as baked goods or casseroles.

Use cracked eggs as soon as possible after they've become cracked too, for safety's sake. If in doubt as to when they got cracked, throw them out.

He recently planned a special dinner art preview for some prominent guests and 75 members of the town's land council, a group interested in the preservation of Nantucket. It was discovered that invitations to dinner had been sent to 300 by mistake.

Undaunted, Barker acquired extra food and prepared and served a dinner of cold borscht with sour cream, stuffed chicken and grapes with wild rice, zucchini, salad, sherbet and fruit to the 220 people who showed up.

"It was really a cool performance," said Mrs. K. Dun Gifford, a member of the land council's board. Her husband has worked with Senator Ted Kennedy on the preservation bill (Nantucket Sound Islands) that is before Congress.

Barker gives little talks about the artists before a meal begins. Introducing Cecil Beaton at one luncheon, he described how the artist-designer had particular concern for details of clothes in his paintings. It resulted in several commissions for Beaton.

He uses other intriguing ideas. In showing old costumes that had belonged to his mother and memorabilia of the Victorian age he lamented that the beauty of such ornamentation was seldom captured on canvas. It motivated some women to dress up for a portrait.

Artists often stay at his large home on a cliff if they are visitors to Nantucket. His 19 King Charles spaniels run about the house complemented by his mother's collection of 66 Staffordshire King Charles Spaniels on shelves. Gloria Vanderbilt and her husband stayed there, he says, when she had an exhibit of paintings, her first.

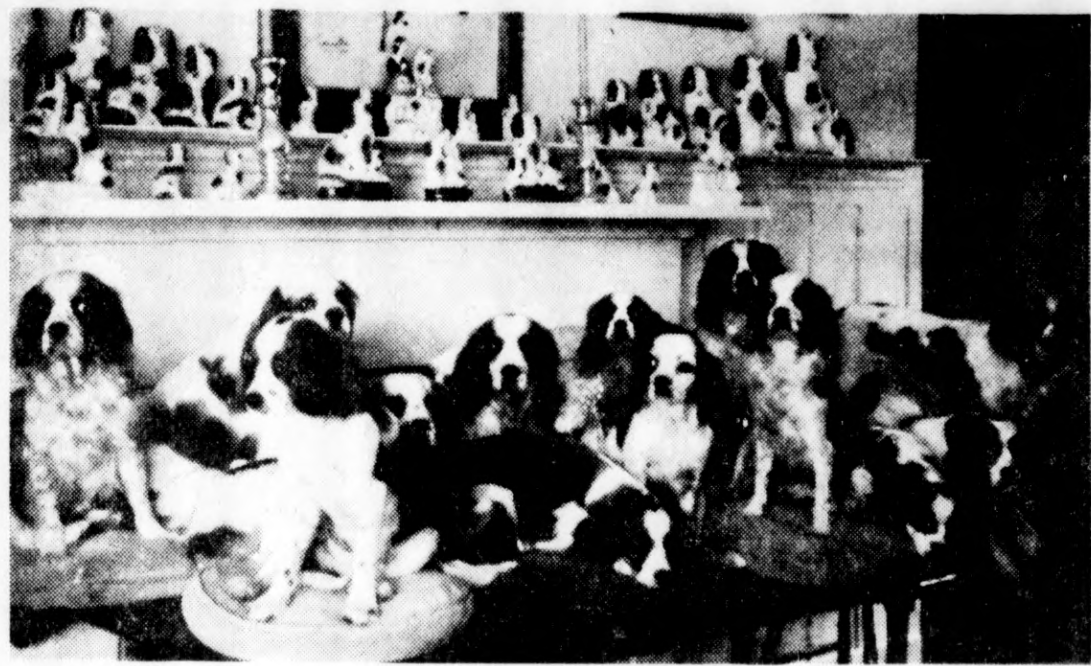

At the gallery dinners there is likely to be entertainment, a guitar player or singer of both. Guests are a mix of townspeople, tourists, celebrities from far and near.

Barker's host-chef performance — he does all the cooking himself — begins at the door. Impeccably attired and with gracious manners he greets guests and sits with them at dinner. While they sip a drink and wander about the gallery, he cooks the food which is served by attractive college students — one was living on a yacht with her parents — who also help in the cleanup.

"For small dinners, I keep guests to 35, the number of steaks I can get in a baking pan," Barker explained in reviewing his shortcuts. "I season the pan before arranging the meat, sprinkle a little red wine and seasonings on top and when it is time I broil it for five minutes or so. The top is brown, middle is pinky and no one turns it over to see if it is browned underneath. Little potatoes and green beans or other vegetables are partially cooked and brought to high heat while guests eat the soup..."

Dessert — orange sherbet and blueberries on one occasion — is usually chosen to match the tablecloths which are aglow with light from antique candleabra.

Barker's method of selling art may be expensive — costs have zoomed recently — but he's not about to abandon the popular idea. Elegance is part of the scene and tastefully executed. In a Grandma Moses room where eight of her works are displayed, he set little tables with beautiful old handmade quilts at one dinner.

MASCOTS: King Charles Spaniels that shuttle between James Barker's art gallery in Nantucket and his home pose in front of collection of Staffordshire spaniels that belonged to Barker's mother.

Market Tips

To get the most from your meat money, learn where the cuts come from on the carcass of the animal and then prepare accordingly.

Meat from the upper middle sections (rib and loin) is the most tender (and most expensive) and can be cooked by dry heat methods. Meat from the shoulder (chuck), round or rump, shank and plate is less tender and usually is cooked by moist heat cookery methods.

Cost is generally less on these moist-heat cookery cuts, too, so offers a place to save money as well.

Federal inspection is required by law for all meat, poultry and their products shipped in interstate and foreign commerce, to ensure clean, wholesome, unadulterated meat and poultry.

Since cauliflower is now in peak season, many people are wondering how to use and cook it.

Cauliflower is excellent raw, on hors d'oeuvre trays, in salads or to simply eat as plain snacks, like celery and carrot sticks. To cook it, simply cook in a pan of boiling water (about an inch) for about five minutes uncovered; then cover and cook the whole head about 15-20 additional minutes, until crisp tender.

If divided in cauliflowerettes, cook for about 10 minutes less. A teaspoon of lemon juice added to the cooking water helps cauliflower retain its whiteness.

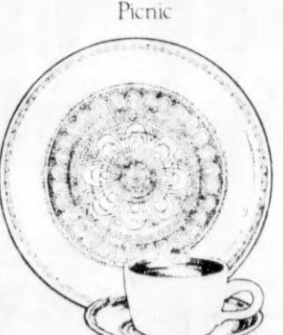

Cracked or soiled eggs may contain harmful bacteria, so be sure you use them in foods that are to be thoroughly cooked, such as baked goods or casseroles.

Use cracked eggs as soon as possible after they've become cracked too, for safety's sake. If in doubt as to when they got cracked, throw them out.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Girlfriend, College Don't Mix

Dear Ann Landers: The problem — as it exists:

Our son, 19, went to college overseas last year. His girl, 18, joined him at midterm.

Eyewitness reports: Twosome inseparable all semester. Son's grades dropped from A's and B's to C's and F's. School sent probation letter regarding low grades. Son changed campuses this fall. When we learned the girl planned to follow, we phoned her parents and said, "Our son's education is of utmost importance. Please send your daughter to another school." They were furious.

Of course the boy and girl are together again. Question: How far can we go in our demands? If our son's grades are poor at semester's end, can we insist that the girl's parents send her elsewhere? Should we tell our son that if his grades aren't decent we will refuse to pay for his education and he'll have to take a job?

Your opinion is requested. — Suffering in Sunsville.

Dear Suff: You cannot demand anything of the girl's parents. They have a right to send their daughter to any school they choose.

You can, however, inform your son that you will no longer support his education if he can't make respectable grades. A college education is a privilege — and a damned expensive one these days. A student who goes off is squandering money shamelessly and his parents should tell him — either, or. And make it stick.

Tall's Great

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing to comment on the letter from the woman who was "abnormally tall." She was married to an "abnormally tall" man and was afraid to have children because they might look like giraffes. She's got to be crazy to worry about such things.

First of all, I'm 5-feet-10 and I don't consider myself a freak, although I am taller than most girls in my class. My mother taught me to stand straight and be proud of my height. Too bad the young lady who wrote didn't have a mother as smart as mine.

I hope you will print my letter for the benefit of all tall people. If they feel good about themselves, the battle is won. — Above The Crowd

Dear A.T.C.: Nice of you to give your mom the credit — and of course she deserves it.

A note to all you tall gals out there who are wearing flats and scrunching down trying to look shorter. Did you see that the recently crowned Miss America is an 18-year-old Skidmore college sophomore who is 5-feet-10 1/2? And she's a real beauty!

Hot Temper

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you can read this letter. I have two black eyes and one of them is completely closed.

I married this man after a whirlwind courtship. He was so sweet to me I was shocked when he damaged my bridge work on our honeymoon. I spent most of my afternoons in a dentist's chair.

We've been married four months and he has knocked me down three times, dislocated my shoulder and cost me over $400 with the dentist. I've had to buy special makeup to cover the black eyes.

Please give me some advice, but DON'T tell me to leave him. I could never bring myself to do it. He's wonderful except when he loses his temper. — Love Him

Dear Love: O.K. I won't tell you to leave him. Stay with Mr. Wonderful until he scrambles your brains and sends you to the hospital. You must enjoy being beaten up — so accept the fact and wear a crash helmet when around your beloved. It might help cut down on the doctor bills.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers's booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Longer Shelf Life
For Fish Is Aim

EAST LANSING — Longer shelf life for frozen fish is the aim of a study by a Michigan State university extension foods specialist.

Dr. A.E. Reynolds, department of food science and human nutrition, has received a grant from the National Fisheries Institute to explore methods of frozen fish storage. He will investigate the use of poly bags and wrap to reduce moisture loss in fish during storage.

"With better quality frozen fish on the grocery shelf, both consumer and retailer will benefit," Dr. Reynolds explains.

The $2,500 award is part of the scholarship fund of the National Fisheries Institute. The NFI is an industry-funded organization which provides information and services to the fish industry.

NFI director Dr. Roy Martin considered MSU for the grant following a symposium on underutilized freshwater fish species conducted at the university last summer. During the symposium, about 65 university researchers, government representatives, fish producers and processors and others in related fields met to enumerate the problems of harvesting, processing, and marketing underused freshwater fish species.

"This project will focus on technical problems concerning the type of packaging used for various kinds of fish," says Dr. Reynolds.

South doesn't really want to bid four spades. On the other hand, it would be sheer cowardice to pass so he bids it.

North really should pass, but he likes his hand and suspects skulduggery by the opposition. He Blackwoods his way to six.

There is no play for six. South has to lose a club and the ace of diamonds, and will probably lose a trick to the queen of trumps.

Of course, North and South might get to that same slam after a pass by West. North would open one diamond; South would respond one spade and North might head for the stratosphere.

I have tingling sensations in my feet, especially in the morning. I also am bothered by muscle cramps during the night. Can these be related?

Mrs. S.Y., S.C.

Night-time cramps and persistent tingling of the feet may suggest some kind of impairment of circulation.

Sometimes there may be a reddish or bluish discoloration of the feet, especially in cold weather, associated with circulatory problems.

A general examination can rule out arteriosclerosis and Buerger's disease. The latter is a spasm of the arteries, most often due to tobacco.

There are now many highly detailed techniques by which blood circulation in both the arteries and the veins can be studied.

After such tests are made, almost always the exact cause can be pinpointed and, in many instances, treated with marked relief from these symptoms.

I have heard of heart failure, but what is kidney failure?

Mr. J.A., Ky.

Dear Mr. A.: The kidneys are two remarkable organs that act as filters. As blood passes through them, waste products and toxins are removed and excreted in the urine.

The delicate filtering mechanism does not remove healthy nutrients that circulate in the blood.

When kidneys are inflamed, infected or injured, they may fail to function normally. "Kidney failure," therefore, indicates this inability to excrete the poisonous substances that are harmful to the body.

The accumulation of these harmful products is known as "uremia." This dangerous buildup of poisons can now be effectively controlled by the dialysis machine.

Patients with kidney failure now, at repeated intervals, can have their blood cleansed of the substances whose buildup would otherwise threaten their lives.

Can the thighs be made thinner by surgery?

Miss G.H., Iowa

Dear Miss H.: Some plastic surgeons have been trying operations for this purpose. Before embarking on such a complicated procedure give a great deal of thought to the exact reasons that motivate you to try it.

Discuss it in the most minute detail so that you will not pay an emotional penalty if the results do not live up to your expectations.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism — A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice. For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Alcoholism booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. Longer Shelf Life For Fish Is Aim

EAST LANSING — Longer shelf life for frozen fish is the aim of a study by a Michigan State university extension foods specialist.

Dr. A.E. Reynolds, department of food science and human nutrition, has received a grant from the National Fisheries Institute to explore methods of frozen fish storage. He will investigate the use of poly bags and wrap to reduce moisture loss in fish during storage.

"With better quality frozen fish on the grocery shelf, both consumer and retailer will benefit," Dr. Reynolds explains.

The $2,500 award is part of the scholarship fund of the National Fisheries Institute. The NFI is an industry-funded organization which provides information and services to the fish industry.

NFI director Dr. Roy Martin considered MSU for the grant following a symposium on underutilized freshwater fish species conducted at the university last summer. During the symposium, about 65 university researchers, government representatives, fish producers and processors and others in related fields met to enumerate the problems of harvesting, processing and marketing underused freshwater fish species.

"This project will focus on technical problems concerning the type of packaging used for various kinds of fish," says Dr. Reynolds.

South doesn't really want to bid four spades. On the other hand, it would be sheer cowardice to pass so he bids it.

North really should pass, but he likes his hand and suspects skulduggery by the opposition. He Blackwoods his way to six.

There is no play for six. South has to lose a club and the ace of diamonds, and will probably lose a trick to the queen of trumps.

Of course, North and South might get to that same slam after a pass by West. North would open one diamond; South would respond one spade and North might head for the stratosphere.

Bridgman Board Names Architect For New School

BRIDGMAN — Daverman Associates, Grand Rapids, was named by the Bridgman school board last night as the architectural firm for a proposed new middle school here.

The vote naming the Grand Rapids firm, architect for the present high school and the district's swimming pool, came after an executive session of the board. Dr. David Lechner, superintendent, said that the firm's fee will be established at a later date.

At its Sept. 8 meeting, the board voted to study and to offer to school district voters a bond issue to finance construction of a new building to replace the Reed middle school.

Lechner reported that he felt the district could probably build a $2.2 million middle school without increasing the district's tax levy. No date for the vote has been set.

Lechner said that the board also discussed the possible property for the proposed new school, but no action was taken after the executive session ended.

The board set a special session for Monday, Nov. 24, at 7:30 p.m. to again discuss the possible purchase of property for the school.

In other areas, the board accepted the lowest of three bids for two new school bus bodies, but delayed action on acceptance of bids for bus chassis. Awarded the body bid was McFadden corporation, for two Wayne school bus bodies at a cost of $6,985 each.

The board instructed Lechner to attempt to sell outright one bus offered for trade-in when bids were sought. If Lechner can not sell the bus for the same amount or more than the $1,950 offered by McFadden for the bus, the board said it would be traded to the firm.

Two Bridgman dealers, Don Lellow Chevrolet, and Ed Siemon Ford, were asked by the board to resubmit bids for the bus chassis at the Nov. 24 session.

The board voted to join a group of 35 other Michigan school districts with the highest state equalized valuation. Lechner, who said Bridgman leads the group with $215,000 SEV per student, reported the group was formed to protect the "local autonomy" of the high SEV school districts, particularly with regards to local financing of their school systems.

Anthony Korican, high school principal, told the board that report cards for high school students only will now be mailed home. In the past, report cards were given to students. Korican added that a newsletter reporting on high school events will accompany each six-week report card.

The board approved a resolution naming the community swimming pool coordinator, Stanley Markavitch, as the coordinator for the district's tennis court-ice rink. Markavitch will supervise ice skating activities on the converted tennis courts between Dec. 1 and March 28.

The board received a letter from Chalmers Ackerman, the Bridgman city attorney, stating that while the city police department could enforce traffic ordinances on school property, state law does not allow the department to enforce littering and alcohol-related ordinances. At its Oct. 14 meeting, the board approved a resolution that would allow the city to prosecute ordinance violators, pending approval from Ackerman.

WATERLIET TOWNSHIP

Application Made For Study Grant

WATERLIET — An application for a federal grant of $5,000 to study future sewer line expansion in Waterliet township and the engineering firm to administer the program were approved by the township board last night.

The firm of Wightman & Associates of St. Joseph was hired to be consulting engineers for the project and to file for Environmental Protection Agency grant to study existing sewer lines in the township and projections for future needs.

The township will apply for the grant jointly with Waterliet city and Coloma city and township. The $5,000 portion of the grant will be used only for Waterliet township. Each of the other municipalities will have an additional amount included.

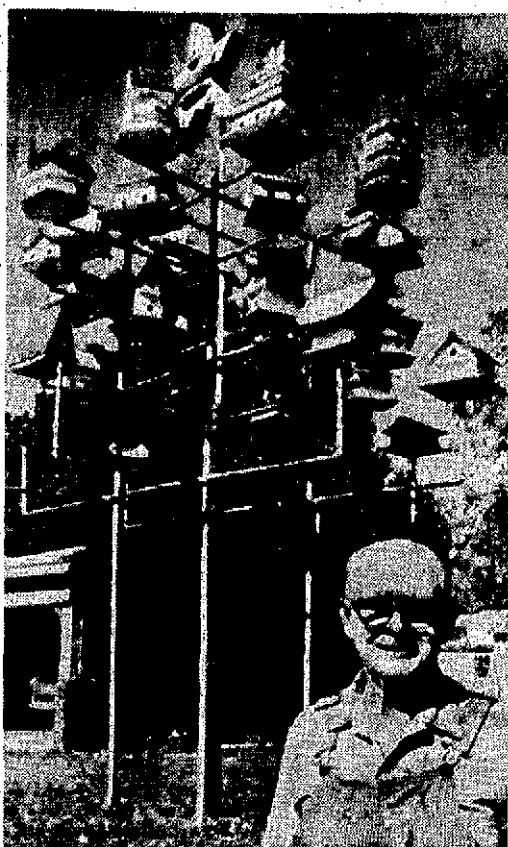

In other areas, the board voted to charge a three percent penalty fee for late payments of 1975 property taxes. The late fee will apply if taxes aren't paid by Feb. 16, 1976.

The board again retained the auditing firm of Cooper & Lybrand of Niles to audit the township's books. Township trustee Larry Strouse reported the fire board is reviewing two low bids on a new fire truck to serve the township and city. No actual purchase price or date of purchase has been determined.

Winter Threatens Water In Bridgman

BRIDGMAN — Bridgman city commission was informed last night that the city's main water line from Lake Michigan to the water storage tank was in danger of freezing this winter because of soil erosion.

The commission set a meeting with Water Supt. Robert Anderson and representatives from the state board of health, and the U.S. Corps of Engineers for Wednesday morning at 11 to review the problem.

The water line, which runs about 150 feet from the lake to the storage tank, was buried in six to eight feet of sand until erosion uncovered sections of it, exposing it to temperature changes. Commissioner Charles Gilmore warned the commission that the exposed sections of line could freeze during the winter.

The erosion problem was further complicated by the fact that the sand shifts daily and different sections of the line are exposed each day.

In other areas, the commission re-elected Ronald Gelesko mayor and Charles Gilmore mayor pro-tem.

The commission also appointed committees. Gilmore and Alfred Tolas were named to the finance committee; Vernon Stanard and James Bembenek,

No Appeals Filed Against Decatur Township Rezoning

DECATUR — There have been no appeals filed against the Decatur township board rezoning of 20 acres of land proposed as a factory site. Township Supervisor Joseph Miller said last night.

Miller said that the 20-day period during which appeals could have been filed has passed.

The board in October voted to rezone from agriculture to industrial the 20-acre parcel of land on New Swamp road about 1½ miles south of the village.

Some nearby property owners attended the October meeting and objected to the rezoning proposal.

The land is owned by Bernard Kammeraad, who said previously that Ed Smola of Decatur wants to buy the land for a factory site.

Smola wants to build an 80 by 200-foot building in which to manufacture aluminum doors and windows.

In other areas, township officials noted that Miller has been re-elected president of the Van Buren county chapter of the Michigan Townships' association.

The board met last night in order to observe Veterans' Day today. The board normally meets on the second Tuesday night of each month.

Decatur Learns Cost Of Milliken Educational Cuts

DECATUR — If Gov. William Milliken's cuts in state aid to education become law, the Decatur school district will lose about $10,700 in state aid funds, the Decatur school board was told last night.

Milliken has proposed a $47.5 million reduction in state aid to education to help offset what he has said is a possible $300 million state budget deficit.

In other areas, the board approved the purchase of two loop-film projectors and equipment from Norman Camera shop of Kalamazoo for $981.

School officials also announced Thanksgiving vacation for Decatur students will start at the close of classes on Nov. 26 and will end with the resumption of classes on Dec. 1.

Christmas vacation will begin with the close of classes on Dec. 19 and will end with the resumption of classes on Jan. 5.

The board voted to pay for public or private transportation for a hearing student to take classes at a Berrien Springs school.

AT A SMALL cattle grazing area known as the "Cowpens" on Jan. 17, 1781, a force of militiamen and Continentals under Gen. Daniel Morgan defeated British regulars under Lt. Col. Banastre Tarleton. This was a major victory for the American army in the southern theatre of the war, for it bolstered their spirits and gave them the fortitude to carry on the fight. The victory also changed British strategy in the south. In an attempt to suppress the Americans under Greene, Cornwallis began a costly march through North Carolina and Virginia that ultimately led to Yorktown. The World Almanac recalls.

Royalton Adopts Zoning Ordinance

The Royalton township board last night adopted a zoning ordinance, a general development plan and zoning map for the township.

Township Clerk Otto Jasper said the documents were the result of almost six years of work on the part of the planning commission.

The zoning ordinance will go into effect upon publication, he said. It will first be sent to the township attorney for a final review.

The ordinance will allow property to be developed under a planned unit development concept, he said. Present usage of property will not be changed by the ordinance, he said.

The board also agreed to have 200 copies of the ordinance printed. Copies will be available for sale at $6.50 per copy, he said, and will be available from Jasper or the building inspector.

In other areas, the board approved an agreement with Action Ambulance Service, Benton Harbor, to provide ambulance service to the township.

Under the agreement, the board will pay an annual subsidy to the firm not to exceed $1,832, Jasper said. The firm will still charge township residents for use of the ambulance, he said.

The board also agreed to purchase a $35 sponsorship in a book to be published by the Berrien county bicentennial committee.

The board reappointed Mrs. Carol Stockman as deputy treasurer for a one year term. Her husband, Allen, is the township treasurer.

The board authorized payment of $1,000 to the tri-unit fire department.

Bloom'dale Picks New Hours For High Schoolers

BLOOMINGDALE — The Bloomingdale school board last night adopted a new schedule for high school students which will go into effect Jan. 1.

The schedule for middle school students, who attend classes in the high school building each afternoon, was left unchanged.

The new schedule calls for a five-period day instead of the present six periods. Each period under the new schedule will be 45 minutes long and will meet daily. The present floating period will be dropped.

Passing time between periods will be 5 minutes and the 10 minute nutrition break in mid-morning will be retained. The new schedule will require a starting time of 7:20 a.m. rather than the present 7:30 a.m.

The schedule adopted was the recommendation of a seven-member committee which studied scheduling for the past six months. Headed by Stanley Bushouse, high school principal, the committee was made up of three students, a board member, a teacher and an adult member of the community.

In other business, the board adopted two changes to the school bus discipline policy.

Under the changes, if a student is cited for misbehaving on a bus for the second time, he will be suspended from riding the bus for one to three days instead of nine days.

The other change will allow parents to show cause on why their child should not be suspended from using the bus for the remainder of the semester when the child is cited for misbehaving a third time.

The board also agreed to allow high school students to ride spectator buses for free instead of being charged. The students will only be charged for tickets to the athletic event. The change takes effect immediately.

Bushouse noted that about 30 juniors from the high school will be attending the Van Buren county skill center after the first of the year.

The board agreed to pay mailing charges for having the Van Buren county Advertiser mailed to school district residents in the Pullman area. The weekly publication carries minutes of board meetings and school notices, but at present is not delivered in the Pullman area, board members said.

Cost was estimated at $35 to $40 for each mailing.

The next school board meeting will be held at Bloomingdale high school on Dec. 8 at 8 p.m.

Bangor Looks To Yule Season

BANGOR — The Christmas season dominated activities of the Bangor city council last night.

The council voted to allow free parking during the Christmas season, buy a trophy to present at the Christmas parade, and ask state permission to hang Christmas lights on the main state road through the city.

The council voted to cover parking meters in the downtown area from Dec. 13 to Jan. 3 to encourage shopping and voted to purchase a trophy to give to the best float in the Dec. 20 Christmas parade.

The council also directed Earl Perry, public works director, to ask the state permission to hang Christmas lights along the main street, M-43.

In other areas, the council authorized Clerk Mrs. Norma Sutherby to write a letter asking the school board to share the cost of a new $30,000 water main near school property.

Bigger Role For Betty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's political advisers are about to suggest a bigger 1976 campaign role for Betty Ford than originally had been anticipated. The First Lady, whose outspoken comments originally were viewed with trepidation even by the President, is now proving to be a heroine in the public opinion polls. One of the President's top-ranking White House aides confides that "from the polls we've seen, the conclusion is that Betty and the kids are a distinct plus for the President."

Gobles Board Adopts Policy On Smoking

GOBLES — The Gobles school board last night adopted a policy for disciplining athletes caught smoking.

Under the policy, a first offense will bring a suspension from 12 per cent of athletic activities, extra duties and required apology to teammates; a second offense will bring suspension from the sport for that season; and a third offense will bring a calendar year suspension from all sports.

The measure passed by a 5 to 1 vote. Mrs. Mary Sutherby voted against it while board members, Clyde Crawford, David Evans, Mrs. Linda Hurst, Richard Markus and Karl Blaha were in favor of the proposal. Carl Gilbert was absent.

In other areas, the board delayed action on a general policy for cheerleaders. The policy would have established the length of time a cheerleader may serve, rules for attendance at practice, and rules for selection. A committee of board members was appointed to meet with Miss Robin Foster, cheerleader coach, and prepare a revised policy for board action.

The board delayed action on a request for new uniforms for the seventh and eighth grade basketball teams. Junior high officials estimated the cost for the uniforms at about $500.

Board members indicated they were reluctant to spend that much money for new uniforms, and they asked that some students attend the next board meeting wearing their present uniforms so the board can determine their condition.

Supt. Guy Laversee told the board he had been notified that

Disputes Stall SALT Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stagnation of U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms talks results from an untested American missile and a relatively short-range Russian bomber. According to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Russian inflexibility has brought to a stop the efforts to sign a new strategic arms limitation treaty — SALT — that limits offensive nuclear weapons. He told a news conference Monday that only 10 per cent of the SALT negotiating process is incomplete, but the margin has separated the two superpowers for months. Recent developments show no improvement.

Buchanan Adopts Ambulance Pact

BUCHANAN — Buchanan city commission last night approved formation of the Southwestern Michigan Community Ambulance service.

Bertrand, Buchanan, and Niles townships have already approved the articles of incorporation, and Niles city was to approve them last night, leaving Howard township as the only governmental unit yet to act on the proposal.

The commission also reelected Joseph Bachmann as mayor for his sixth year. Bachmann recently won reelection to the commission. Richard Gault was reelected mayor pro-tem.

An ambulance committee, composed of representatives of the governmental units, has been negotiating with Robert Wilson, owner of Gold Crown Ambulance service, and other private firms to set up an interim service until a long range solution is found.

Wilson previously had set Nov. 17, as a deadline for stopping ambulance service to the units, because he has $40,000 in uncollected bills.

Under the articles of incorporation, the units can contract for emergency ambulance service, set up their own or may allow one member to provide ambulance service to the remaining units on a contract basis.

In other areas, the commission gave initial approval to a fiscal 1976-77 community development plan and a preliminary application for $300,000 in federal funds to finance it.

The commission received a $118,000 community development grant for fiscal 1975-76 from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development earlier this fall.

The new proposed grant would be used for low interest loans to rehabilitate substandard houses, plus street paving and drain installation on the city's northeast side, if approved by HUD.

A city traffic control order was adopted establishing a loading zone on the south side of East Chicago street, between Days avenue and the driveway behind Pinlock Machine shop and a no parking zone on the north side of East Chicago street, from Days avenue to the alley.

A request from the city planning commission for $5,000 to have a study made for a master plan for the downtown business area was also approved by the commission. Ray Enfield, city planning commission consultant will do the study.

Upon the recommendation of City Attorney B.R. Desenberg, the commission will apply to the Department of Natural Resources for permission to purchase two vacant properties. One is a double lot on Fulton street and the other is a single lot on Miller street.

Purchase Of 5 Buses Approved At River Valley

THREE OAKS — River Valley school board last night approved purchase of five new 68-passenger school buses at a total cost of $80,650.

The bus bodies will be purchased from McFadden corporation, Lansing, at a cost of $6,555 each. Allied Truck company was low bidder on the bodies at $6,043, but the board selected McFadden corporation's bid on the basis of availability of replacement parts.

The bus chassis will be purchased from Jim Hall Ford of Three Oaks, low bidder at $9,575 each. There were two other bids received on the chassis.

In other areas, the board upon the recommendation of Supt. Dr. Charles Williams, approved the part-time position of a high school choir director. The position will be for one hour a day for the remainder of the school year. Estimated cost to the district will be between $1,300 and $1,500, Supt. Williams said.

Mrs. Thomas Shook and Mrs. Lena Abrahamson, Chikaming township clerk, made an official presentation of the four new tennis courts constructed this past summer to the school district. The land on which the courts were built, adjacent to the high school, was deeded to the township, but has now been returned to the school district.

Supt. Williams said Governor Milliken's proposed state education budget cut would mean a loss of $58,000 to the River Valley school district, if approved as is by the legislature.

James Schreiber, board member, was appointed to represent the board on a special task force composed of other representatives from neighboring school districts to discuss common problems.

Royalton Adopts Zoning Ordinance

The Royalton township board last night adopted a zoning ordinance, a general development plan and zoning map for the township.

Township Clerk Otto Jasper said the documents were the result of almost six years of work on the part of the planning commission.

The zoning ordinance will go into effect upon publication, he said. It will first be sent to the township attorney for a final review.

The ordinance will allow property to be developed under a planned unit development concept, he said. Present usage of property will not be changed by the ordinance, he said.

The board also agreed to have 200 copies of the ordinance printed. Copies will be available for sale at $6.50 per copy, he said, and will be available from Jasper or the building inspector.

In other areas, the board approved an agreement with Action Ambulance Service, Benton Harbor, to provide ambulance service to the township.

Under the agreement, the board will pay an annual subsidy to the firm not to exceed $1,832, Jasper said. The firm will still charge township residents for use of the ambulance, he said.

The board also agreed to purchase a $35 sponsorship in a book to be published by the Berrien county bicentennial committee.

The board reappointed Mrs. Carol Stockman as deputy treasurer for a one year term. Her husband, Allen, is the township treasurer.

Bloom'dale Picks New Hours For High Schoolers

BLOOMINGDALE — The Bloomingdale school board last night adopted a new schedule for high school students which will go into effect Jan. 1.

The schedule for middle school students, who attend classes in the high school building each afternoon, was left unchanged.

The new schedule calls for a five-period day instead of the present six periods. Each period under the new schedule will be 65 minutes long and will meet daily. The present floating period will be dropped.

Passing time between periods will be 5 minutes and the 10 minute nutrition break in mid-morning will be retained. The new schedule will require a starting time of 7:20 a.m. rather than the present 7:30 a.m.

The schedule adopted was the recommendation of a seven-member committee which studied scheduling for the past six months. Headed by Stanley Bushouse, high school principal, the committee was made up of three students, a board member, a teacher and an adult member of the community.

In other business, the board adopted two changes to the school bus discipline policy.

Under the changes, if a student is cited for misbehaving

on a bus for the second time, he will be suspended from riding the bus for one to three days instead of nine days.

The other change will allow parents to show cause on why their child should not be suspended from using the bus for the remainder of the semester when the child is cited for misbehaving a third time.

The board also agreed to allow high school students to ride spectator buses for free instead of being charged. The students will only be charged for tickets to the athletic event. The change takes effect immediately.

Bushouse noted that about 30 juniors from the high school will be attending the Van Buren county skill center after the first of the year.

The board agreed to pay mailing charges for having the Van Buren county Advertiser mailed to school district residents in the Pullman area. The weekly publication carries minutes of board meetings and school notices, but at present is not delivered in the Pullman area, board members said.

Cost was estimated at $35 to $40 for each mailing.

The next school board meeting will be held at Bloomingdale high school on Dec. 8 at 8 p.m.

Coloma Aid Loss Could Hit $66,000

COLOMA — The Coloma school board was informed last night that a $66,000 cut in the district's anticipated revenue for the 1975-76 operating budget was possible if Gov. William Milliken's $47.5 million cut in state aid to schools is carried out.

Supt. William Barrett reported to the board that estimated figures showed the district will suffer initial cuts of $42,438, with an additional $21,000 being chopped off if the state's feeding program cuts materialize.

Another $5,000 was slated to be taken from the driver education program.

Totally, said Barrett, the district could lose $66,000 from the district's $3,492,086 total income for the school year. The total combines state, local and other sources.

The district's expenditures are pegged at $3,526,096.

According to Barrett, the proposed cuts in state aid could be made up from the district's cash balance or by reducing the district's operating expenses.

In a related area, the board voted to borrow $220,000 at 4.5 per cent interest from the State Bank of Coloma for 90 days to meet operating costs for the district until state aid payments and tax monies are received.

Kay Erickson, school board president, reported this was the first time in 10 years the district had to borrow money in order to operate.

In other areas, the board declined to sell a 40 by 285 foot parcel of property to Roger Carter for $100.

The property, located to the east of Carter's residence on

Two Coloma Township Officials Quit Added Jobs

COLOMA — Coloma township board last night accepted two resignations from township posts and named replacements.

Township Clerk John Ferris resigned his position as a member of the township zoning board of appeals, a post he has held since 1964, and Treasurer Robert Palmer resigned his position as a member of the township planning commission.

Ferris said he has been on the board long enough and wanted someone else to serve on the board.

Named to the zoning board of appeals was Trustee John McCreary.

Palmer said he was resigning from the planning commission because he served on the county planning commission and felt he was "wearing two hats." He also said that William Kennedy, now a township trustee, was also on the commission and that one township representative was enough.

Appointed to the planning commission, to fill Palmer's seat, was Mark Kellogg, the township's plumbing inspector.

The board approved the transfer of a resort class C liquor license from Richard W. Ignatz and Kenneth Patzkowski to Arthur C. and Ferne A. Betz.

Sen. Scott's Daughter Is Guilty

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Marian Concannon, daughter of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania has pleaded guilty in Bucks County Common Pleas Court to four charges of selling narcotics.

Judge Edmund V. Ludwig deferred sentencing on Monday, pending a psychiatric examination.

Mrs. Concannon, 41, was arrested at her home on July 30 and accused of selling an ounce of hashish to a state narcotics agent for $100.

She told the court she got the hashish from an employee at a local newspaper where she worked as a driver in the circulation department.

She said she had never used hashish, but had sampled marijuana and LSD.

A divorced mother of eight, Mrs. Concannon described drugs as "harmful" and said she wanted "to see the people selling them arrested."

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

THE BRITISH Governor of Massachusetts, Gen. Thomas Gage, knew many of the colonies in 1775 were intensely suspicious of the argumentative, fanatically inclined New Englanders. He did everything in his power to project a peacemakers' image and avoid an outbreak of hostilities. Gage severely disciplined any of his troops found guilty of abusing the inhabitants and tried, with considerable skill, to isolate the radicals from the moderates. If Gage had been permitted to pursue his policy for another three to four months, it is believed that the war might not have begun. The World Almanac notes.

Two Coloma Township Officials Quit Added Jobs

A motion by Ferris to pay the members the usual hourly rate paid to volunteer firemen failed to get support and further action was postponed until a fire committee can meet with Coloma Fire Chief Leonard Dolezan.

Bainbridge Planners OK Zoning Ordinance

Bainbridge township planning commission last night recommended adoption of the revised township zoning ordinance following 18 months work on the document.

Dale Kreitzer, commission secretary, said the recommendation will be forwarded to the Berrien county planning commission for review and then forwarded to the Bainbridge township board.

Work on revising the township's ordinances started in March, 1974.

In other areas, the commission tabled a request from Herbert Reimers to rezone 50 acres from agricultural to mobile home subdivision use until Dec. 8.

Reimers told the commission he proposes to add 30 lots to the Meadowbrook Park mobile home subdivision in a southerly direction. The subdivision is located near the intersection of Meadowbrook and Park roads.

U.S. Corn Crop Exceeds Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1975 corn harvest is turning out better than expected, and the Agriculture Department says there will be a little more grain to serve as a cushion against next year's food price increases and rising foreign demand.

As of Nov. 1, the corn harvest, now rapidly drawing to a close, was estimated at a record of slightly more than 5.8 billion bushels, the Agriculture Department said Monday. That is an increase of 1 per cent, or 60 million bushels, over last month's estimate.

Coloma Aid Loss Could Hit $66,000

COLOMA — The Coloma school board was informed last night that a $66,000 cut in the district's anticipated revenue for the 1975-76 operating budget was possible if Gov. William Milliken's $47.5 million cut in state aid to schools is carried out.

Supt. William Barrett reported to the board that estimated figures showed the district will suffer initial cuts of $42,438, with an additional $21,000 being chopped off if the state's reading program cuts materialize.

Another $5,000 was slated to be taken from the driver education program.

Totally, said Barrett, the district could lose $66,000 from the district's $3,492,085 total income for the school year. The total combines state, local and other sources.

The district's expenditures are pegged at $3,526,096.

According to Barrett, the proposed cuts in state aid could be made up from the district's cash balance or by reducing the district's operating expenses.

In a related area, the board voted to borrow $220,000 at 4.5 per cent interest from the State Bank of Coloma for 90 days to meet operating costs for the district until state aid payments and tax monies are received.

Kay Erickson, school board president, reported this was the first time in 10 years the district had to borrow money in order to operate.

In other areas, the board declined to sell a 40 by 285 foot parcel of property to Roger Carter for $100.

The property, located to the east of Carter's residence on

Sen. Scott's Daughter Is Guilty

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Marian Concannon, daughter of Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania has pleaded guilty in Bucks County Common Pleas Court to four charges of selling narcotics.

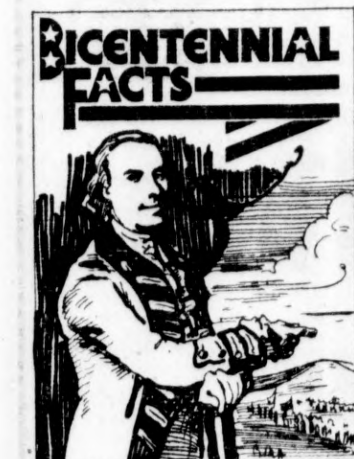

Judge Edmund V. Ludwig deferred sentencing on Monday, pending a psychiatric examination.

Mrs. Concannon, 41, was arrested at her home on July 30 and accused of selling an ounce of hashish to a state narcotics agent for $100.

She told the court she got the hashish from an employee at a local newspaper where she worked as a driver in the circulation department.

She said she had never used hashish, but had sampled marijuana and LSD.

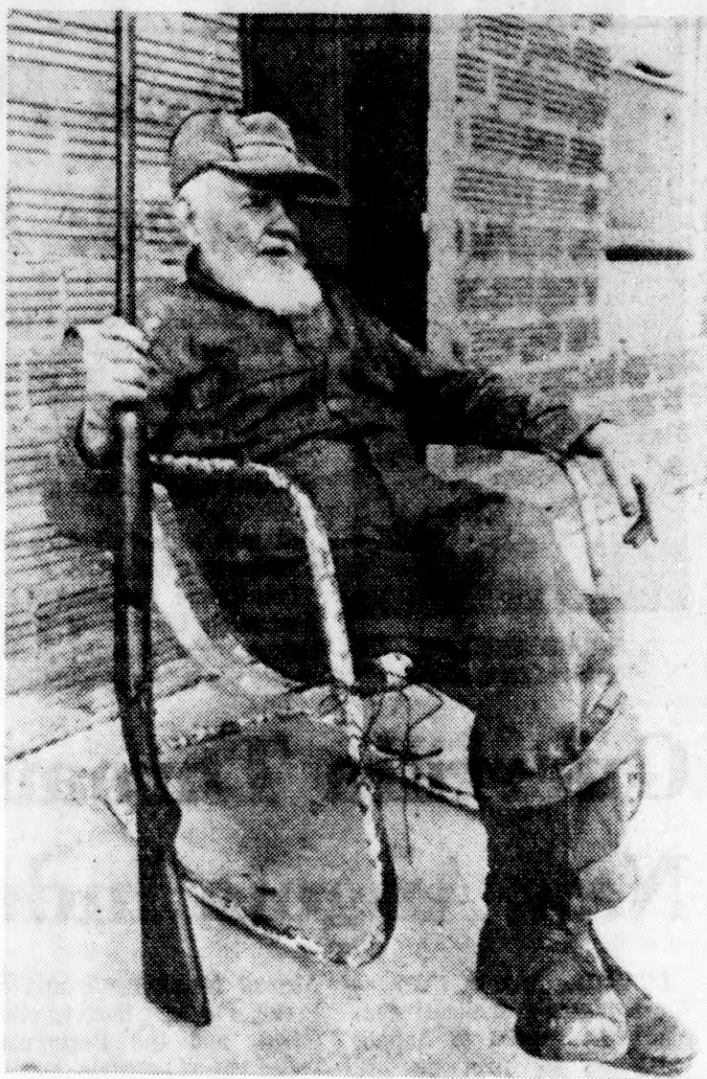

A divorced mother of eight, Mrs. Concannon described drugs as "harmful" and said she wanted "to see the people selling them arrested."

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

THE BRITISH Governor of Massachusetts, Gen. Thomas Gage, knew many of the colonies in 1775 were intensely suspicious of the argumentative, fanatically inclined New Englanders. He did everything in his power to project a peacemakers' image and avoid an outbreak of hostilities. Gage severely disciplined any of his troops found guilty of abusing the inhabitants and tried, with considerable skill, to isolate the radicals from the moderates. If Gage had been permitted to pursue his policy for another three to four months, it is believed that the war might not have begun. The World Almanac notes.

Two Coloma Township Officials Quit Added Jobs

COLOMA — Coloma township board last night accepted two resignations from township posts and named replacements.

Township Clerk John Ferris resigned his position as a member of the township zoning board of appeals, a post he has held since 1954, and Treasurer Robert Palmer resigned his position as a member of the township planning commission.

Ferris said he has been on the board long enough and wanted someone else to serve on the board.

Named to the zoning board of appeals was Trustee John McCrery.

Palmer said he was resigning from the planning commission because he served on the county planning commission and felt he was "wearing two hats." He also said that William Kennedy, now a township trustee, was also on the commission and that one township representative was enough.

Appointed to the planning commission, to fill Palmer's seat, was Mark Kellogg, the township's plumbing inspector.

The board approved the transfer of a resort class C liquor license from Richard W. Ignatz and Kenneth Patzkowski to Arthur C. and Ferne A. Betz.

The board tabled action on paying six auxiliary members of the Coloma volunteer fire department until their December meeting.

A motion by Ferris to pay the members the usual hourly rate paid to volunteer firemen failed to get support and further action was postponed until a fire committee can meet with Coloma Fire Chief Leonard Dolezan.

Bainbridge Planners OK Zoning Ordinance

Bainbridge township planning commission last night recommended adoption of the revised township zoning ordinance following 19 months work on the document.

Dale Kreitner, commission secretary, said the recommendation will be forwarded to the Berrien county planning commission for review and then forwarded to the Bainbridge township board.

Work on revising the township's ordinances started in March, 1974.

In other areas, the commission tabled a request from Herbert Reimers to rezone 50 acres from agricultural to mobile home subdivision use until Dec. 8.

Reimers told the commission he proposes to add 30 lots to the Meadowbrook Park mobile home subdivision in a southerly direction. The subdivision is located near the intersection of Meadowbrook and Park roads.

Randall's appointments included the formation of a new drain committee, to be headed by Mrs. Noack with Wooley and Hammond to serve as members.

The commission approved paying six auxiliary firemen the usual hourly rate paid volunteer firemen responding to fire calls in the city. Previously, the members were not paid.

U.S. Corn Crop Exceeds Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1975 corn harvest is turning out better than expected, and the Agriculture Department says there will be a little more grain to serve as a cushion against next year's food price increases and rising foreign demand.

As of Nov. 1, the corn harvest, now rapidly drawing to a close, was estimated at a record of slightly more than 5.8 billion bushels, the Agriculture Department said Monday. That is an increase of 1 per cent, or 66 million bushels, over last month's estimate.

HIGHER TAXES FOR NYC Carey Proposes New Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey has stitched together a complex new proposal — involving new state and city taxes, and help from banks and the federal government — to keep New York City from default and stabilize the state's own shaky finances.

New York City residents, who already have the highest sales taxes in the country, would be faced with a one-cent sales tax increase, to nine cents on the dollar.

As state officials worked on the plan Monday, Deputy White House Press Secretary William Greener repeated President Ford's promise to veto what the President has termed a "bail-out" of New York City.

But Greener referred to loan guarantee legislation before Congress "as presently drawn." The new Carey plan would reduce the minimum $4 billion in federal loan guarantees previously sought by the city to $1.5 billion to $2 billion.

To make up the difference, the plan would require heavy support from banks, other investors and taxpayers.

The cash-stricken city once again avoided default Monday, meeting $270.7 million in obligations with funds from various sources, including the sale of state-backed bonds to city pension funds and to the State Insurance Fund.

Ford, meanwhile, met with five Senate Democratic leaders to discuss a Senate proposal to provide $4 billion in federal loan guarantees.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said Ford indicated he wanted to do everything possible to help the city but that he still is opposed to federal loan guarantees.

The House Ways and Means Committee begins consideration today of a bill to provide the city with $7 billion in loan guarantees. Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., said he expects the House to vote on the bill next Monday. He said chances for passage look more favorable than a week ago.

Details of the new Carey plan have not been made public, but The Associated Press learned it includes a one-cent increase in the city sales tax. The current city sales tax is 4 per cent, which combines with a state sales tax of 4 per cent to add 8 cents to the cost of purchasing $1 worth of most goods in the city.

The one-cent increase in the city would cost the average resident an estimated $30 a year and raise $235 million.

In addition, state taxes on corporations and banks would be raised by $315 million this fiscal year, through a 20 per cent surcharge on the corporate franchise tax and the extension to upstate banks of a tax increase imposed on the city banks earlier this year.

The state taxes would not be used to aid the city, but instead to help close a state budget deficit which Carey estimates at $600 million and state Senate Republicans say is about $330 million.

The new state and city taxes would be the capstone of a complicated scheme to combine private funds with federally guaranteed loans to keep the city from default after Dec. 1, when the state's current $2.3 billion financing plan runs out.

Carey's proposal would deal with the $4 billion the city must borrow between Dec. 1 and the end of its current fiscal year on June 30 by splitting the money-raising in half.

Ausie Prime Minister Fired; Dockmen Strike

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Strikes hit Australia's waterfronts today in protest against Governor-General Sir John Kerr's unprecedented dismissal of Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and his Labor government.

Seaman walked off ships and dock workers quit work.

Bob Hawke, president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions, said violence in the streets was a "real possibility."

He appealed to the unions for restraint.

Hundreds of people appeared outside Parliament House, chanting, "We want Gough! We want Gough!" Some of them beat angrily on the automobile of conservative opposition leader Malcolm Fraser, who was appointed caretaker prime minister by Kerr until a general election can be held.

The business community, which for months has been calling for an end to the Labor government, was jubilant. The Sydney Stock Exchange's index rose 17.32 points to a high for the year of 419.57.

It was the first time a governor-general had fired a prime minister in the 75 years since the formation of the Australian Commonwealth. Kerr's action compounded a constitutional crisis which began 28 days ago with the refusal of the opposition majority in the upper house of Parliament to approve the Labor government's budget. That, too, was a first in Australian history.

Fraser, a wealthy 45-year-old farmer, had said his coalition of Liberal and Country parties would not let appropriation bills get through the Senate unless Whitlam agreed to resign so that a new Parliament could be elected. But a Labor defeat was considered certain because of the recession and a financial scandal that forced the resignation of two cabinet members.

Whitlam rejected Fraser's demand, saying he still had a majority in the House of Representatives. He argued that under the British parliamentary system, only the lower house determines the government, and the refusal of the upper house to vote money for the government was unconstitutional.

In an effort to win a majority in the Senate, Whitlam went to the governor-general today to ask him to order an election for half the members of the upper house. Kerr instead told him he was withdrawing his authority as prime minister and asking Fraser to form a caretaker government.

Whitlam then stood up in the House of Representatives and moved a motion of no confidence in Fraser, the acting prime minister. The Labor party, which has a 69-61 margin in the house, won the vote.

Normally this would have meant Fraser's resignation and a request by the governor-general to Whitlam to form a government.

Guerrilla Threats Mark New Angola Independence

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Rival guerrilla armies threatened the capital of Angola today on its first day of independence following the withdrawal of Portugal from its last African colony.

Ending five centuries of colonial rule, the last Portuguese troops sailed for Lisbon Monday night, leaving Luanda and central Angola under control of the Soviet-backed MPLA, the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

Troops of the rival FNLA, or National Front, which is supported by China and Zaire, were reported 12 miles north of the city. And a column of some 1,500 troops of UNITA, the pro-Western National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, and of the FNLA were reported 50 miles to the south of the city.

It was believed that the two advancing forces planned to attack Luanda during MPLA independence ceremonies. The FNLA said 17 of its "suicide squads" had slipped into the city to disrupt the celebrations.

The three nationalist movements have been battling each other all year for control of the big, potentially rich territory in southwest Africa. Repeated attempts by other African governments and by Portugal to bring them together failed, and the Portuguese pulled out on schedule, leaving them to fight it out among themselves.

The FNLA now controls the northern part of the country; the MPLA has the center and Luanda, while UNITA has taken the southern half with the help of the FNLA. On Monday all three factions issued separate declarations of Angolan independence.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a news conference in Washington that the United States "will not stand still for any hegemonial aspirations" on the part of the Kremlin in Angola.

Reports reaching Luanda said the FNLA mortared the Luanda water supply at Quifangondo, 12 miles north of the capital. Officials said the water plant would be out for about a week. They said less than a day's reserves remained.

The FNLA claimed that the combined force on the southern front took the town of Porto Amboim from the MPLA, then headed for Barra do Quanza. The force is believed to have captured the towns of Novo Rodondo, Sa da Bandeira, Mocimede, Benguela and Lobito in the past two weeks.

The MPLA was reported to have launched a counterattack on the FNLA supply line from Cammona in the north.

Labor Pushing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor is making a strong effort to win approval of a controversial bill that would give individual unions the power to close down entire construction sites in disputes with subcontractors. The measure, passed by the House in July, has touched off a Senate filibuster, but backers of the measure hope to invoke cloture on a vote today to get the bill to the Senate floor for consideration. The bill, which would in effect overrule a 1951 Supreme Court decision, would allow building trades involved in disputes to picket an entire construction site and not just the subcontractor involved in the dispute. The high court ruled 25 years ago that such action constituted an illegal secondary boycott.

Milliken Cuts Criticized

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's welfare department should overhaul procedures to cut costs rather than eliminate direct aid to the needy, says the Michigan Welfare Reform Coalition.

The coalition, composed of many influential statewide groups, criticized Gov. William Milliken's plan to cut 5 per cent from Aid to Dependent Children grants and 6 per cent from general assistance programs. Milliken wants to reduce welfare costs by $37 million to help balance the state budget.

The coalition on Monday presented the House and Senate appropriations committees a plan of its own, which it says also will reduce spending by $37 million but without hurting the needy.

The coalition said programs and services now funded largely by the state should be altered to avoid duplication and take advantage of other money.

For example, the state should try to enroll drug addicts and alcoholics in federal Social Security programs as disabled citizens, rather than in state-funded programs, the coalition said.

And, a loophole should be closed that now lets the state pay Medicaid for persons with access to third-party payment sources, the coalition said.

The coalition quarreled with Milliken's estimate of an average monthly ADC caseload of 211,000, saying the figure should be 205,000. The coalition also said Milliken's estimate of 72,000 general assistance cases is high and should be closer to 65,000.

The coalition said disabled children in ADC families with at least one other non-disabled child are eligible for increased assistance under federal Supplemental Security Income Program.

State welfare officials also should increase services provided by local communities and private agencies and decrease more costly direct provision of the services, the coalition said.

The coalition also urged the state to implement "strict administrative procedures" to cut bureaucratic waste.

Coalition members include the state AFL-CIO, United Auto Workers, Michigan League of Women Voters, the state Catholic Conference and Michigan Council of Churches and the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit.

The coalition quarreled with Milliken's estimate of an average monthly ADC caseload of 211,000, saying the figure should be 205,000. The coalition also said Milliken's estimate of 72,000 general assistance cases is high and should be closer to 65,000.

The coalition said disabled

children in ADC families with at least one other non-disabled child are eligible for increased assistance under federal Supplemental Security Income Program.

State welfare officials also should increase services provided by local communities and private agencies and decrease more costly direct provision of the services, the coalition said.

The coalition also urged the state to implement "strict administrative procedures" to cut bureaucratic waste.

Coalition members include the state AFL-CIO, United Auto Workers, Michigan League of Women Voters, the state Catholic Conference and Michigan Council of Churches and the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit.

"I just got a loan. And I've still got time for lunch."

Just say the word "loan" and one of the first things that comes to mind is spending a lot of time. Filling out forms. Answering questions. Sign this. Sign that.

Credit unions are a little different. They understand people and their needs. And, most are located close to where you work, worship or live—they're convenient. And, since time is money, you know what that means.

When you need a loan to buy a car, boat, or camper, dress up the house, take a vacation or for any other good reason—check with the credit union.

When you belong to a credit union, you're a member. And that's even better than being a customer.

"CIDER"

Have you ever wondered where John Chapman, or Johnny Appleseed as he is better known to everyone, got his apple seeds?

He collected seeds from cider mills. You see, apple seeds were first brought to America by the English colonists not long after the pilgrims landed.

The apples were eaten raw or baked into pies. But, most important, the colonists used apples for cider. In fact, they used pouches and pears for cider also.

You're probably thinking that milk would be much more important than cider. Well, back then there wasn't such a thing as pasteurization. Therefore, milk could easily become contaminated and be a disease carrier.

Cider was cheap and plentiful. The apples were pressed for juice by going through a mill which chopped them. If the juice fermented long enough, you had an intoxicating drink! Fermented juice contained one-half to eight per cent alcohol.

Believe it or not, some some apple trees were cut down by temperance workers who were fighting the evils of cider or applejack!

In fact, William Henry Harrison was criticized in some sober circles because of the bar cider that followed during his campaign for the presidency.

Today the cider in mills, unless sold to a distiller, is pasteurized to keep it from fermenting, and therefore, becomes an alcoholic beverage. So you see, what you think is apple cider really isn't cider at all. It's apple juice!

The next time you're in Schneck's remember our apple juice is contained, not fermented!

and was lost visually as well. It has not been located since.

The Coast Guard vessel Woodrush, a 180-foot buoy tender, was steaming to the area from Duluth, Minn., about 400 miles away. One official said it might take as long as 16 hours for the Woodrush to reach the area.

Two Coast Guard ships in the area — the Naugatuck in Sault Ste. Marie and the Mackinac in Cheboygan, 74 miles from Sault Ste. Marie, — were disabled for repairs. A Coast Guard official said the Naugatuck's 20 crew members were working through the night to repair the ship, a 110-foot harbor tug, so it could render assistance.

Lt. William Holt of the Sault

Ste. Marie Coast Guard station said about 110 people, including the crews of the Anderson and the Ford, were helping in the search for the Fitzgerald.

The ship is owned by the Ogilby-Norton Co. of Cleveland, Ohio. Edward Jacobsen, the firm's marine superintendent, was enroute to the Upper Peninsula early today.

The ship was chartered by Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee, Wis., and operated by the Columbia Transportation Division, according to the Coast Guard.

The Fitzgerald left Silver Bay, Minn., on Sunday the Coast Guard said, bound for Detroit with a 26,216-ton load of Taconite iron pellets.

Wild Winds Close Two State Bridges

Wild November winds caused the Mackinac bridge to be closed for the first time in more than three years because of weather conditions, Monday afternoon.

Also closed was the International bridge at Sault Ste. Marie.

The closings were mandated by wind gusting up to 85 miles an hour.

Authorities said before the closings, a semitrailer overturned on the Big Mac and a camper blew over on the International bridge. No injuries were reported.

The Big Mac, linking Michigan's lower and upper peninsulas, was first opened to traffic in 1957. The structure has remained unscathed from sweeping winds and high waves over the Straits of Mackinac, and from being rammed by a freighter several years ago.

Over the Great Lakes, the current storm blew water from the western shores, lowering water levels significantly, it was reported.

The National Weather Service issued a warning to boats to avoid the lower Detroit river and the shallows at the west end of Lake Erie, because of low water levels. That warning was rescinded early today.

The Weather Service expected winds to slow as the storm moved into Canada.

Watervliet Accepts Low Interest Bid

WATERVLIT — Watervliet school board last night accepted the low bid of First National Bank of Watervliet on a $95,000 loan to be repaid from expected state aid.

Supl. Samuel Gravitt said First National's low bid was 4.25 per cent. The board received four other bids. Gravitt said the money will be borrowed for three months.

In other areas, a group of local residents, calling themselves the "We Care Task Force," made a presentation to the board on how it feels the high school can be improved.

The group, according to Gravitt, feels the school needs a local trustee officer; bells, buzzers or verbal announcements signaling the beginning of class sessions; and a designated smoking area for students who have parental approval to smoke. The board said it would meet with the group in the near future to discuss the group's suggestions.

The board approved a policy change allowing school groups or clubs to use the system's buses for non-educational trips, providing the group or club pays the entire cost, and the trip is approved by the board.

Bill Griffin, board president, said he will appoint a committee to look into the potential purchase of new high school marching band uniforms. Approximately 100 uniforms would be needed, costing an estimated $12,500 to $15,000.

A request from the high school student council that the board again help pay the cost for sending a student to the Presidential Classroom seminar in Washington, D.C., was approved. A $100 donation was granted.

The board approved the first reading of a job description for a secretary-receptionist for the school system.

Gravitt said Governor Milliken's proposed budget cuts, would in effect, cost the school district $30,810, if approved as submitted to the legislature.

Arrest Three More In Benton Robbery

Two persons were arrested and a 16-year-old boy taken into custody Monday night on warrants charging them with the armed robbery of two Benton township men Saturday night.

Booked at the Berrien county jail were Charles Wayne Byars, 17, Beechwood Trailer park, Hartford, and Dewey Wayne McLemore, 28, of 303 Union, Lawton. The juvenile, of Hartford, was lodged at the Berrien county juvenile home pending petitioning to juvenile court A

Watervliet man was arrested earlier in connection with the incident.

According to Berrien Sheriff's Det. Gary Methling, Lester Jones, 48, Box 475, Meadowbrook road, and Howard Welch, 50, of 1345 East Britain avenue, were beaten and robbed of $250, by five men at the Jones home. Jones is listed in "fair" condition at Mercy hospital today. Welch was treated and released from Mercy Saturday night.

Methling said investigation of the robbery indicated the two were allegedly beaten with a baseball bat which was confiscated. Methling reported the arrests were made in Hartford about 8:45 p.m. and one other juvenile is still being sought in connection with the incident. None of the money has been recovered, Methling indicated.

A Watervliet man was arrested early Monday morning in connection with the incident. Nathan Jack Little, 19, was booked on an armed robbery charge after reportedly turning himself in to sheriff's officers.

St. Joe City Approves Contract With Action

St. Joseph city commissioners voted to enter into an agreement, as part of the Community Emergency Service Corp., to subsidize Action ambulance for an amount not to exceed $672.50 per month for three years.

City Manager G.W. (Jerry) Hepler said the contract will not go into effect until all seven members of the corporation have approved it.

Hepler said Benton and St. Joseph townships have approved the contract. As of last night's meeting, Benton Harbor, Lincoln, Sodus and Royalton townships had not approved.

According to Hepler, St. Joseph pays 15 per cent of the total subsidy. Each municipality entering into the corporation contributes to the subsidy on a prorated basis.

Hepler noted, after being questioned by former Mayor Tom Sparks, that excess profits will be used to either reduce the subsidy or to improve the ambulance service.

He said money for the subsidy was included in this year's budget.

Also last night the commissioners voted to accept a low bid of $12,788.32 for four new patrol cars.

The low bid came from Ned Gates Chevrolet, Benton Harbor, and was one of four submitted. All four bids were from Benton Harbor auto dealers.

Commissioner William Gillespie pointed out that the only St. Joseph will be dealer, Wesner Brothers auto sales, did not submit a bid.

City Manager G.W. (Jerry) Hepler said Wesner's is an American Motors Corp. (AMC) dealer and AMC does not make autos with specialized features for police work.

The other three bids were as follows:

—Ashley Ford Sales, Inc., $13,096.

—Rodi Motors, Inc., $13,500.

Hepler said the prices quoted above include trade-ins on four one-year-old patrol cars presently being used by police.

Hepler said money for the purchases was included in this year's budget.

A letter was read by Hepler from Mrs. Sharon Wilson, president of the Concrete Opposition Unlimited, asking once again that a vote on the I-94 penetrator issue be held.

Along with the letter were 12 more signatures added on a petition asking for the vote. The commission took no action on the matter.

In other business last night Commissioner Joseph Hepler reported on the first meeting of the city's financial study committee which he heads. Hepler said Hepler was at the meeting and outlined some potential problem areas which were discussed by the committee, but condition was not certain, although doctors suspected it was due to a combination of alcohol and tranquilizers which she took the night she fell ill.

Quinlan Ponders Appeal Of Ruling

The judge said testimony that Karen on several occasions told family and friends that she would not want to be maintained by "extraordinary means" in case of terminal illness was not persuasive that she would elect to be removed from the respirator.

Karen's statements were made in relation to other persons, not herself, the judge said, adding, "The conversations with her mother and friends were theoretical ones. She was not personally involved. It was not under the solemn and sobering fact that death is a distinct choice."

On the argument that the free exercise of religious beliefs was at stake, Muir also disagreed. He said testimony showed that Karen and the Quinlans, as Roman Catholics, may use or may refuse "extraordinary means to sustain life" without committing a sin. Therefore, he said, the use of the respirator does not interfere with religious belief.

His decision added, "There is a presumption that one chooses to go on living. The presumption is not overcome by the prior statements of Karen Quinlan. Additionally, it is not Karen who asserts her religious belief but her parents."

Armstrong had argued that continued medical treatment for Miss Quinlan amounted to "cruel and unusual punishment," prohibited by the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Muir ruled that study of legal documents defining the amendment "does not support plaintiff here."

Muir said Quinlan "impressed me as a very sincere, moral, ethical and religious person." But the judge said the father's anguish over his daughter's condition would be "continued and magnified" if he were required to concur in the day by day decisions on the future care and treatment of his daughter.

Muir, therefore, appointed Daniel R. Coburn, the attorney who was named to represent Miss Quinlan during the nine-week trial last month, "guardian of her person."

Coburn said he had no desire to change the treatment Karen is now receiving. "I would never make a decision myself — the doctors have the final say." He also said he expected to consult with the Quinlans about any developments in Karen's medical condition.

"If any change in treatment is suggested, I'd go right back to court with an application. 'Can this be done?'"

Armstrong asserted that the family will take part in decisions about Karen's treatment.

Joseph Quinlan said, "We're still going to go to the hospital every day and see our daughter and continue to pray for her."

and was lost visually as well. It has not been located since.

The Coast Guard vessel Woodrush, a 180-foot buoy tender, was steaming to the area from Duluth, Minn., about 400 miles away. One official said it might take as long as 16 hours for the Woodrush to reach the area.

Two Coast Guard ships in the area — the Naugatuck in Sault Ste. Marie and the Mackinac in Cheboygan, 74 miles from Sault Ste. Marie, — were disabled for repairs. A Coast Guard official said the Naugatuck's 20 crew members were working through the night to repair the ship, a 110-foot harbor tug, so it could render assistance.

Lt. William Holt of the Sault

Ste. Marie Coast Guard station said about 110 people, including the crews of the Anderson and the Ford, were helping in the search for the Fitzgerald.

The ship is owned by the Oglebay-Norton Co. of Cleveland, Ohio. Edward Jacobsen, the firm's marine superintendent, was enroute to the Upper Peninsula early today.

The ship was chartered by Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee, Wis., and operated by the Columbia Transportation Division, according to the Coast Guard. The Fitzgerald left Silver Bay, Minn., on Sunday the Coast Guard said, bound for Detroit with a 26,216-ton load of taconite iron pellets.

Wild Winds Close Two State Bridges

Wild November winds caused the Mackinac bridge to be closed for the first time in more than three years because of weather conditions, Monday afternoon.

Also closed was the International bridge at Sault Ste. Marie.

The closings were mandated by wind gusting up to 85 miles an hour.

Authorities said before the closings, a semitrailer overturned on the Big Mac and a camper blew over on the International bridge. No injuries were reported.

The Big Mac, linking Michigan's lower and upper peninsulas, was first opened to traffic in 1957. The structure has remained unscathed from sweeping winds and high waves over the Straits of Mackinac, and from being rammed by a freighter several years ago.

Over the Great Lakes, the current storm blew water from the western shores, lowering water levels significantly, it was reported.

The National Weather Service issued a warning to boats to avoid the lower Detroit river and the shallows at the west end of Lake Erie, because of low water levels. That warning was rescinded early today.

The Weather Service expected winds to slow as the storm moved into Canada.

Watervliet Accepts Low Interest Bid

WATERVLIT — Watervliet school board last night accepted the low bid of First National Bank of Watervliet on a $95,000 loan to be repaid from expected state aid.

Supt. Samuel Gravitt said First National's low bid was 4.25 per cent. The board received four other bids. Gravitt said the money will be borrowed for three months.

In other areas, a group of local residents, calling themselves the "We Care Task Force," made a presentation to the board on how it feels the high school can be improved.

The group, according to Gravitt, feels the school needs a local truancy officer; bells, buzzers or verbal announcements signaling the beginning of class sessions; and a designated smoking area for students who have parental approval to smoke. The board said it would meet with the group in the near future to discuss the group's suggestions.

The board approved a policy change allowing school groups or clubs to use the system's buses for non-educational trips, providing the group or club pays the entire cost, and the trip is approved by the board.

Bill Griffin, board president, said he will appoint a committee to look into the potential purchase of new high school marching band uniforms. Approximately 100 uniforms would be needed, costing an estimated $12,500 to $15,000.

A request from the high school student council that the board again help pay the cost for sending a student to the Presidential Classroom seminar in Washington, D.C., was approved. A $100 donation was granted.

The board approved the first reading of a job description for a secretary-receptionist for the school system.

Gravitt said Governor Milliken's proposed budget cuts, would in effect, cost the school district $30,819, if approved as submitted to the legislature.

Arrest Three More In Benton Robbery

Two persons were arrested and a 16-year-old boy taken into custody Monday night on warrants charging them with the armed robbery of two Benton township men Saturday night.

Booked at the Berrien county jail were Charles Wayne Byars, 17, Beechwood Trailer park, Hartford, and Dewey Wayne McLemore, 28, of 303 Union, Lawton. The juvenile, of Hartford, was lodged at the Berrien county juvenile home pending petitioning to juvenile court.

Applauded

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Schlesinger, fired last week by President Ford as defense secretary, got a round of applause from 4,000 people who worked under him as he left the Pentagon for the last time.

Schlesinger reviewed a military honor guard Monday and was honored with the applause of the military officers, civilian officials and other Defense Department workers at the ceremony.

Watervliet man was arrested earlier in connection with the incident.

According to Berrien Sheriff's Det. Gary Methling, Lester Jones, 49, Box 475, Meadowbrook road, and Howard Welch, 50, of 1345 East Britain avenue, were beaten and robbed of $250, by five men at the Jones home. Jones is listed in "fair" condition at Mercy hospital today. Welch was treated and released from Mercy Saturday night.

Methling said investigation of the robbery indicated the two were allegedly beaten with a baseball bat which was confiscated. Methling reported the arrests were made in Hartford about 8:45 p.m. and one other juvenile is still being sought in connection with the incident. None of the money has been recovered, Methling indicated.

A Watervliet man was arrested early Monday morning in connection with the incident. Nathan Jack Little, 19, was booked on an armed robbery charge after reportedly turning himself in to sheriff's officers.

St. Joe City Approves Contract With Action

St. Joseph city commissioners voted to enter into an agreement, as part of the Community Emergency Service Corp., to subsidize Action ambulance for an amount not to exceed $672.50 per month for three years.

City Manager G.W. (Jerry) Hepler said the contract will not go into effect until all seven members of the corporation have approved it.

Hepler said Benton and St. Joseph townships have approved the contract. As of last night's meeting, Benton Harbor, Lincoln, Sodus and Royalton townships had not approved.

According to Hepler, St. Joseph pays 15 per cent of the total subsidy. Each municipality entering into the corporation contributes to the subsidy on a prorated basis.

Hepler noted, after being questioned by former Mayor Tom Sparks, that excess profits will be used to either reduce the subsidy or to improve the ambulance service.

He said money for the subsidy was included in this year's budget.

Also last night the commissioners voted to accept a low bid of $12,768.52 for four new patrol cars.

The low bid came from Ned Gates Chevrolet, Benton Harbor, and was one of four submitted. All four bids were from Benton Harbor auto dealers.

Commissioner William Gillespie pointed out that the only St. Joseph auto dealer, Wesner Brothers auto sales, did not submit a bid.

City Manager G.W. (Jerry) Hepler said Wesner's is an American Motors Corp. (AMC) dealer and AMC does not make autos with specialized features for police work.

The other three bids were as follows:

—Ashley Ford Sales, Inc., $13,096.

—Rott Motors, Inc., $13,500.

Hepler said the prices quoted above include trade-ins on four one-year-old patrol cars presently being used by police. Hepler said money for the purchases was included in this year's budget.

A letter was read by Hepler from Mrs. Sharon Wilson, president of the Concrete Opposition Unlimited, asking once again that a vote on the I-94 penetrator issue be held.

Along with the letter were 12 more signatures added on a petition asking for the vote. The commission took no action on the matter.

In other business last night Commissioner Joseph Hanley reported on the first meeting of the city's financial study committee which he heads. Hanley said Hepler was at the meeting and outlined some potential problem areas which were discussed by the committee, but condition was not certain, although doctors suspected it was due to a combination of alcohol and tranquilizers which she took the night she fell ill.

The judge said testimony that Karen on several occasions told family and friends that she would not want to be maintained by "extraordinary means" in case of terminal illness was not persuasive that she would elect to be removed from the respirator.

Karen's statements were made in relation to other persons, not herself, the judge said, adding, "The conversations with her mother and friends were theoretical ones. She was not personally involved. It was not under the solemn and sobering fact that death is a distinct choice."

On the argument that the free exercise of religious beliefs was at stake, Muir also disagreed. He said testimony showed that Karen and the Quinlans, as Roman Catholics, may use or may refuse "extraordinary means to sustain life" without committing a sin. Therefore, he said, the use of the respirator does not interfere with religious belief.

His decision added, "There is a presumption that one chooses to go on living. The presumption is not overcome by the prior statements of Karen Quinlan. Additionally, it is not Karen who asserts her religious belief but her parents."

Armstrong had argued that continued medical treatment for Miss Quinlan amounted to "cruel and unusual punishment," prohibited by the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Muir ruled that study of legal documents defining the amendment "does not support plaintiff here."

Muir said Quinlan "impressed me as a very sincere, moral, ethical and religious person." But the judge said the father's anguish over his daughter's condition would be "continued and magnified" if he were required to concur in the day by day decisions on the future care and treatment of his daughter.

Muir, therefore, appointed Daniel R. Coburn, the attorney who was named to represent Miss Quinlan during the one-week trial last month, "guardian of her person."

Coburn said he had no desire to change the treatment Karen is now receiving — "I would never make a decision myself — the doctors have the final say." He also said he expected to consult with the Quinlans about any developments in Karen's medical condition.

"If any change in treatment is suggested, I'd go right back to court with an application: 'Can this be done?'"

Armstrong asserted that the family will take part in decisions about Karen's treatment.

Niles Township Sewage System Compromise Signed

BY SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Berrien Circuit court judge yesterday signed a compromise agreement involving a proposed sewage collection system for Niles township which will allow the project to be constructed without interference.

Judge Chester J. Byrns signed the dismissal order in which some 200 township residents agreed to drop a suit seeking an injunction against the collection system in exchange for the deletion of three areas from a special assessment roll.

The plaintiffs had contended the sewage collection system wasn't needed in their areas because of the rural nature.

The dismissal came after attorneys representing the plaintiffs, township, county, and state stipulated to the agreement. The county board of public works can now proceed with plans for sale of bonds, contract letting, and construction, according to BPW Chief Robert Barnes.

Dropped from the planned collection system and special assessment district are what the order labels the Pucker street drive area, Northwest Loop area, and all property on State Line road east of College street in the township. The Northwest Loop area includes all property on Platt west of Phillips; on Phillips north of Platt; on Harrah east of Phillips; Morris drive between Niles-Buchanan road and Platt; and Niles-Buchanan road west of a line south along the west boundary line of Shamrock Hills subdivision to Morris drive.

An area which sought to get out of the special assessment district but which the order states will remain in is property on Bond street from Bertrand road north to the city limits, and Bell road between Bond and Third street.

The dismissal also orders the defendants in the original suit (township, county, and state) not to initiate any new proceedings to attempt to include the exempted areas in the collection system or the special assessment district.

The order signed by Byrns notes that property owners in the exempted areas who have already paid the special assessment will have the payments reimbursed "within a reasonable time."

The proposed $12 million collection system calls for sale of $4.8 million in bonds and is scheduled to be completed in about two years, with a federal grant providing about $7.5 million and a state grant supplying $500,000.

The township system is slated to be built in conjunction with a new sewerage system for the City of Niles, and the township will contract with the city for use of the city's sewage disposal plant when both systems are completed.

Barnes said the deletion of the three areas will not change the special assessments in other areas of the township.

He said the next step is to apply to the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission for permission to sell bonds, and he hoped the bond sale could be completed before Christmas.

Asked about any deadlines which the county must meet in order to proceed with the project, Barnes replied: "It's going to be close." He said the federal grant will not expire until the latter part of 1976, but the BPW must award construction contracts before the end of December, after which contractors who submitted bids can change the bids, which could result in higher construction costs.

Milliken Cutback Gaining Support

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Democratic-controlled state legislature may have to accept Gov. William Milliken's prediction that the state faces a deficit of nearly $300 million after all.

Democratic leaders have maintained that Milliken overestimated the deficit by up to $60 million when he forecast a $298 million shortfall.

Last week the Democratic appropriations committees rejected Milliken's order to cut $150 million from the budget, arguing that only some $90 million in cuts are needed.

But Monday a top legislative fiscal advisor said the deficit is indeed between $290 million and $317 million. Cuts in state spending will have to be at least $130 million, he said.

Gene Farnum, director of the Senate Fiscal Agency, met with Gerald Miller, head of the Department of Management and Budget, in an attempt to reach some agreement on the disputed figures and the facts behind them. And Miller evidently emerged closer to the governor's line than Farnum to the Democrats.

In fact, Farnum said he pointed out some additional costs that led Miller to agree the deficit might be as high as $317 million. Included in the higher figures were capital outlay costs and more money needed for community colleges and school aid.

A key Democratic concession, Farnum indicated, may have to be the write-off of $48 million owed the state by the federal government.

Milliken included that in his deficit picture since, he said, it is not likely the state will get any of it this fiscal year. Democrats, however, argued that at least some of it — perhaps $30 million — should be carried on the books as an "account receivable."

But after meeting with officials from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, legislative fiscal experts reluctantly agreed there was little chance of getting it soon.

"I don't think it's something we're going to see," Farnum said.

Fiscal experts said the state might see $15 million, but nearly all of it has been credited to the fiscal year ending last June 30. So they are expected to recommend to Democratic leaders they drop that argument for reducing the deficit.

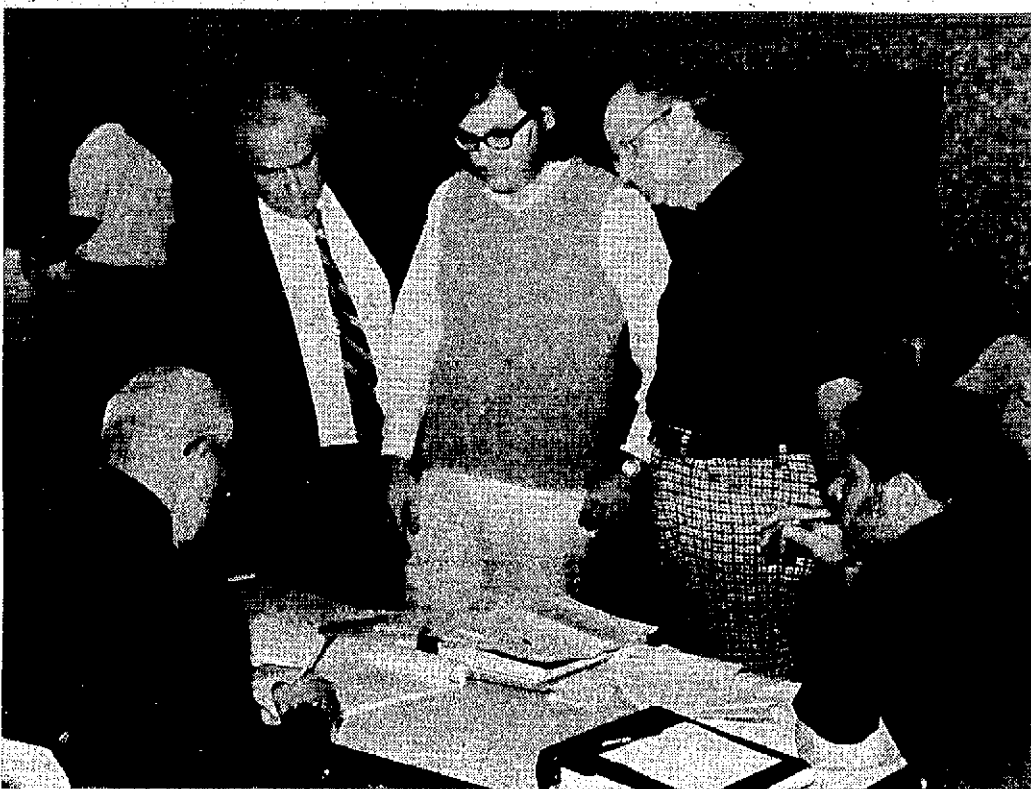

That will mean Democrats will have to throw away some $30 million they contended could be left in the budget.

The remaining disputed amount — about $27 million — is over how much money is needed for social services, Farnum said. He said his figures show a caseload of about 205,000, requiring $103 million in extra money, while Miller predicts 211,000, requiring $130 million more.

"Both cases have good rationales," Farnum said.

Should the Democrats' lower figures finally be accepted by the governor, Farnum said, the deficit could be pegged at $290 million. That means spending cutbacks could be limited to $130 million, since both sides figure on picking up $160 million from revising the fiscal year and dipping into two restricted funds.

Farnum and other fiscal advisors are scheduled later this week to present their conclusions to the Democratic leadership, which will then sit down with Milliken to bargain over a second executive order.

Three Faculty Posts Filled

Bangor Restores Some Cuts

BANGOR — The Bangor school board last night voted to restore all remaining sports, school plays, a first grade teacher and high school guidance counselor that were eliminated following the defeat of a three-mill property tax levy in September.

Acting Supt. Fred Stap also announced that the board had decided in executive session Friday to restore one special education teacher position. Originally, following the defeat of the millage, the board had ordered that all sports and 12 teaching positions be cut.

Even with the restorations, Stap said the district could still need a high school counselor, one half-time junior high counselor, one physical education and one art teacher at the elementary level, and single teachers in the second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth grades, to match the same number of teachers as last year's program.

The moves came as one controversial issue related to the aftermath of the cutbacks reached the board and a report involving another was received.

Reaching the board were petitions calling for a recall election involving five of the board's seven members. The report received concerned Supt. Howard Beyer, a key figure in the dispute which has engulfed the district for the past several months.

Beyer's doctor, Avison Gano, said the superintendent would not be able to return to work until January at the earliest. Beyer was hospitalized in late October and is recuperating at home now.

Dr. Gano said Beyer had been suffering from "extreme exhaustion and some signs of coronary artery disease."

Beyer became a key figure in the dispute when a citizens committee recommended his dismissal in a package of recommendations, including one to reinstate programs cut.

A complaint triggering a state audit of the system's books included allegations against Beyer's administration of the district.

The recall petition drive stemmed from failure of the

Board members named were Donald Piper, Forest Gough, Fred Waite, Richard Kroegel and Dr. Joseph Cooper.

In a related area, the board, in announcing that 51 non-certified employees would receive pay increases averaging 4.5 per cent, said it was cutting the hourly wage of Bruce Beyer, son of the superintendent, from $2.92 to $2.27.

Earlier, Paul French, former co-chairman of the citizen's committee, had charged that Bruce Beyer received more than double what custodians normally would receive.

Stap said Beyer's salary was lowered following a re-evaluation by himself and Beyer's supervisor as to what would be fair pay.

Last night, Piper said that he had bought some tables, a hammer, and webbing for his own personal use while shopping for items for the school district at a federal surplus center in Lansing last spring as mentioned in the complaint triggering the state audit.

Kroegel said Beyer and Piper have come under attack for buying items for personal use at the surplus center while acting for the school, but that at least five other school officials had also done it. He did not name the other five.

After the cut reinstatements were announced, French said the citizen's committee had voted to recommend to the board that an additional $13,000 be made available to restore one elementary teacher and one half-time junior high counselor.

He proposed that the money be gained by taking $7,000 from the $30,780 budgeted for salaries of K-8 clerical help, and $6,000 from the $16,000 budgeted for miscellaneous supplies.

Hartford Grievance Panel Still Lacks One Member

HARTFORD — Two members of a grievance committee appointed last spring to hear the cases of two Hartford school teachers seeking reinstatement have been unable to select a third member from a list of nine names. Hartford school board member Harold Leach, who is serving on the grievance committee with middle school teacher James Denske, told the school board last night the two have not yet reached agreement on a third member.

Five of the names are those of local residents nominated by the school board and four are those of professional negotiators nominated by the Hartford Education association (HEA). Leach said.

The board told Leach he would have to provide more information on the four HEA candidates before the board would be willing to ratify any of them.

The teachers seeking reinstatement are Joel Koyers, Three Rivers, and John McLellan, Hartford.

The board decided not to grant the pair tenure last March and they left the school district in June.

Prior to leaving the district, the pair filed a grievance seeking to be reinstated. The pair has also filed suit in Van Buren Circuit court seeking reinstatement.

The court case has been adjourned to allow lawyers for the teachers and school district to file written arguments with Judge David Anderson Jr.

The grievance committee will also hear the case when it selects a third member, according to Supt. Gary Waterkamp.

In other action, the board lifted its ban on senior trips for the graduating class of 1976. Board members said from now on, requests for senior class trips will be considered on a year to year basis.

The trip request came from senior class president Janet Unrath who appeared before the board to ask that her class be allowed to take a three day trip to the Cedar Point Amusement park in Sandusky, Ohio, in May.

Waterkamp noted that a few middle school students had been canvassing the town last week asking for donations for the band. He said the school does not permit cash solicitation other than the sale of school-approved merchandise.

A proposal from Waterkamp for the creation of a new job with the title of student activities director was tabled pending further study.

TAVERN HOURS EYED

Hartford Chief Asks 6th Officer

HARTFORD — A proposal that a sixth officer be added to the Hartford police department was referred last night to the Hartford city council's police committee.

Police Chief Lee Spencer told the council that one of his federal CETA program officers now recovering from surgery should be replaced and the disabled officer retained as a regular city employee when he recovers.

The chief made a similar request in July.

The council also announced that the police committee will meet tonight to discuss whether taverns in the city should be allowed to stay open until 2 a.m.

Taverns are now required by city ordinance to close at midnight.

The council also gave Homer Jackson, the public works superintendent, authority to seek bids for the purchase of two snow tires for the department's pickup truck.

West Virginia Crash Kills Lawrence Girl

Miss Debra M. Kelly, 17, route 1, Box 138-A, Lawrence, was killed yesterday about 11:30 a.m. in a car-truck collision on the West Virginia turnpike, in Raleigh county, near Beckley, W. Va.

Another passenger, John N. Adams, Muskegon, was also killed in the collision, West Virginia state police said. The driver of the car, James E. Adams, also of Muskegon, was injured and was taken to Raleigh General hospital, Beckley, police said.

The Adams car was travelling north on the interstate and collided head-on with a semi-truck in the southbound lane. Police said they do not know why the car was in the southbound lane. An investigation is continuing, they said. The driver of the truck received only minor injuries, police said.

Miss Kelly was born April 7, 1958, in Berrien Springs.

A family spokesman said she was on a vacation trip when killed.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kelly, Lawrence; three brothers, David, Dwayne and Melvin; and three sisters, Denise, Donna and Marcia, all at home and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Kelly, Paw Paw and Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Scott, Coloma.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete today at the Davidson funeral home, Coloma.

Niles Township Sewage System Compromise Signed

BY SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Berrien Circuit court judge yesterday signed a compromise agreement involving a proposed sewage collection system for Niles township which will allow the project to be constructed without interference.

Judge Chester J. Byrns signed the dismissal order in which some 200 township residents agreed to drop a suit seeking an injunction against the collection system in exchange for the deletion of three areas from a special assessment roll.

The plaintiffs had contended the sewage collection system wasn't needed in their areas because of the rural nature.

The dismissal came after attorneys representing the plaintiffs, township, county, and state stipulated to the agreement. The county board of public works can now proceed with plans for sale of bonds, contract letting, and construction, according to BPW Chief Robert Barnes.

Dropped from the planned collection system and special assessment district are what the order labels the Pucker street drive area, Northwest Loop area, and all property on State Line road east of College street in the township. The Northwest Loop area includes all property on Platt west of Phillips; on Phillips north of Platt; on Harrah east of Phillips; Morris drive between Niles-Buchanan road and Platt; and Niles-Buchanan road west of a line south along the west boundary line of Shamrock Hills subdivision to Morris drive.

An area which sought to get out of the special assessment district but which the order states will remain in is property on Bond street from Bertrand road north to the city limits, and Bell road between Bond and Third street.

The dismissal also orders the defendants in the original suit (township, county, and state) not to initiate any new proceedings to attempt to include the exempted areas in the collection system or the special assessment district.

The order signed by Byrns notes that property owners in the exempted areas who have already paid the special assessment will have the payments reimbursed "within a reasonable time."

The proposed $12 million collection system calls for sale of $4.8 million in bonds and is scheduled to be completed in about two years, with a federal grant providing about $7.5 million and a state grant supplying $500,000.

The township system is slated to be built in conjunction with a new sewerage system for the City of Niles, and the township will contract with the city for use of the city's sewage disposal plant when both systems are completed.

Barnes said the deletion of the three areas will not change the special assessments in other areas of the township.

He said the next step is to apply to the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission for permission to sell bonds, and he hoped the bond sale could be completed before Christmas.

Asked about any deadlines which the county must meet in order to proceed with the project, Barnes replied: "It's going to be close." He said the federal grant will not expire until the latter part of 1976, but the BPW must award construction contracts before the end of December, after which contractors who submitted bids can change the bids, which could result in higher construction costs.

Milliken Cutback Gaining Support

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Democratic-controlled state legislature may have to accept Gov. William Milliken's prediction that the state faces a deficit of nearly $300 million after all.

Democratic leaders have maintained that Milliken overestimated the deficit by up to $60 million when he forecast a $298 million shortfall.

Last week the Democratic appropriations committee rejected Milliken's order to cut $150 million from the budget, arguing that only some $90 million in cuts are needed.

But Monday a top legislative fiscal advisor said the deficit is indeed between $290 million and $317 million. Cuts in state spending will have to be at least $130 million, he said.

Gene Farnum, director of the Senate Fiscal Agency, met with Gerald Miller, head of the Department of Management and Budget, in an attempt to reach some agreement on the disputed figures and the facts behind them. And Miller evidently emerged closer to the governor's line than Farnum to the Democrats'.

In fact, Farnum said he pointed out some additional costs that led Miller to agree the deficit might be as high as $317 million. Included in the higher figures were capital outlay costs and more money needed for community colleges and school aid.

A key Democratic concession, Farnum indicated, may have to be the write-off of $48 million owed the state by the federal government.

Milliken included that in his deficit picture since, he said, it is not likely the state will get any of it this fiscal year. Democrats, however, argued that at least some of it — perhaps $30 million — should be carried on the books as an "account receivable."

But after meeting with officials from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, legislative fiscal experts reluctantly agreed there was little chance of getting it soon.

"I don't think it's something we're going to see," Farnum said.

Fiscal experts said the state might see $15 million, but nearly all of it has been credited to the fiscal year ending last June 30. So they are expected to recommend to Democratic leaders they drop that argument for reducing the deficit.

That will mean Democrats will have to throw away some $30 million they contended could be left in the budget.

Few Bowl Bids Likely To Be Handed Out Saturday

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Now that the National Collegiate Athletic Association has reinstated its restriction on bowl invitations, very few bids are likely to be handed out at the first opportunity anyway.

The respective bowl committees will fan out to college football games across the country Saturday. But instead of bearing invitations, in most cases they'll be traveling empty-handed.

However, one week later there may be a stampede to line up the best possible post-season attractions.

"It's very confused," one bowl spokesman told The Associated Press Monday. "The same teams are in the Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowl pictures. And there are so many things to be decided."

Like the Big Eight championship between Nebraska and Oklahoma on Nov. 22, with the winner going to the Orange Bowl; the Southwest Conference race to determine whether Texas A&M, Texas or Arkansas will be the host team in the Cotton Bowl; and the Big Ten (Ohio State-Michigan) and Pacific-8 scrambles to decide which also-rans will be grabbed by someone other than the Rose Bowl.

Out in Pasadena, the Rose Bowl is sitting pretty. They don't have to scout anyone since they automatically get the Big Ten and Pac-8 champs.

The other bowls are considering the following teams:

Orange: Big Eight champion (Nebraska or Oklahoma) vs. Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Michigan, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, Southern California, Texas, Texas A&M.

Cotton: Southwest Conference champ vs. Alabama, Michigan, Nebraska, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, Southern Cal. Two from that crowd also are Sugar Bowl possibilities, along with the loser of the Nov. 23 Texas-Texas A&M game.

Gator: Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Penn State, Texas, Texas A&M.

Liberty: Arkansas, California,

Georgia, Georgia Tech, Missouri, Navy, Oklahoma, Southern Cal, Tennessee, UCLA.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl: "We're looking at the same teams most of the other bowls are looking at," according to Weldon Humble, chairman of the selection committee. The Bluebonnet would love to have the Southwest Conference runner-up against Colorado.

Fiesta: Colorado, Florida,

Georgia, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Southern Cal, Texas, Texas A&M, UCLA.

Sum: Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina State, Penn State, Pitt, Texas A&M, UCLA.

Pitt would have received an invitation had the Panthers not lost to West Virginia last weekend and they could be right back in the picture by beating Notre Dame Saturday.

Peach: Arkansas, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Maryland, North Carolina State, Tennessee.

Tangerine: Miami of Ohio is in as the Mid-American Conference champion. Opponents under consideration are Colorado, Georgia Tech, Maryland, Navy, North Carolina State, Pitt, South Carolina and Tennessee.

KC Wins Game, Fumble 'Battle'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs may not be Super Bowl material, as their rookie Coach Paul Wiggins claims, but they were All-National Football League in recovering fumbles Monday night.

Kansas City and Dallas fumbled 12 times in their nationally televised stumblethru. The Chiefs got back three of their mistakes and pocketed all five of Dallas' gifts, cashing three of them into touchdowns.

The result was a 34-31 victory over the Cowboys and crewed Wiggins found it all a little difficult to believe.

"We beat Dallas! ... God darn ... we beat Dallas ... We beat Dallas," he kept repeating. "Wiggins, acting at times almost like he had caught the winning touchdown pass himself instead of Ed Podolak, gushed, 'I'm really excited about being part of this football team. This win probably is as exciting as our win over Oakland.'"

Kansas City is now 4-4 and still alive in the American Conference Western Division, trailing Oakland by two games.

Dallas, 5-3 for the year, sank a game behind Washington and

St. Louis in the National Conference East.

Podolak scored touchdowns on runs of 1 and 11 yards in a 43-second span just before halftime and snared a five-yard scoring pass from Mike Livingston with 10:07 left to play for the game-winner.

The lead changed hands like a National Basketball Association game with the ball caroming about on a perfectly dry night as though the players were soaked by a rain storm.

"Fumbles just flat beat us ... I can't explain them ... they just happen," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, a veteran of 18 NFL campaigns.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach's nine-yard touchdown run and a 31-yard Toni Fritsch field goal gave Dallas a 10-3 lead after Jan Stenerud's booming 51-yard three-pointer. Then strange things began to happen.

Preston Pearson of Dallas fumbled into the Cowboys' end zone and Chief defensive end John Matuszak claimed it for a touchdown.

Staubach flipped a 15-yard touchdown pass to Golden Richards but Podolak countered with a one-yard touchdown run.

Then Doug Dennison fumbled the kickoff away to Chiefs' rookie Morris LaGrand. Forty-three seconds later Podolak dashed 11 yards to give Kansas City a 24-17 halftime lead.

Richards snared a 47-yard bomb from Staubach to even matters in the third period before Stenerud kicked a 44-yarder for a 27-24 lead.

Staubach scratched back to hand Dallas a 31-27 lead with a one-yard touchdown run, and then came a series of back breakers.

Robert Newhouse fumbled the ball away to Emmitt Thomas to set up the game-clinching touchdown. Staubach, who had been on target all night, suddenly turned wild and served up two interceptions to kill any thoughts of a comeback.

STAUBACH SACKED: Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach is racked up for a loss in fourth period of game with the Kansas City Chiefs Monday night in Texas Stadium. Denny Downplays MSU QB Situation

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Denny Stolz downplayed his quarterbacking situation Monday, acting as if it was "just another spot on the football team."

Michigan State quarterbacking hasn't been too good this year, in case you haven't heard. Senior Charlie Baggett, touted as a possible All-American, has had a lackluster season.

Saturday his play — including his 12th pass interception of the year — finally got to the patient Stolz, who benched him favor of Marshall Lawson. The Lake Charles, La., native guided the Spartans from a 7-6 lead to a 14-6 win over Indiana, throwing a touchdown pass enroute.

Lawson, with two years remaining, is the heir apparent to Baggett's signal-calling job. And with MSU 5-4 on the year and going nowhere, Stolz has been asked if it wasn't time to give Lawson more experience.

But Stolz talks as if quarterback is no more a key position than second-string quarterback. When asked who will start Saturday against Northwestern, he said casually, "Oh, I don't know. We'll decide that Saturday, probably."

Later, however, he conceded, "I imagine we'll start Baggett." In between, however, he had kind words for Lawson.

"We've been looking for a place to play Marshall, and this time the time was right and he did a good job."

"This young kid has earned his way up and worked his way up. He's been working three years at that position, so he didn't surprise me. He could have played badly and nobody would have said anything."

"It's nice to see a kid develop and mature like that."

Stolz also revealed he is "red-shirting" third-year quarterback Tyrone Willingham to have him around next year as Lawson's back-up. The tiny (5-8, 136 pounds) but savvy Willingham has watched Baggett from the bench for three years, starting a few games in 1972 when Baggett hurt a knee.

The now-normal injury situation for MSU is continuing, with linebacker Paul Rudzinski, who broke a foot in the game with Indiana, joining the ranks of players lost for the season.

Rudzinski is the fifth defensive player to be lost for the year; and the third linebacker. Others lost are Pat McCowry, Kim Roweckamp, and Otto Smith and back Mike Imhoff.

"We have a few injury-free seasons coming to us," said Stolz in exasperation.

On the brighter side, Ted Bell, the highly advertised freshman tailback "will be at 100 per cent this Saturday for the first time since he's been at Michigan State," Stolz said. Bell, a star from Youngstown, Ohio, injured his knee and lost all of last year, re-injured it in the Ohio State game, which opened this season and followed that with a bad hip bruise, but is finally healthy.

Heck Baes, who "ran recklessly" against Indiana in his finest game ever, will start at tailback, Stolz said.

Slumping Jimmy Connors Is Mellowing In Defeat

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Jimmy Connors, brash and aggressive in victory, is mellowing in defeat.

Connors, in danger of losing his status as the world's No. 1 ranked tennis player, has been beaten in the finals of four major tournaments this season. His latest defeat came Sunday in the $100,000 Stockholm Open where he was surprised by Adriano Panatta, an Italian clay court specialist, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

"If I'd lost this match three or four years ago I probably would have demolished the Royal Tennis Hall in a fit of rage," said Connors. "I've always hated to lose and I still hate to lose more than anything else."

"No other tennis player is so proud and takes such care of his self-esteem as I do. But I'm not a bad boy anymore, I'm more mature and I know that every player wins and loses."

Connors has had a pretty good year by most standards but compared to his awesome 1974 campaign, it's been a disappointing season. He lost to John Newcombe in the finals of the Australian Open in January. He lost to Arthur Ashe in the finals at Wimbledon in July. He lost to Manuel Orantes of Spain in the finals at the U.S. Open in September.

And then he dropped Sunday's match to the underdog Panatta, who wasn't expected to make it through the quarterfinals.

"To be frank, I thought I would beat Panatta, but maybe I underestimated him a bit," admitted the 23-year-old Connors. "But I loved that match although I lost it because I gave everything. I couldn't have played better. He was just too good for me."

Despite his much-publicized setbacks, Connors has managed more than his share of victories this season, having won 10 tournaments.

"I've only lost six matches in 18 tournaments this year," he said. "But you can't win them all. Nowadays, everyone just doesn't play his best, but better than his best to beat me. I always have to give something extra to win."

Connors is still working on his schedule for next year. He said he plays to play three tournaments on the independent players circuit and then a challenge match against Arthur Ashe in Las Vegas in February. He may play World Team Tennis during the summer.

But his next stop is this week's tournament in Edinburgh, Scotland.

"I'm going to win that tournament whatever happens," said Connors. "Yes, I can guarantee a victory. The feeling to win can never be compared with the feeling you experience after a defeat."

NEW COACH: John Robinson, an assistant coach for the Oakland Raiders, talks with newsmen in Los Angeles Monday as he was announced as the new head football coach at the University of Southern California. Faces Task Of Replacing McKay Robinson Gets USC Post

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California is counting on a former Oregon end, John Robinson, to replace a former Oregon halfback and bring further football glory to the Trojans.

Robinson, 40, whose career nearly parallels that of John McKay despite an intervening decade, will head the Southern Cal football fortunes in 1976 when McKay goes to the professional ranks.

Robinson, a former Southern Cal assistant coach, faces a tough assignment. He replaces a man who has coached more USC victories than any other and gone to the Rose Bowl on eight occasions, winning four.

One big difference is that Robinson is leaving the professional ranks with the Oakland Raiders, to return to the collegians. McKay is making his first try at the National Football League in coaching the new Tampa franchise that begins next year.

Also McKay, a halfback, played in the Cotton Bowl with Oregon in 1949 and Robinson, an end, was in the Rose Bowl in 1958. Oregon, with McKay, lost to Baylor, and Oregon, with Robinson, lost to Ohio State.

At USC, Robinson, a somewhat surprise choice, starts his era following a winning coach. McKay to date has a 128-38-8 record with games against Washington and UCLA remaining. But after a 7-0 start this season, the Trojans lost to both California and Stanford for McKay announced his move to Tampa.

President John R. Hubbard of USC, in announcing the appointment of Robinson for 1976, also divided the duties that McKay has carried for five years — football coach and athletic director. Hubbard announced that Dr. Richard H. Perry, 46, a former head basketball coach at Long Beach State, will be the athletic director.

Perry, eight years on the USC faculty, will begin his new job immediately with no wait until McKay leaves.

Terms of the contracts with Robinson and Perry were not divulged although the football coach is believed to have at least a three-year agreement.

Robinson said he considers himself a disciple of McKay, whom he has known for 20 years.

"I have been a tremendous admirer of his and believe in the type of football he has used. I like a wide open style of offense."

Robinson was an assistant in charge of the offensive backfield at USC from 1972 through 1974. During his tenure, the team posted a 31-3-2 record including three appearances in the Rose Bowl and two victories there.

He had coached at Oregon from 1960 through 1971 under Len Casanova and Jerry Fret. A freshman coach for his first three years, he was defensive backfield coach for the next three seasons. From 1966 through 1968, he was in charge of the Oregon offense.

Speculation had been that McKay assistants Dave Levy and Craig Fertig would inherit the two jobs. Ara Parseghian, former Notre Dame coach and Bear Bryant of Alabama also were mentioned.

But Hubbard said of Robinson: "As an ex-USC assistant coach for three years, he's familiar with the elements that make up the university. He has a rare combination of technical skills and human qualities. And I believe he has one of the best minds in football."

Bo Thinking Rose Bowl

St. Joseph's Jim Czirr
Offensive 'Hustler'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Last year, Bo Schiemmechler shouted for the right of a second Big Ten football team to be allowed to go to a bowl game.

Now he doesn't want to talk about his sixth-ranked Michigan Wolverines going anywhere but the Rose Bowl.

"I'm only thinking about one bowl," he insisted at his weekly news conference Monday. "We have talked about it. We are only interested in winning the Big Ten championship and going to the Rose Bowl."

"We haven't gone further than that. We will not go further than that, unless we're forced. We want to win it all."

Schiemechler doesn't want to even hint at the possibility Michigan would lose the Nov. 22 showdown with top-ranked Ohio State at Ann Arbor.

Another bowl opening is almost certainly waiting for the loser, and Schiemmechler apparently doesn't want that knowledge to tarnish the fervor of his team when it takes on the Buckeyes.

Of course, the Wolverines could get waylaid in the meantime. Illinois is the last team with a chance to knock off Michigan before that traditional OSU tussle. U-M plays Saturday at Illinois, the next-to-last Big Ten game of the season for the two.

"When you play seven at home, sometimes it's kind of refreshing to play on the road," Schiemmechler said.

The Illini, 4-3 in the conference and 4-5 overall, were thought to be possible title challengers this year. But losses to teams they were expected to beat dropped them out of the picture.

Could a victory over a team the caliber of unbeaten Michigan turn Illinois' season into a success, despite all the losses?

"A victory would help out, but it wouldn't make up for the disappointment of being knocked out of contention for a bowl game," said Coach Bob Blackman, via telephone to the Ann Arbor gathering of newsmen.

Michigan, 7-0-2 overall and 6-0 in the conference, is coming off a 28-0 triumph over Purdue. Illinois was beaten 40-3 by Ohio State, although it was a close game until the final quarter.

Freshman quarterback Rick Leach was the choice of Michigan coaches as the squad's top offensive player against the "Bollermakers." He completed six of nine passes for 218 yards, including a school record 82-yard touchdown pass to Jim Smith.

Linebacker Calvin O'Neal was named U-M's top defensive player and wound up as the Big Ten's Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week. He was in on 14 tackles, eight solo, to raise his team-leading season count to 114 tackles — 73 unassisted.

Defensive back Don Dufek was chosen the Wolverines' top kick-team player against Purdue. Center Jim Czirr of St. Joseph was the offensive "hustler" and middle guard Tim Davis the defensive choice. Scout-team honors went to Phil Brumbaugh.

Few Bowl Bids Likely To Be Handed Out Saturday

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Now that the National Collegiate Athletic Association has reinstated its restriction on bowl invitations, very few bids are likely to be handed out at the first opportunity anyway.

The respective bowl committees will fan out to college football games across the country Saturday. But instead of bearing invitations, in most cases they'll be traveling empty-handed.

However, one week later there may be a stampede to line up the best possible post-season attractions.

"It's very confused," one bowl spokesman told The Associated Press Monday. "The same teams are in the Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowl pictures. And there are so many things to be decided."

Like the Big Eight championship between Nebraska and Oklahoma on Nov. 22, with the winner going to the Orange Bowl; the Southwest Conference race to determine whether Texas A&M, Texas or Arkansas will be the host team in the Cotton Bowl; and the Big Ten (Ohio State-Michigan) and Pacific-8 scrambles to decide which also-rans will be grabbed by someone other than the Rose Bowl.

Out in Pasadena, the Rose Bowl is sitting pretty. They don't have to scout anyone since they automatically get the Big Ten and Pac-8 champs.

The other bowls are considering the following teams:

Orange: Big Eight champion (Nebraska or Oklahoma) vs. Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Michigan, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, Southern California, Texas, Texas A&M.

Cotton: Southwest Conference champ vs. Alabama, Michigan, Nebraska, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, Southern Cal. Two from that crowd also are Sugar Bowl possibilities, along with the loser of the Nov. 28 Texas-Texas A&M game.

Gator: Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Penn State, Texas, Texas A&M.

Liberty: Arkansas, California,

Georgia, Georgia Tech, Missouri, Navy, Oklahoma, Southern Cal., Tennessee, UCLA.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl: "We're looking at the same teams most of the other bowls are looking at," according to Weldon Humble, chairman of the selection committee. The Bluebonnet would love to have the Southwest Conference runner-up against Colorado.

Fiesta: Colorado, Florida,

Georgia, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Southern Cal., Texas, Texas A&M, UCLA.

Sun: Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina State, Penn State, Pitt, Texas A&M, UCLA.

Pitt would have received an invitation had the Panthers not lost to West Virginia last weekend and they could be right back in the picture by beating Notre Dame Saturday.

Peach: Arkansas, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Maryland, North Carolina State, Tennessee.

Tangerine: Miami of Ohio is in as the Mid-American Conference champion. Opponents under consideration are Colorado, Georgia Tech, Maryland, Navy, North Carolina State, Pitt, South Carolina and Tennessee.

KC Wins Game, Fumble 'Battle'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs may not be Super Bowl material, as their rookie Coach Paul Wiggins claims, but they were All-National Football League in recovering fumbles Monday night.

Kansas City and Dallas fumbled 12 times in their nationally televised stumblethron. The Chiefs got back three of their mistakes and pocketed all five of Dallas' gifts, cashing three of them into touchdowns.

The result was a 34-31 victory over the Cowboys and crewcut Wiggins found it all a little difficult to believe.

"We beat Dallas! ... God darn ... we beat Dallas ... We beat Dallas," he kept repeating.

Wiggins, acting at times almost like he had caught the winning touchdown pass himself instead of Ed Podolak, gushed, "I'm really excited about being part of this football team. This win probably is as exciting as our win over Oakland."

Kansas City is now 4-4 and still alive in the American Conference Western Division, trailing Oakland by two games.

St. Louis in the National Conference East.

Podolak scored touchdowns on runs of 1 and 11 yards in a 43-second span just before half-time and snared a five-yard scoring pass from Mike Livingston with 10:07 left to play for the game-winner.

The lead changed hands like a National Basketball Association game with the ball caroming about on a perfectly dry night as though the players were soaked by a rain storm.

"Fumbles just flat beat us ... I can't explain them ... they just happen," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, a veteran of 16 NFL campaigns.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach's nine-yard touchdown run and a 31-yard Toni Fritsch field goal gave Dallas a 10-3 lead after Jan Stenerud's booming 51-yard three-pointer. Then strange things began to happen.

Preston Pearson of Dallas fumbled into the Cowboys' end zone and Chief defensive end John Matuszak claimed it for a touchdown.

Staubach flipped a 15-yard touchdown pass to Golden Richards but Podolak countered with a one-yard touchdown run.

Then Doug Dennison fumbled the kickoff away to Chiefs' rookie Morris LaGrand. Forty-three seconds later Podolak dashed 11 yards to give Kansas City a 24-17 halftime lead.

Richards snared a 47-yard bomb from Staubach to even matters in the third period before Stenerud kicked a 44-yarder for a 27-24 lead.

Staubach scratched back to hand Dallas a 31-27 lead with a one-yard touchdown run, and then came a series of back breakers.

Robert Newhouse fumbled the ball away to Emmitt Thomas to set up the game-clinching touchdown. Staubach, who had been on target all night, suddenly turned wild and served up two interceptions to kill any thoughts of a comeback.

Denny Downplays MSU QB Situation

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Denny Stolz downplayed his quarterbacking situation Monday, acting as if it was "just another spot on the football team."

Michigan State quarterbacking hasn't been too good this year, in case you haven't heard. Senior Charlie Baggett, touted as a possible All-American, has had a lackluster season.

Saturday his play — including his 12th pass interception of the year — finally got to the patient Stolz, who benched him favor of Marshall Lawson. The Lake Charles, La., native guided the Spartans from a 7-6 lead to a 14-6 win over Indiana, throwing a touchdown pass enroute.

Lawson, with two years remaining, is the heir apparent to Baggett's signal-calling job. And with MSU 5-4 on the year and going nowhere, Stolz has been asked if it wasn't time to give Lawson more experience.

But Stolz talks as if quarterback is no more a key position than second-string guard. When asked who will start Saturday against Northwestern, he said casually, "Oh, I don't know. We'll decide that Saturday, probably."

Later, however, he conceded, "I imagine we'll start Baggett." In between, however, he had

kind words for Lawson.

"We've been looking for a place to play Marshall, and this time the time was right and he did a good job."

"This young kid has earned his way up and worked his way up. He's been working three years at that position, so he didn't surprise me. He could have played badly and nobody would have said anything."

"It's nice to see a kid develop and mature like that."

Stolz also revealed he is "red-shirting" third-year quarterback Tyrone Willingham to have him around next year as Lawson's back-up. The tiny (5-8, 156 pounds) but savvy Willingham has watched Baggett from the bench for three years, starting a few games in 1973 when Baggett hurt a knee.

The now-normal injury situation for MSU is continuing, with linebacker Paul Rudzinski, who broke a foot in the game with Indiana, joining the ranks of players lost for the season.

Rudzinski is the fifth defensive player to be lost for the year, and the third linebacker. Other losses are Pat McClowry, Kim Rowekamp, end Otto Smith and back Mike Imhoff.

"We have a few injury-free seasons coming to us," said Stolz in exasperation.

On the brighter side, Ted Bell, the highly advertised freshman tailback "will be at 100 per cent this Saturday for the first time since he's been at Michigan State," Stolz said. Bell, a star from Youngstown, Ohio, injured his knee and lost all of last year, re-injured it in the Ohio State game which opened this season and followed that with a bad hip bruise, but is finally healthy.

Rich Baes, who "ran recklessly" against Indiana in his finest game ever, will start at tailback, Stolz said.

Panther Defense Tops Again

Lakers Pacesetters In Area Offense

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer

"It's tough to have a winning football program," Watervliet coach Jerry Barchett said before the start of the 1975 season. "But it's even tougher to stay on top once you get there."

Staying on top was Barchett's goal when the season started and stay on top he did. Combining a tenacious defense with a strong running game, Watervliet took the top honors in the area for the second year in a row.

After dropping two of its first three games, Watervliet came on like gangbusters to win its last six contests, finish 7-2 and defend its Red Arrow championship. The Panthers tied Lake Michigan Catholic for the league title.

For the third straight year, Watervliet was the area's top defensive team, allowing just 7.4 points per game. The total was the worst mark to lead the area since records were first kept in 1955, but it led the area just the same.

Watervliet, whose six-game winning streak is tops in the area, was sparked on offense by senior Frank Gargano for the second straight season. The 5-10, 155-pounder rushed for 1,005 yards to bring his two-year total to 2,107.

Gargano was one of seven runners to gain more than 1,000 yards. The top rusher in the area was Brandywine's Daryl Walls. The bulky 6-1, 195-pounder finished as the area's top ground gainer with 1,604 yards. Even more incredible was the fact that Walls gained 1,117 in his last five games, including a 332-yard performance against Buchanan. Walls barely missed the 3,000-yard mark for his two-year career with a 2,951 total.

Don McAfee, who led the area rushers for most of the season, finished second with 1,585 yards. McAfee was the area's top scorer, however, with 21 touchdowns and five two-point runs for 136 points, the best mark in the area since Watervliet's Jim Kolenko finished at 138 in 1968.

Other area runners topping the 1,000 mark included Lake Michigan Catholic's Mickey Ashbrook (1,333), Fennville's Rick Bushee (1,230), Doug Mitchell of Dowagiac (1,193) and Coloma's John Bertuca (1,029).

Watervliet was not the only team to come on strong late in the season. St. Joseph, Brandywine, Lawrence, Fennville and Galien also used late-season charges to gain places among the area's higher echelon.

St. Joseph won its last four Big Seven games to gain at least a share of the title for the third straight year. The Bears won the Big Six in both 1973 and 1974, but had to settle for a tie with Portage Northern, Kalamazoo Loy Norrix and league-newcomer Battle Creek Lakeview this time around.

Brandywine took its last six Blossomland tilts to tie first-year league foe Dowagiac for the title, while Lawrence lost its first and last games but won all six league games in between to win its first SAC title. Fennville surprised most experts by finishing 6-2, its best season since 1964, despite a punishing schedule.

Galien outscored its last five opponents 155-40 to finish its second straight 6-3 campaign.

Decatur averaged 29.6 points per game to top the area, but a pair of SAC losses by the Raiders from defending their league title.

Sparked by the running of Ashbrook and the passing of George Welch, Lake Michigan Catholic was the area pacesetter in total offense. The Lakers were the only team to top the 3,000-yard mark, winding up at 3,060, an average of 340 yards per game.

Brandywine (279.5) was the area's top rushing team, while Benton Harbor easily took passing honors. Tiger quarterback Mike Schulz completed 113 of 211 passes for 1,078 yards and 15 touchdowns.

On the lesser side of the coin, Allendale's 83-0 bombing of Michigan Lutheran late in the season set area record's for most points in a game and biggest victory margin. Oddly enough, the two marks Allendale erased from the books were held by its own 1969 team which lost 82-0 to Hartford.

New Buffalo is rapidly closing in on the area's longest losing streak. The Bisons, outscored in their final six games 228-34, have now dropped 17 straight, nine off the record held by New Troy in the early 1960s.

South Haven finished with its first losing season since Gary Steudle took on the head coaching job in 1971. The Rams dropped a tough 9-6 decision in its season finale to co-Wolverine champ Vicksburg to wind up 4-5.

Edwardsburg and Buchanan suffered through what is believed to be the worst season in history for both. Edwardsburg finished 1-7, while the Bucks came in 1-8 with their only win over the Eddie.

Schulz claimed the top single-game passing performance in the area by completing 23 of 36 passes for 272 yards and six touchdowns against Grand Haven.

Buchanan's Willie Brown had the longest run from scrimmage, galloping 86 yards for a touchdown against Cassopolis. Tom Meredith and Mike Schaller of Bridgman teamed together for the longest pass play, clicking on a 90-yard TD strike against New Buffalo.

Jerry Gagliardo of Coloma and Galien's Randy Chase topped the specialty teams. Gagliardo ran back a punt 87 yards for a touchdown against Lakeshore and Chase scampered 95 yards on a kickoff return against Lawrence.

Buchanan's Brian Virgil topped area kickers, booting field goals of 32, 37, 39 and 40 yards and successfully finding the range on six extra points for 18 points.

Lakers Upset Berrien

Carol Lomonaco scored only two points for Lake Michigan Catholic's girls basketball team Monday night. But she made them count.

Fouled with no time left on the clock, Lomonaco tossed in a pair of free throws to give the Lakers a 46-45 win over Berrien Springs.

The win was sweet revenge for LMC, which lost to the Shamrocks 49-20 at Berrien last Monday, giving the hosts the Red Arrow championship.

"We got creamed before," Laker coach Sue Morningstar said. "It was a revenge type thing."

Trailing 45-44, Lake Michigan got the ball underneath the Shamrock basket with just four seconds left to play. The in bounds pass went to Maureen McCrone who missed a base line shot. Lomonaco grabbed the rebound and was fouled at the buzzer to set up the heroics.

The game was close throughout with Berrien leading at each of the first three quarter stops, 10-6 after the first, 23-22 at halftime and 36-34 after three periods.

Ann Donahue tallied 15 points to lead the Lakers. Sharie Johnson and McCrone each added 10.

Lisa Wagner tossed in 13 and Janet Hile 10 for the losers.

In other area action Monday, Edwardsburg belted Eau Claire 61-36. Hartford took care of Covert 38-24 and Comstock fought off South Haven 50-39.

LMC Sweeps Muskegon

Lake Michigan College concluded its conference volleyball season Monday by sweeping a best three-out-of-five series from Muskegon Community College.

LMC won 15-9, 17-15, 15-13 to finish with a 4-2 league mark. Ginny Jasper and Debbie Weck were the top scorers for the winners.

Lake Michigan travels Wednesday to Hope for its final regular season match and then competes in the state tournaments Thursday at Jackson Community College.

Hudson Collects Fourth Straight Poll Crown

By LARRY PALLADINO
AP Sports Writer

Michigan's high school football champions, the first in modern prep history to be chosen in actual playoff competition, will be known Nov. 22.

But regardless of what happens in the tourney, four teams can call themselves regular season state champions based on the final Associated Press poll.

Those four are Trenton in Class A — the only poll winner not to qualify for the playoffs — Dearborn Divine Child in Class B, Hudson in Class C and North Adams in Class D.

Hudson is the only repeater. Coach Tom Taylor's Tigers will set a national record of 72 consecutive triumphs if they beat fifth-rated Kalamazoo Hackett in the semifinals Saturday in Grand Rapids.

It is the fourth consecutive poll championship for Hudson.

Defending "A" champ Birmingham Brother Rice lost a 70 division to Class B Dearborn Divine Child over the weekend to fall from the top spot to fifth. It gave Trenton the chance to move up from third.

Previous runnerup Royal Oak Dondero also lost its final game, 20-19, to archrival Royal Oak Kimball, to ruin its chance for a poll title.

Traverse City, which finished second in Class A, will tangle with Livonia Franklin in a semifinal game Saturday. Franklin is the top team among the honorable mentions.

Detroit Southwestern, which wound up third, faces fourth-ranked Kalamazoo Central in the other "A" semifinal.

Divine Child's upset of Brother Rice thrust it into the first spot from third place. It nipped Sturgis, 72-71, in poll points. The two can prove which is really best on the field when they meet in a semifinal playoff Saturday in Battle Creek.

Regardless of who wins the playoffs, poll winners still will receive the original revolving trophies and a permanent plaque to honor their regular season accomplishments.

The poll is conducted by panels of sports writers and broadcasters from throughout the state.

Saginaw MacArthur, ranked sixth, takes on Flint Ainsworth — the only playoff team unranked and without even honorable mention listing — in the other Class B semifinal game.

Portland and Ishpeming, the other Class C semifinalists, ended up sixth and eighth respectively in the final poll.

Unbeaten North Adams edged once-beaten Flint Holy Rosary in the "D" tabulations. They clash in a semifinal, while sixth-ranked Posen takes on No. 4 Crystal Falls Forest Park in the other.

Skladany Honored

CHICAGO (AP) — Tom Skladany, Ohio State's super kicker, has been named the Big Ten Player of the Week on offense by The Associated Press.

Skladany booted two field goals in Ohio State's 40-3 victory over Illinois last Saturday including one for a modern Big Ten record of 59 yards on the last play of the first half to give the top-ranked Buckeyes a 10-3 lead.

Skladany also boomed four punts for a 56.5 average, a shade under the individual Big Ten single game record of 57.3 yards by Fred Morrison, a former Ohio State star.

Also nominated for the award was the Michigan passing tandem of Rick Leach and Jim Smith and Minnesota quarterback Tom Dunphy.

Leach completed six of nine passes for 218 yards with Smith grabbing five of them for 184 yards including an 83-yard touchdown strike for the longest scoring pass in Michigan in a 28-0 victory over Purdue.

Firearm Season Opens Saturday Area's Deer Outlook Good

A top-notch firearm deer season in southwestern Michigan is predicted by district Department of Natural Resources game chief Bill Bartels.

"Every evidence would point to a good season," says Bartels of the 15-day season which opens Saturday. "There's not much question but that the deer herd is gaining all the time, even though the rate of increase may be slowing down."

Bartels notes about a 10 per cent increase in highway deer kills throughout the district this year, with Berrien county the only one in the immediate area to show a decrease.

The best hunting is expected in Barry and Cass county, with "Allegan county looking up."

Allegan also has the advantage of having lot of public land. There will again be antlerless hunting throughout southwestern Michigan, but only for the first seven days of the season. And doe permits will be at a record high — 110 per cent above last year for Berrien, Cass, Van Buren and Allegan counties.

The 7,700 total — also 72 per cent above the previous record of 4,475 in 1973 — includes 2,380 in Cass county (management unit 94), 2,110 in Van Buren (unit 92), 1,830 in Berrien county (unit 93) and 1,380 in Allegan (unit 84).

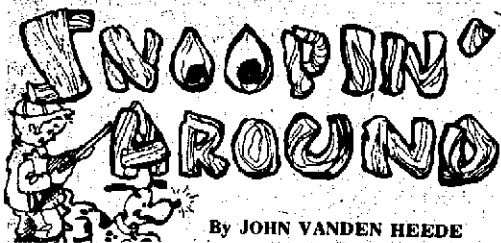

Bartels says the huge increase was made necessary by the seven-day doe season. The shorter season last fall resulted in a lower success ratio, so the DNR decided that more permits were necessary to get the desired doe kill.

Southern Michigan overall had an all-time record buck harvest of 15,960 last fall, and DNR deer specialist Dave Arnold believes that mark could be topped this season.

"There are more deer in southern Lower Michigan," he explains. "There are more farms in this part of the state, giving the deer a better opportunity to keep a full stomach. If the corn is cut and if hunters get a tracking snow, southern Michigan sportsmen should have the best deer season that they have ever had."

Outdoor Trail

By JOHN VANDEN HEED

The state park campground reservation system comes up for renewal this year, and it appears certain the legislature will approve continuation of the popular program.

Reservations were up 25 per cent this season, the second year for the system. The overall total stood at 17,500, with the Ludington and South Higgins Lake parks the leaders.

The reservation program was set up by the legislature for a two-year experimental period. It includes reservations covering a minimum of four days and a maximum of 15. Reservations include a $2 fee, so no state financial support is required.

"I don't really anticipate any difficulty in continuing the program," says H.B. Guillaume of the Department of Natural Resources' parks division. "It has had marvellous acceptance...we've had very few complaints."

But parks people are receiving opposition to rumored increases in the general camping fee.

It went up to $4 for the past camping season, and there's talk that the bureau of the budget would like to raise it to $6 for next summer. And that would be added to another possible increase for the season vehicle permit from $5 to $10.

Guillaume emphasizes that the hikes are not based on recommendations from the parks division.

If the legislature approves continuation of the reservation system, it probably will be operated basically the same.

There is a possibility of reducing the lead time on reservations. They were originally required 21 days in advance, that was cut to 15 this past summer and it may be cut even farther.

Most of the reservations come over the long holiday weekends. There is a limit of 50 per cent of the camp sites to prevent the entire campground from being filled in advance.

Ludington had 1,853 reservations this year, followed by South Higgins Lake at 1,261 and Interlochen at 1,046.

In southwestern Michigan, Warren Dunes stood at 427, up from 241 in 1974, while Van Buren climbed to 163 from 71.

Overall state park camping was about the same as a year ago, with total park attendance up four per cent through October.

Holland State Park has received the heaviest use with an attendance of 1,208,000. Warren Dunes is second statewide at 1,130,000 (1,038,000 for all of last year) and Van Buren has set a new record at 177,000 (108,000 for all of '74).

Park Addition

The Natural Resources Commission has approved the purchase of a 1.02-acre addition to Warren Dunes State Park in Berrien county. The tract, located adjacent to the park's campground, has been offered for $5,000 by Martin Ciesla.

Another Turkey Hunt Harvest Record Set

For the eighth consecutive year, Michigan's spring turkey hunt set a kill record last spring.

A tabulation of figures by the Department of Natural Resources reveals 349 gobblers shot, compared with 238 in 1974, the previous record year.

The number of hunters applying for permits this year increased by 7,000 over the applicants in 1974, reaching a record total of 24,000. They competed against five to one odds for the 4,900 permits issued.

Permits again were issued for each of Michigan's three major areas supporting wild turkeys — Mio, Baldwin and Allegan.

By far the largest number of birds, 192, were taken in the Mio area (compared with 101 last year). Hunters in the Baldwin area bagged 129 turkeys (100 in 1974). In the Allegan area, only 28 birds were recorded (down from 37 last year).

Area Steelheaders Set Goals At First Meeting

The new Southwestern Michigan Chapter of the Michigan Steelhead and Salmon Fishermen's Association outlined club goals at last week's inaugural meeting at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

The group, which has more than 175 charter members, will sponsor fishing tournaments, work to maintain the fishery in area rivers and possibly work for construction of a perch fishing reef in Lake Michigan.

The next chapter meeting has been set for Dec. 9 (site uncertain), with the topic of discussion being steelhead fishing.

State Parks Open For Hunters

All 89 Michigan state parks with campgrounds will be open as usual during the Nov. 15-30 firearm deer season, but only six will have heated showers and restrooms available, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

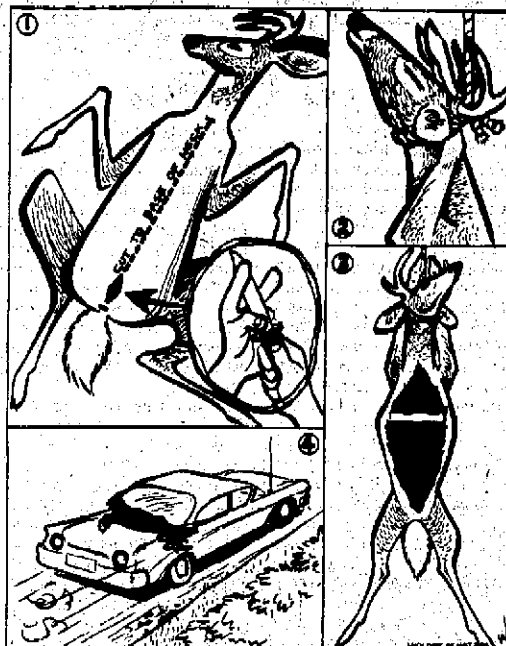

Citing budget considerations, DNR Parks Division Chief O.J. Scherschligt says full service will be available only at these state parks with number of campsites listed in parenthesis:

Gladwin (45), Wilson (38) near Harrison, Hartwick Pines

(46) near Grayling, Mitchell (270) near Cadillac, Rifle River (166) near Lupton, and South Higgins Lake (500) near Roscommon.

Water, toilet and other basic convenience facilities will be available at all other state parks, Scherschligt notes.

Saving That Deer for Dinner

Good cleaning and rapid cooling are two "musts" in preparing a freshly-killed deer for the tenderest, tastiest results. Let's suppose you've just bagged your first whitetail. What now? Assuming your deer is dead, first put your rifle back on "SAFE" and attach the validation tag to the animal. Cut open the entire body cavity, moving from between the hind legs almost to the base of the neck (1). Insert the knife with the cutting edge UP and use your first and second fingers to hold the skin and muscles UP away from the innards. Next, remove the innards, working down from the neck to the tail. Turn the deer belly down and let it drain. Afterwards, tie the fore legs between the antlers or beside the head (2) so it will be easier to drag the deer to camp. In camp, prop the carcass open (3) and protect it from sun, rain and flies in warm weather. If the weather is warmish (above 55 degrees), head for a locker plant or your home freezer. For the trip home, carry the carcass atop your car or across the trunk (4). Many a venison dinner has been overheated and spoiled on the front fender of a car.

Proper Hunting Conduct Urged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Accidents happen to only a small percentage of Michigan hunters each year but they shouldn't happen at all, says a Department of Natural Resources official.

Carelessness caused most of the 275 injuries to hunters last year, said Frank Opolka, DNR recreation safety administrator. There were 1.2 million hunters licensed in 1974.

Opolka said one man last year shot both his feet trying to kill a rabbit that ran up his pant leg. A red-haired man in a tree was killed after another hunter mistook him for a squirrel, and a hunter was shot when his dog stepped on the trigger of a shotgun lying on the ground, he said.

Accidents occur when people ignore basic safety, Opolka said. The worst hunting errors result from horseplay, using a gun as a club, carrying loaded guns in a car, holding a gun by the muzzle or resting it on a foot, climbing fences with loaded guns and shooting at movement without knowing what moved.

"Probably a majority of accidents could have been prevented if the victims had worn 'hunter orange' clothes," Opolka said.

Opolka also listed five DNR hunting safety tips: don't drink and hunt; be certain of your target; be certain no one is in your line of fire; know where your partners are; and check guns twice to be sure they are unloaded.

Putting up a stack of wood for deer camp is almost an instant thing nowadays... an hour or two concert of chain saws at best, with four-wheel drive vehicles taking at-the-stump possession for back door delivery.

Today's trend in all chores and funn'n' is to do them as quickly as possible, with the least amount of effort, leaving plenty of left-over time to wonder what there is to do... also plenty of time for jogging into the same pink of condition that time-consuming activities used to leave you in.

Power is the thing. It is replacing rowboats and snowshoes, hedge clippers and spades, bicycles and Flexible Flyers, miter boxes, and Swede saws... "Hold on just a daburn minute — no power saw in the world can take the place of the Swede saw in a woodlot!"

"Nothin' nicer than the sound of a sharp blade easin' through a green birch log, with overhead effects from a scolding jay and a quothin' raven. No way to improve on the smell of sawdust unless you mix in the fragrance of dead bracken as the frost melts, and the good smell that belongs to fall alone... and no satisfaction like making it through a twelve-inch cut without stopping, knowing it was you that did it — not some noisy, smelly old piece of machinery, bent on disruptin' things for a mile around."

"Yes, sir, makin' wood's good — no way to make it better."

Firearm Season Opens Saturday Area's Deer Outlook Good

A top-notch firearm deer season in southwestern Michigan is predicted by district Department of Natural Resources game chief Bill Bartels.

"Every evidence would point to a good season," says Bartels of the 15-day season which opens Saturday. "There's not much question but that the deer herd is gaining all the time, even though the rate of increase may be slowing down."

Bartels notes about a 10 per cent increase in highway deer kills throughout the district this year, with Berrien county the only one in the immediate area to show a decrease.

The best hunting is expected in Barry and Cass county, with "Allegan county looking up." Allegan also has the advantage of having lot of public land.

There will again be antlerless hunting throughout southwestern Michigan, but only for the first seven days of the season. And doe permits will be at a record high — 110 per cent above last year for Berrien, Cass, Van Buren and Allegan counties.

The 7,700 total — also 72 per cent above the previous record of 4,475 in 1973 — includes 2,380 in Cass county (management unit 94), 2,110 in Van Buren (unit 92), 1,830 in Berrien county (unit 93) and 1,380 in Allegan (unit 84).

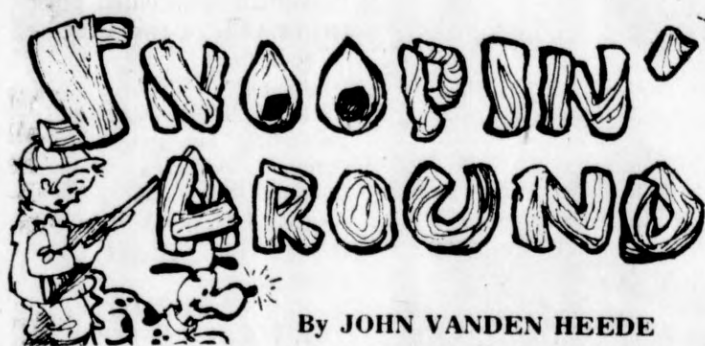

Bartels says the huge increase was made necessary by the seven-day doe season. The shorter season last fall resulted in a lower success ratio, so the DNR decided that more permits were necessary to get the desired doe kill.

Southern Michigan overall had an all-time record buck harvest of 15,960 last fall, and DNR deer specialist Dave Arnold believes that mark could be topped this season.

"There are more deer in southern Lower Michigan," he explains. "There are more farms in this part of the state, giving the deer a better opportunity to keep a full stomach. If the corn is cut and if hunters get a tracking snow, southern Michigan sportsmen should have the best deer season that they have ever had."

The state park campground reservation system comes up for renewal this year, and it appears certain the legislature will approve continuation of the popular program.

Reservations were up 25 per cent this season, the second year for the system. The overall total stood at 17,500, with the Ludington and South Higgins Lake parks the leaders.

The reservation program was set up by the legislature for a two-year experimental period. It includes reservations covering a minimum of four days and a maximum of 15. Reservations include a $2 fee, so no state financial support is required.

"I don't really anticipate any difficulty in continuing the program," says H.B. Guillaume of the Department of Natural Resources' parks division. "It has had marvellous acceptance...we've had very few complaints."

But parks people are receiving opposition to rumored increases in the general camping fee.

It went up to $4 for the past camping season, and there's talk that the bureau of the budget would like to raise it to $6 for next summer. And that would be added to another possible increase for the season vehicle permit from $5 to $10.

Guillaume emphasizes that the hikes are not based on recommendations from the parks division.

If the legislature approves continuation of the reservation system, it probably will be operated basically the same.

There is a possibility of reducing the lead time on reservations. They were originally required 21 days in advance, that was cut to 15 this past summer and it may be cut even farther.

Most of the reservations come over the long holiday weekends. There is a limit of 50 per cent of the camp sites to prevent the entire campground from being filled in advance.

Ludington had 1,853 reservations this year, followed by South Higgins Lake at 1,261 and Interlochen at 1,048.

In southwestern Michigan, Warren Dunes stood at 427, up from 241 in 1974, while Van Buren climbed to 163 from 71.

Overall state park camping was about the same as a year ago, with total park attendance up four per cent through October.

Holland State Park has received the heaviest use with an attendance of 1,209,000. Warren Dunes is second statewide at 1,136,000 (1,038,000 for all of last year) and Van Buren has set a new record at 177,000 (166,000 for all of '74).

Park Addition

The Natural Resources Commission has approved the purchase of a 1.02-acre addition to Warren Dunes State Park in Berrien county. The tract, located adjacent to the park's campground, has been offered for $5,000 by Martin Ciesla.

Another Turkey Hunt Harvest Record Set

For the eighth consecutive year, Michigan's spring turkey hunt set a kill record last spring.

A tabulation of figures by the Department of Natural Resources reveals 349 gobblers shot, compared with 238 in 1974, the previous record year.

The number of hunters applying for permits this year increased by 7,000 over the applicants in 1974, reaching a record total of 24,000. They competed against five to one odds for the 4,900 permits issued.

Permits again were issued for each of Michigan's three major areas supporting wild turkeys — Mio, Baldwin and Allegan.

By far the largest number of birds, 192, were taken in the Mio area (compared with 101 last year). Hunters in the Baldwin area bagged 129 turkeys (100 in 1974). In the Allegan area, only 28 birds were recorded (down from 37 last year).

Area Steelheaders Set Goals At First Meeting

The new Southwestern Michigan Chapter of the Michigan Steelhead and Salmon Fishermen's Association outlined club goals at last week's inaugural meeting at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn.

The group, which has more than 175 charter members, will sponsor fishing tournaments, work to maintain the fishery in area rivers and possibly work for construction of a perch fishing reef in Lake Michigan.

The next chapter meeting has been set for Dec. 9 (site uncertain), with the topic of discussion being steelhead fishing.

State Parks Open For Hunters

All 69 Michigan state parks with campgrounds will be open as usual during the Nov. 15-30 firearm deer season, but only six will have heated showers and restrooms available, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

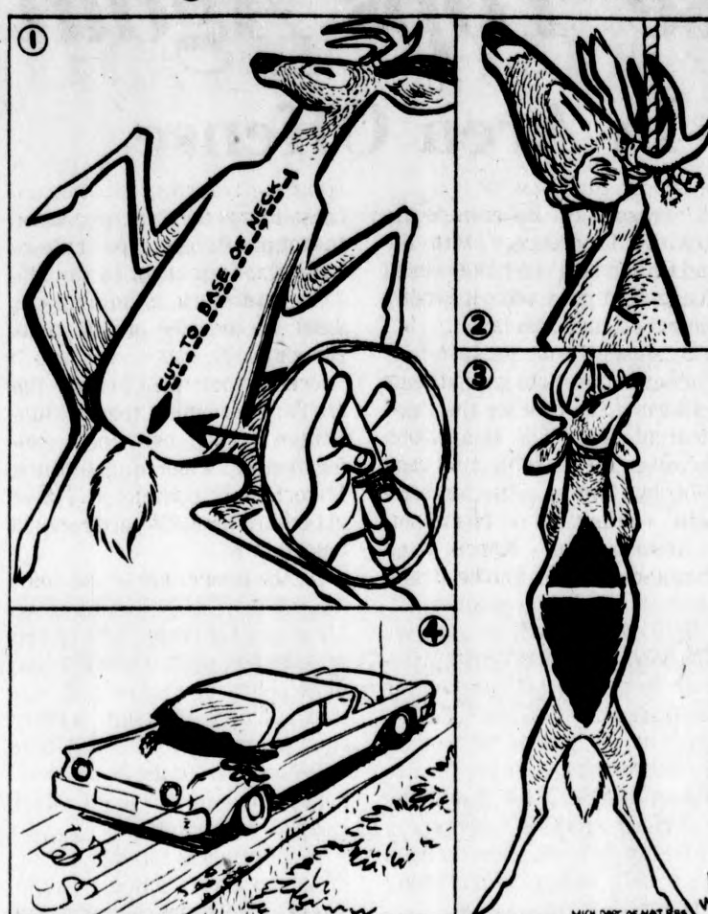

Citing budget considerations, DNR Parks Division Chief O.J. Scherschligt says full service will be available only at these state parks with number of campsites listed in parenthesis:

Gladwin (45), Wilson (36) near Harrison, Hartwick Pines

(46) near Grayling, Mitchell (270) near Cadillac, Rifle River (165) near Lupton, and South Higgins Lake (500) near Roscommon.

Water, toilet and other basic convenience facilities will be available at all other state parks, Scherschligt notes.

Saving That Deer for Dinner

Good cleaning and rapid cooling are two "musts" in preparing a freshly-killed deer for the tenderest, tastiest results. Let's suppose you've just bagged your first whitetail. What now? Assuming your deer is dead, first put your rifle back on "SAFE" and attach the validation tag to the animal. Cut open the entire body cavity, moving from between the hind legs almost to the base of the neck (1). Insert the knife with the cutting edge UP and use your first and second fingers to hold the skin and muscles UP away from the innards. Next remove the innards, working down from the neck to the tail. Turn the deer belly down and let it drain. Afterwards, tie the fore legs between the antlers or beside the head (2) so it will be easier to drag the deer to camp. In camp, prop the carcass open (3) and protect it from sun, rain and flies in warm weather. If the weather is warmish (above 55 degrees), head for a locker plant or your home freezer. For the trip home, carry the carcass atop your car or across the trunk (4). Many a venison dinner has been overheated and spoiled on the front fender of a car.

Proper Hunting Conduct Urged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Accidents happen to only a small percentage of Michigan hunters each year but they shouldn't happen at all, says a Department of Natural Resources official.

Carelessness caused most of the 275 injuries to hunters last year, said Frank Opolka, DNR recreation safety administrator. There were 1.2 million hunters licensed in 1974.

Opolka said one man last year shot both his feet trying to kill a rabbit that ran up his pant leg. A red-haired man in a tree was killed after another hunter mistook him for a squirrel, and a hunter was shot when his dog stepped on the trigger of a shotgun lying on the ground, he said.

Accidents occur when people ignore basic safety, Opolka said. The worst hunting errors result from horseplay, using a gun as a club, carrying loaded guns in a car, holding a gun by the muzzle or resting it on a foot, climbing fences with loaded guns and shooting at movement without knowing what moved.

"Probably a majority of accidents could have been prevented if the victims had worn 'hunter orange' clothes," Opolka said.

Opolka also listed five DNR hunting safety tips: don't drink and hunt; be certain of your target; be certain no one is in your line of fire; know where your partners are; and check guns twice to be sure they are unloaded.

Putting up a stack of wood for deer camp is almost an instant thing nowadays... an hour or two concert of chain saws at best, with four-wheel drive vehicles taking at-the-stump possession for back door delivery.

Lawyers Fight To Delay Patty's Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, her thoughts still wrapped in silence, was ordered to stand trial Dec. 15 on bank robbery charges while her attorneys launched a fight for more time to cure the mental traumas they say she suffered while a captive of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Insisting that Miss Hearst is incompetent to stand trial — despite a judge's ruling to the contrary — attorney Albert Johnson prepared to summon psychiatric experts to tell of their secret probings of Miss Hearst's psyche.

He also began drafting on Monday an appeal to a higher court on the question of how soon the law requires the Hearst trial to begin.

Johnson said he will subpoena three psychiatrists and one psychologist who spent some six weeks examining the heiress in her jail cell. Their sworn testimony, if admitted by the judge, would be given at a hearing set for Nov. 20.

Johnson says he is sure the four would disagree with the ruling of U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter that Miss Hearst is able to aid in her defense.

Meanwhile, at a hearing Monday, the 21-year-old Miss Hearst sat pale and mute, refusing to enter a plea to bank robbery charges. The judge entered a plea of innocent for her.

"If Miss Hearst stands mute, then the court will enter a plea of not guilty to the indictment on these charges," Carter said. He then ignored defense protests and set the trial to open Dec. 15.

She stands indicted on two federal counts — one of bank robbery, the other of using a firearm to commit a felony — in the April 15, 1974, robbery of a Hibernia bank branch in San Francisco by members of the terrorist SLA, which had kidnapped Miss Hearst seven weeks before.

Her attorneys have said Miss

Hearst had been brainwashed by the SLA and took part in the holdup only under threat of execution.

The stocky dark-haired Johnson, standing at a lectern in the jammed courtroom, raised the competency issue as the hearing began. He indicated that he and his partner, F. Lee Bailey, were stunned by the judge's ruling Friday that Miss Hearst is competent to stand trial.

The judge, who offered an opportunity for cross-examination of the doctors before his ruling, did not say immediately whether he would now allow Johnson to call them to testify.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said he will oppose such testimony, which he said should have come earlier.

"We did not choose to cross-examine the psychiatrists (then) because we agreed with their findings," Johnson told the judge. "Your honor's ruling so distorted those findings that it now requires a hearing."

He told Carter, "Your honor is in very grave danger of presenting a defendant for trial, knowing she is incompetent."

The slender Miss Hearst, clad in a brown pants suit, did not utter a word during the hearing. She smiled at her parents and a sister in the courtroom and gave them a small wave goodbye as she was led out.

It was the first time since her arrest Sept. 18 that she had shown any recognition of her family's presence at her several court appearances.

In a private conference in the judge's chambers following the hearing, attorneys agreed that Miss Hearst will not be taken to Los Angeles for arraignment on state charges until after her trial here is over. She is under state indictment there for robbery, kidnapping and assault.

Although defense and prosecution split on the question of her competency, they agreed that the 51 days during which Miss Hearst was under psychiatric evaluation should logically be excluded from the 90-day deadline for her trial to begin.

However, the interim provisions of the Speedy Trial Act, which calls for trial within 90 days of arrest, do not provide for such an exception. And Browning, fearing Miss Hearst might be released from jail because of legal technicalities, urged an early trial date.

"Our recommendation, out of an abundance of caution, would be to set the matter down in the 90 days," said the prosecutor. "The government will be ready to go to trial."

TELLS HOW SHE GOT GUN

Friend Of 'Squeaky' Testifies

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — An elderly friend of Lynette Fromme says he showed her how to use a .45-caliber pistol in July and that she grabbed the gun from his table and left his apartment with it.

It is the same gun she pointed at President Ford in an alleged assassination attempt in September.

Miss Fromme was absent from the court Monday during the testimony about the gun by Harold Boro, 86, a retired engineering draftsman with thinning grey hair.

She had been barred from her trial for the second straight day by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride after refusing to promise to avoid courtroom disruptions.

When MacBride asked her if she would keep quiet and agree to express any objections through her court-appointed attorney, John Virga, she said,

"No, I'm the only one who could put on my defense."

The day had begun when a deputy marshal carried Miss Fromme into the courthouse after she blindfolded herself and refused to walk out of jail.

Miss Fromme, 27, a disciple of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, was ejected twice last Friday after trying to plead guilty and demanding the presence of Manson at her trial.

She was arrested Sept. 5 in a park outside the state Capitol here and charged with attempted assassination of the president. She was the first person to be charged under a federal law passed after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Secret Service agents said she pointed a loaded .45-caliber pistol at Ford a distance of two feet.

If convicted, she could be sentenced to life in prison — the same sentence Manson and four followers are now serving for the 1969 slayings of actress Sharon Tate and four other persons.

Boro described Miss Fromme's July visit to his apartment in the rural community of Jackson.

He said she asked to see a .45-caliber pistol, which he had mentioned on a previous visit. He said he took it from a shelf and showed her how to use it. He said he returned the gun to the shelf, but when she expressed interest in a similar model in a catalogue, he brought it out again and laid it on a table.

"She started shoving the pistol into her handbag along with the holster and bullets," Boro testified. "I said, 'What are you doing?' She didn't answer. She abruptly got up and went for the door."

"I tried to stop her at the door. I told her it was too big, too heavy, too dangerous. I said I'd buy one for her."

"She stopped, thought for about five seconds and went out."

Boro said he had shown her how to fire the gun but had not emphasized that it could not be fired unless the slide was pulled back to insert a cartridge into the firing chamber.

The gun seized from Miss Fromme had four cartridges in the magazine but none in the chamber, officers said. The slide had not been pulled back to chamber the first round.

In another development Monday, Lanier Ramer, a protect assistant on the American Civil Liberties Union's prison project, was found in contempt of court for refusing to say whether Miss Fromme had asked him in July to get anything for her and whether she had discussed her concerns about redwood trees.

Another question asked by Asst. U.S. Atty. Donald Heller, but ruled improper by MacBride, was whether Miss Fromme had asked Ramer to get two guns for her.

Ramer was appearing under a prosecution subpoena.

Youths Swept Off Pier

GRAND HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — Two Grand Haven youths were reported missing today in Lake Michigan after being swept off a pier at Grand Haven State Park by high waves.

Police identified the missing men as Dwayne Middleton, 23, and Daniel Brown, 16.

Officials said three persons were standing on the south pier at the park when a high wave swept them into the lake about 5:30 p.m. Monday. Three surfers saw the incident and went in to assist them.

The surfers — Robert Beaton, 28, of Spring Lake; Beale Eastling, 18, and Steven White, 23, of Grand Haven — were unsuccessful in reaching them.

The Coast Guard, aided by a helicopter, rescued the surfers and one of the three persons from the pier, Douglas Middleton, 18, of Walker. All were taken to a local hospital, according to police. All but Middleton Walker were released.

Middleton was reported in good condition and was held for observation overnight.

Michigan Lottery, Richest In U.S., To Have Birthday

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's money-making lottery is not doing bad for a four-year-old.

As its birthday rolls around Thursday, the richest lottery in America will have made about $440 million, lottery officials say. That is an average of $2.76 million a week in total revenue over the past 156 weeks. At the same time, the lottery has netted about $202 million for the state general fund and doled out about $200 million in prizes for an average of $1.38 million a week, lottery officials said.

The $200 million plowed into prizes ranges from $2 for thousands of "Instant Lottery" winners to $1 million for the lucky one-in-30 million big winners.

About $44 million has gone to sales agents, banks, and for advertising and administrative costs. About $202 has gone into the state general fund, lottery officials report.

Record gross sales revenue for the week of Oct. 23 hit $10.65 million, surpassing the old national record, also set by Michigan, by more than $4 million, officials say.

Michigan lottery tickets first went on sale Nov. 13, 1972, after legislative approval of the Lottery Act earlier in the year. Voters cleared the way for the game in 1971 by voting to repeal the constitutional ban on state-run lotteries.

Michigan's lottery continues to pace the other 11 lottery states in overall ticket sales although recent figures are not in, officials say.

As the popular "Instant Game" phases out in the near future, lottery officials promise to resurrect a successor early in 1976.

Super play contestants are: Doris Beard, 52, a Portland housewife. Her husband, Robert, works at the Oldsmobile forge plant in Lansing, and they have two children.

Court Seat May Go To Republican

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken is likely to act within a month to replace former Justice John Swainson, who has resigned in the wake of a perjury conviction.

His appointment is expected to give the Supreme Court its first Republican majority in seven years.

The names being mulled over by Milliken are secret. But speculation runs toward those in the hopper last May before the governor finally selected Lawrence Lindemer, a Stockbridge attorney, to succeed Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh, who died of cancer.

At that time, top contenders with Lindemer were thought to be judges Robert Danhof and John Gillis of the Michigan Court of Appeals and circuit court judges William Peterson of Wexford County, Horace Gilmore of Wayne County and James Thorburn of Oakland County.

Milliken also has said he would not rule out placing another woman on the high court.

Former Calhoun County Probate Judge Mary Coleman was nominated by Republicans and elected to the Supreme Court in 1972.

Whoever gets the nod will have to run for the seat in next November's general election, along with Lindemer and Chief Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh.

Winners in that election will fill the remainder of term's originally held by Thomas M. Kavanagh and Swainson. Those terms expire in January 1979 and January 1983, respectively.

The resignation of Swainson, a liberal Democrat, will give the GOP its first Supreme Court majority in seven years if Milliken appoints a Republican as expected. It also could give Republicans an edge in capturing two of three court seats in the 1978 elections and maintaining the majority through the mid-1980s.

That theory depends on the tendency of incumbents to beat challengers. However, the theory could dissolve if top-of-the-ticket Democrats in the Senate race win and drag jurists along on their coattails. It also could prove a faulty theory in the event a familiar politician or judge is a challenger.

Democrats held a 4-2 edge at the beginning of 1975 before Swainson's resignation and Thomas M. Kavanagh's death. Justice Charles Levin is an independent.

The state's highest court probably will take on a more conservative flavor as the result of the Republican takeover, predicts William McLaughlin, state GOP chairman.

The Supreme Court rules on appeals that have traveled from a thicket of lower courts through the state Court of Appeals.

Chain-smoking and at times apparently on the verge of tears, the 50-year-old Swainson announced his resignation Friday after a federal court conviction on three perjury counts. He was acquitted of bribery conspiracy at the same trial.

In theory, the seven court justices are chosen to staggered eight-year terms in nonpartisan elections. But political parties nominate the candidates, so campaigns and careers have a partisan personality.

Tainted Calves Executed

CHASE, Mich. (AP) — Doug Green drove his herd of 107 calves and heifers into a large pit on his farm Monday, then walked away while others executed the animals with rifles.

"I didn't want to do it this way," he said.

Green had asked permission to ship his animals to a state burial ground near Kalkaska, where veterinarians have destroyed more than 21,000 cattle contaminated by poisoned feed in a state-wide incident in 1973.

Green was denied permission to use the burial ground, so he slaughtered his tainted animals and put them in a mass grave on his Lake County farm.

The contamination, which many have called the largest ever in the nation, was traced to feed sold by the Michigan Farm Bureau Services Inc. The feed was accidentally mixed with a toxic fire-retardant chemical, polybrominated biphenyl (PBB).

Green said he noticed symptoms of poisoning in his cattle early in 1974. The animals lost weight and their joints and glands were swollen, he said. Milk production in his herd eventually dropped from 2,400 pounds per day to less than 400.

However, state laboratory tests showed little or no trace of PBB in his animals, Green said. Federal guidelines specify that animals with PBB concentrations of less than three-tenths parts per million are safe for human consumption.

Lawmakers ruled last month that the state could not assist in the voluntary destruction of herds which did not meet the federal limit. In addition to cattle, tens of thousands of other farm animals have been destroyed, and large amounts of contaminated produce was dumped.

State health officials said the public was not harmed. Green said regardless of federal standards, he felt his animals' meat and milk were unsafe and he refused to sell them. Green said private tests by laboratories in Ann Arbor and Wisconsin showed high levels of PBB in some of the animals — as much as five times over the "safe" consumer level.

"I wouldn't sell them, not even for dog food," said Alvin Green, 57, Doug's father and a partner in the farm.

"We had a sick herd and I think enough of the consumer that I would not put such cattle on the market," the elder Green said.

The suit seeks several million dollars in damages on behalf of the farmers.

The two lawyers told the Greens that their animals were the best evidence available for the lawsuit, which has not yet come to trial.

But Alvin Green said caring and feeding for the non-productive animals was too expensive.

"We couldn't go on any longer. I borrowed almost as much money as I can,"

His wife, Hilda, agreed.

"We've got to sell our corn crop for cash this year," she said. "We need something to go on. We couldn't just feed it to these deadbeat cows."

Scientists Isolating New Pain Reliever

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) —

Scientists are expected to isolate within a year a non-addictive, brain-produced compound which may be vastly more effective in relieving pain than morphine or cocaine, a Johns Hopkins University researcher said Monday.

Dr. Solomon H. Snyder, professor of pharmacology at the Baltimore, Md., university's medical school, said the compound endorphin could be extracted from the brain of virtually any vertebrate or synthesized artificially.

He said a Swiss drug firm has stockpiled brain tissue from 500 calves to prepare for limited production as soon as this becomes possible.

"Developing a potent and truly non-addicting (pain killer) would represent a very great step forward in the treatment of pain," Snyder said.

He said it also is "conceivable" that scientists, by measuring levels of the compound in the brain, could predict whether a child would be particularly susceptible to addiction to heroin and other opiates.

Snyder said it is possible that high levels of endorphin in some people make them less sensitive to physical and emotional pain. This is called the "pain threshold" concept, he said.

Experiments on rats at Johns Hopkins showed significant pain relief by endorphin, Snyder said. Within the rat brains, endorphin appears to be 50 to 100 times more potent than morphine, though other factors could decrease its pain-killing effect in humans, he said.

A separate experiment at the University of Aberdeen in Scotland showed that endorphin was as effective as morphine in inhibiting contractions of smooth muscles in guinea pig intestines, he said.

Endorphin is a peptide consisting of seven or eight amino acids linked together in structure shorter than but similar to that of proteins.

The compound, like morphine, acts to stop impulse transmissions between neurons in the brain. Pain is perceived by the body when these neurons communicate with one another, so when this communication ceases, relief occurs.

Tot Needs One More Operation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Christopher Wall Jr., who has survived three months with his heart pumping outside his body, needs just one more operation to correct his condition.

Christopher underwent complicated surgery hours after his birth. He survived a serious bout with pneumonia a month ago. A heart defect discovered at birth is mending itself.

Ambulance Fund Drive Scheduled

NEW BUFFALO — Members of the New Buffalo ambulance service are planning a fund raising drive to raise $13,000 for a new ambulance.

Clarence Kerous, president of the ambulance service, said the current vehicle being used can carry two patients, but state requirements which go into effect in about year, will require capacity of four patients.

Equipment in the present ambulance van, a 1972 model, could be transferred to the new one. Kerous said the ambulance service has about $2,000 in its fund, but also has about $7,000 in unpaid bills from its customers outstanding.

The ambulance service, started in 1971, has approximately 20 volunteers, including four emergency medical technicians and two paramedics.

The service is an auxiliary of the New Buffalo police post.

PALISADES PARK

Lake Bulkhead Permit Sought

COVERT — An application has been filed for a federal permit to construct a bulkhead and groins in Lake Michigan off property of the Palisades Park Country club, near here.

The application, filed with the Army Corps of Engineers, Detroit district office, was filed by Dr. Robert L. Replogle, of Chicago, Ill., a country club property owner, acting as agent for the country club.

The proposed permeable

wood pile and timber bulkhead will be about 470 feet in total length. The seven proposed wood pile and timber groins will extend about 40 feet lakeward from the face of the proposed bulkhead. Purpose of the proposed structure is to afford shore protection.

A decision on issuing the permit will be based on an evaluation of the probable impact of the activity on the public interest.

Court Seat May Go To Republican

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken is likely to act within a month to replace former Justice John Swainson, who has resigned in the wake of a perjury conviction.

His appointment is expected to give the Supreme Court its first Republican majority in seven years.

The names being mulled over by Milliken are secret. But speculation runs toward those in the hopper last May before the governor finally selected Lawrence Lindemer, a Stockbridge attorney, to succeed Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh, who died of cancer.

At that time, top contenders with Lindemer were thought to be judges Robert Danhof and John Gillis of the Michigan Court of Appeals and circuit court judges William Peterson of Wexford County, Horace Gilmore of Wayne County and James Thorburn of Oakland County.

Milliken also has said he would not rule out placing another woman on the high court.

Former Calhoun County Probate Judge Mary Coleman was nominated by Republicans and elected to the Supreme Court in 1972.

Whoever gets the nod will have to run for the seat in next November's general election, along with Lindemer and Chief Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh.

Winners in that election will fill the remainder of term's originally held by Thomas M. Kavanagh and Swainson. Those terms expire in January 1979 and January 1983, respectively.

The resignation of Swainson, a liberal Democrat, will give the GOP its first Supreme Court majority in seven years if Milliken appoints a Republican as expected. It also could give Republicans an edge in capturing two of three court seats in the 1976 elections and maintaining the majority through the mid-1980s.

That theory depends on the tendency of incumbents to beat challengers. However, the theory could dissolve if top-of-the-ticket Democrats in the Senate race win and drag jurists along on their coattails. It also could prove a faulty theory in the event a familiar politician or judge is a challenger.

Democrats held a 4-2 edge at the beginning of 1975 before Swainson's resignation and Thomas M. Kavanagh's death. Justice Charles Levin is an independent.

The state's highest court probably will take on a more conservative flavor as the result of the Republican takeover, predicts William McLaughlin, state GOP chairman.

The Supreme Court rules on appeals that have traveled from a thick of lower courts through the state Court of Appeals.

Chain-smoking and at times apparently on the verge of tears, the 50-year-old Swainson announced his resignation Friday after a federal court conviction on three perjury counts. He was acquitted of bribery conspiracy at the same trial.

In theory, the seven court justices are chosen to staggered eight-year terms in nonpartisan elections. But political parties nominate the candidates, so campaigns and careers have a partisan personality.

Martin on July 12 attempted to deliver the substance to an undercover narcotics agent in Bridgman.

Hughes also handed down one of the two jail terms to Gerald L. Murphy, 44, of New Buffalo, who received six months in jail for unlawful use of a motor vehicle — a car owned by Joseph Grady — Sept. 26 in Coloma.

Benton township.

Roy L. Campbell, 18, 385 Urbandale avenue, Benton township, was given two years probation and assessed $250 fine and costs for larceny from a person — the theft of cash from Nathaniel Taltan Aug. 15 on Britain avenue in Benton township.

Daniel R. McGinnis, 19, of Three Oaks, was placed on three years probation and assessed $200 fine and costs for attempted breaking and entering of a boat moored at Oselka's marina in New Buffalo on April 10.

Willie Ingram, 46, of South Bend, was given two years probation and ordered to pay $400 fine and costs for carrying a concealed weapon Feb. 18 on M-51 in Niles township.

Judge Hughes placed Susan M. Chastain, 27, of Berrien Springs, on two years probation for attempting to utter and publish a check for $30 Aug. 24 at Apple Valley market in Oronoko township. Hughes also ordered her to make restitution of $30 to the market.

Judge Chester J. Byrns placed Thomas J. Lombardo, 18, of 2748 Hillandale road, Sodus township, on three years probation for breaking and entering the home of Jerry Engle at 2028 Hillandale between Dec. 14 and 30. Lombardo was also ordered to pay $400 fine and costs.

In arraignments before Judge Hughes:

Ronnie Williams, 31, of 418 Territorial road, Benton Harbor, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon — a pistol — against Perry Hadley Oct. 20 at Fourth and Territorial in Benton Harbor.

Dale R. Vernon, 27, of 64 North State street, Niles, pleaded guilty to third degree criminal sexual conduct with a girl under the age of 13 Aug. 29 in Niles.

Area Farm Contract Violators Are Cited

The Federal District court at Grand Rapids has issued orders permanently enjoining six persons from further violations of the federal Farm Labor Contracting Act, according to the Chicago office of Information for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Named in the court orders were Manuel D. Munoz and Rosa Lio Munoz of the West Prillwitz farm, Eau Claire; Mariano Elizondo and Hector Elizondo of the James Scherer Farm, Dowagiac; Leonard Frank of Berrien Center, and James Ellis of the Robert Froehlich farm, Berrien Center. The court ordered the farm labor contractors to provide written notice to each employee and public posting of the terms and conditions of their employment when the worker is recruited, including area of employment, wage rates and charges to be made by the contractors.

In another case filed in the Grand Rapids district federal court, the labor department asked for a permanent injunction against Berrybrook Farms, Inc., Route 2, Decatur. The complaint alleged a violation of the Farm Labor Contracting Registration Act by failing to obtain a certificate of registration while acting as a farm labor contractor.

TRAFFIC FATALITY

Pleads Innocent To Negligent Homicide

Pleading innocent to the charge was Edward Earl Harden, 35, of 1721 St. Joseph road, Berrien Springs, who was continued free on bond by Judge Julian E. Hughes to await trial.

was killed in the crash. The accident occurred a quarter of a mile from the woman's home.

In a related matter, Miss O'Brien's father, Edwin, has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court seeking $100,000 damages as a result of his daughter's death. Named defendants in the suit were Harden singly and Harden and Gary Rusk, doing business as Rusk and Harden Construction Co.

The suit claims Harden was driving the front-end loader at an unsafe speed, which caused him to lose control and cross the center line of the road, striking the car driven by Miss O'Brien.

TRAFFIC FATALITY

Pleads Innocent To Negligent Homicide

The alleged driver of a front-end loader which collided with a car in September, killing a 19-year-old girl, pleaded innocent to a charge of negligent homicide when arraigned yesterday in Berrien Circuit court.

Pleading innocent to the charge was Edward Earl Harden, 35, of 1721 St. Joseph road, Berrien Springs, who was continued free on bond by Judge Julian E. Hughes to await trial.

Harden is accused as the driver of a large front-end loader which allegedly crossed the center line of Britain avenue in Benton township on Sept. 17 and collided head-on with a car driven by Kathleen Therese O'Brien, of Britain avenue, who was killed in the crash.

The accident occurred a quarter of a mile from the woman's home.

In a related matter, Miss O'Brien's father, Edwin, has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court seeking $100,000 damages as a result of his daughter's death. Named defendants in the suit were Harden singly and Harden and Gary Rusk, doing business as Rusk and Harden Construction Co.

The suit claims Harden was driving the front-end loader at an unsafe speed, which caused him to lose control and cross the center line of the road, striking the car driven by Miss O'Brien.

VOTER SIGNUP

License Bureau Plan Is Working

LANSING —More than 3,000 voter applications were processed over a six-county area of southwestern Michigan during the first month of a new law permitting such applications to be handled by secretary of state offices.

The 3,000 applications during October were at secretary of state offices in Berrien, Van Buren, Cass, St. Joseph, Calhoun and Kalamazoo counties, according to figures released today by the Michigan secretary of state office here.

The applications account for about 8.6 per cent of the 35,678 voter applications processed under the new law, statewide.

The figures released do not include voter registrations processed by local government clerks' offices in the traditional manner.

Of the 35,678 applications processed at secretary of state offices, 17,449 were new voter registrations (people who had never registered or just moved into their area); while 18,229 were change of address applications.

There are three secretary of state offices in Berrien county: 244 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor; 2600 Niles avenue, St. Joseph; and 1909 Oak street, Niles.

Measles 'Epidemic' Feared In Berrien

There exists a strong possibility that Berrien county will soon be facing an epidemic of hard (seven day) measles, according to Jerome A. Erickson, health director of the Berrien County Health department.

Erickson said there has been concern shown by Washington, D.C. health officials over the current measles outbreak in southwestern Michigan.

He noted that within the past six weeks there have been 125 cases of measles reported in southwestern Michigan, 18 of which were in Berrien county.

Measles is a highly communicable disease which often causes a high fever (101-105 degrees), coughing, a reddish body rash, or swelling of the eyes. It is rarely fatal, but measles can develop into pneumonia or encephalitis in children less than two-years-old.

Dr. Grey Hayden, an official from the Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, Ga., will be meeting with Michigan officials to plan a program to prevent the spread of measles.

Hayden urges all physicians to notify the local health departments of any cases of measles diagnosed. Also, if children have received the vaccine before one year of age, they should be re-immunized.

The Berrien County Health department is currently consulting with the Michigan Department of Public Health regarding the initiation of a county-wide program to stop the spread of measles.

In addition, the Berrien County Health department is presently holding an immunization campaign for the Niles and Brantwine school districts due to an outbreak in some elementary schools there.

County health officials also urge parents whose children are in schools with immunization programs to return permission slips as soon as possible. A child cannot be immunized by county health officials until a parent's signature is obtained.

Parents are urged to see their family physician or one of the health department's immunization clinics if they are not sure of their children's immunization status.

Health department clinics are held at the Benton Harbor location, 769 Pipestone street each Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and at the Niles Preventive Medicine center each Thursday from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Clinics also are held at Berrien General hospital on the third Monday of each month from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and in the Chikaming Medical center on the third Wednesday of each month from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

CASE NO. U-4867

TO THE PRESENT AND PROSPECTIVE ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS OF CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY

NOTICE OF HEARING ON AMENDMENTS TO RULE 2, RULE 3, RULE 12(K), RULE 13, AND RULE 14 OF CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY'S STANDARD RULES AND REGULATIONS

On July 3, 1975, Consumers Power Company (the "Company") filed an application with the Michigan Public Service Commission in Case No. U-4867 which requests authority to amend Rules 2, 3, 12(k), 13, and 14 of its presently effective Standard Rules and Regulations (MPSC No. 7 - Electric, Consumers Power Company).

Rule 2 relates to the installation of electric service lines from the Company's distribution system to a point of attachment on the customer's premises;

Rule 3 relates to special arrangements necessitated by the customer's unusual facility requirements;

Rule 12(k) relates to electric distribution systems and service connections to provide service to mobile homes in courts;

Rule 13 relates to the Company's policy regarding the construction of new or modified electric facilities, other than service connections and metering equipment, to serve new customers or to serve changing needs of existing customers; and

Rule 14 relates to the installation of underground distribution systems and service connections.

The Company states in its application that the cost of construction of service connections and distribution systems, whether aboveground or underground, has greatly increased since the present rules and charges made thereunder were approved. However, the Company's presently effective Rules 2, 3, 12(k), 13, and 14 do not reflect these increased costs. Accordingly, the Company proposes to amend such rules to more appropriately reflect the current costs of constructing such facilities.

Proposed Rule 2 would require the customer to bear the cost of installing service connections from the Company's distribution lines to the point of attachment on the customer's premises; and provides that all such charges are nonrefundable and must be paid prior to the commencement of construction. For residential customers (including residential in mobile home courts and dwellings with no more than two living units), the service connection charge would be equal to the system-wide average cost of new residential overhead service connections. For commercial and industrial customers, and multiple dwellings of three or more units, the service connection charge will be based on the Company's estimate of the total construction cost.

Under existing Rule 2, service connections are in most instances provided at no charge to the customer.

Proposed Rule 2 also provides that changes in the route or size of the service connection made at the customer's request, or because of changes in the customer's requirements, will be made at the customer's expense. No ownership rights in any facilities provided by the Company will pass to any person as a result of charges made under proposed Rule 2.

Proposed Rule 3, dealing with unusual customer facility requirements, is reworded for clarity.

Proposed Rule 12(k), dealing with electric service to individually served mobile homes in courts, provides that construction of facilities under this rule may also be subject to contributions and deposits under proposed Rules 2, 3 or 13. Under existing Rule 12(k), construction projects covered by Rule 12(k) would not be subject to contributions or deposits under other rules.

Proposed Rule 13 states the Company's policy regarding construction or modification of electric facilities. For residential customers, proposed Rule 13 provides for a construction allowance equal to one year's estimated revenue from new permanent customers to be immediately served from the new facilities. Where the estimated costs of construction or modification exceed the construction allowance, a deposit equal to the difference between such costs and the construction allowance will be required. Refund amounts are based on one year's revenue from new customers added to the system, and a three-year refund period is provided.

Existing Rule 13 provides for a free extension of distribution facilities up to 1,000 feet in length to serve a new residential customer. For extensions in excess of 1,000 feet, a charge of $1.30 per foot over 1,000 feet is made. Existing Rule 13 provides for refunds based on three times the annual revenue received from new customers added to the facilities, and the refund period is five years.

Where the construction of electric facilities is required to serve a commercial or industrial customer or any other customer not eligible for consideration as a residential customer, proposed Rule 13 provides for a construction allowance equal to the lesser of (1) $15,000 or (2) the estimated annual revenue to be received from permanent customers to be immediately served from the new facilities. Where the estimated costs of construction or modification exceed the construction allowance, a deposit equal to the difference between such costs and the construction allowance will be required. Refund amounts are based on one year's revenue from new customers added to the system, and a three-year refund period is provided.

Under existing Rule 13, the construction allowance for commercial or industrial customers is three times the estimated annual revenue to be received from customers to be immediately served from the new facilities. The refund amount with respect to customers later served from the facilities is the amount by which three times the annual revenue contributed by such new customers exceeds the greater of (1) the original revenue estimate or (2) the highest preceding annual revenue. The refund period under existing Rule 13 is five years.

Proposed Rule 14, dealing with underground distribution systems and service connections, differs from existing Rule 14 primarily in that the section of existing Rule 14 covering the underground extension policy is deleted. All extensions, whether above- or underground, will be covered under proposed Rule 13. Proposed Rule 14 also provides that, where electric facilities are placed underground at the option of the Company, the required contribution will be determined according to the provisions of proposed Rule 13. Under existing Rule 14, where electric facilities are placed underground at the option of the Company or pursuant to local ordinance, the Company bears the cost of such construction.

Proposed Rules 12(k), 13 and 14 also differ from existing Rules 12(k), 13 and 14 in that payment of all required deposits and contributions in advance of the commencement of construction is expressly made mandatory. Under existing Rules 12(k), 13 and 14, payment in advance was at the option of the Company.

In addition to the foregoing, other changes to Rules 2, 3, 12(k), 13, and 14 were proposed by the Company. The application of the Company in Case No. U-4867 and copies of existing and proposed Rules 2, 3, 12(k), 13, and 14 are available for public inspection at the offices of the Michigan Public Service Commission, Law Building, 525 W. Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan 48913, and at each local office of Consumers Power Company.

Hearings on the application in Case No. U-4867 have been scheduled and notice is given that:

A. A public hearing will be held at 9:30 AM on December 2, 1975 in the offices of the Michigan Public Service Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan, for the purpose of determining whether or in what form proposed Rules 2, 3, 12(k), 13, and 14 of Consumers Power Company's Standard Rules and Regulations should be approved by the Commission;

B. Any party seeking to intervene in this proceeding, in accordance with Rule 11 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, shall file with the Commission, at least five (5) days prior to December 2, 1975, an original and twelve (12) copies of the petition to intervene, together with proof of service upon Consumers Power Company. Service upon Consumers Power Company may be made by mailing (First Class) a copy of the petition to intervene to the Company's General Offices at 212 West Michigan Avenue, Jackson, Michigan 49201.

C. PROPOSED RULES 2, 3, 12(k), 13, AND 14 DESCRIBED IN THIS NOTICE ARE IN THE FORM REQUESTED BY CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY. THE MICHIGAN PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION MAY, EITHER AUTHORIZE THEIR ADOPTION IN THE FORM REQUESTED, DENY THEIR ADOPTION, OR MAY ORDER THE ADOPTION OF NEW RULES 2, 3, 12(k), 13, AND 14 IN A FORM DIFFERING FROM THAT DESCRIBED HEREIN.

Jurisdiction in this matter is pursuant to 1909 PA 106, as amended, MCLA 460.551 et seq; 1919 PA 419, as amended, MCLA 460.511 et seq; 1939 PA 3, as amended, MCLA 460.1 et seq; 1969 PA 306, as amended, MCLA 24.201 et seq; and the Rules of Practice and Procedure before the Commission, 1954 Administrative Code, Supplement No. 54, R 460.11 et seq.

VOTER SIGNUP

License Bureau Plan Is Working

LANSING — More than 3,000 voter applications were processed over a six-county area of Southwestern Michigan during the first month of a new law permitting such applications to be handled by secretary of state offices.

The 3,000 applications during October were at secretary of state offices in Berrien, Van Buren, Cass, St. Joseph, Calhoun and Kalamazoo counties, according to figures released today by the Michigan secretary of state office here.

The applications account for about 8.66 per cent of the 35,678 voter applications processed under the new law, statewide.

The figures released do not include voter registrations processed by local government clerks' offices in the traditional manner.

Of the 35,678 applications processed at secretary of state offices, 17,449 were new voter registrations (people who had never registered or just moved into their area); while 18,229 were change of address applications.

There are three secretary of state offices in Berrien county: 244 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor; 2609 Niles avenue, St. Joseph; and 1909 Oak street, Niles.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says he was not consulted by the administration before President Ford reshuffled his top defense and national security aides.

He's Suing To Visit Dog In Pound

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (AP) — William Foss has filed suit to visit his dog in the city pound.

Noah, a boxer, is being held as evidence in a first-degree burglary case against Foss. Foss, 20, is accused of trying to steal Noah from the pound Sept. 22 and is scheduled to go on trial Jan. 20.

Public defender John R. Sellman said Monday he was told Foss is not allowed to visit Noah because he might tamper with the evidence.

Sellman said the dog was picked up in violation of the city's leash law.

On July 3, 1975, Consumers Power Company (the "Company") filed an application with the Michigan Public Service Commission in Case No. U-4867 which requests authority to amend Rules 2, 3, 12(k), 13, and 14 of its presently effective Standard Rules and Regulations (MPSC No. 7 — Electric, Consumers Power Company).

Rule 2 relates to the installation of electric service lines from the Company's distribution system to a point of attachment on the customer's premises;

Rule 3 relates to special arrangements necessitated by the customer's unusual facility requirements;

Rule 12(k) relates to electric distribution systems and service connections to provide service to mobile homes in courts;

Rule 13 relates to the Company's policy regarding the construction of new or modified electric facilities, other than service connections and metering equipment, to serve new customers or to serve changing needs of existing customers; and

Rule 14 relates to the installation of underground distribution systems and service connections.

The Company states in its application that the cost of construction of service connections and distribution systems, whether aboveground or underground, has greatly increased since the present rules and charges made thereunder were approved. However, the Company's presently effective Rules 2, 3, 12(k), 13, and 14 do not reflect these increased costs. Accordingly, the Company proposes to amend such rules to more appropriately reflect the current costs of constructing such facilities.

Proposed Rule 2 would require the customer to bear the cost of installing service connections from the Company's distribution lines to the point of attachment on the customer's premises, and provides that all such charges are nonrefundable and must be paid prior to the commencement of construction. For residential customers (including residential in mobile home courts and dwellings with no more than two living units), the service connection charge would be equal to the system-wide average cost of new residential overhead service connections. For commercial and industrial customers, and multiple dwellings of three or more units, the service connection charge will be based on the Company's estimate of the total construction cost.

Under existing Rule 2, service connections are in most instances provided at no charge to the customer.

Proposed Rule 2 also provides that changes in the route or size of the service connection made at the customer's request, or because of changes in the customer's requirements, will be made at the customer's expense. No ownership rights in any facilities provided by the Company will pass to any person as a result of charges made under proposed Rule 2.

Proposed Rule 3, dealing with unusual customer facility requirements, is reworded for clarity.

Proposed Rule 12(k), dealing with electric service to individually served mobile homes in courts, provides that construction of facilities under this rule may also be subject to contributions and deposits under proposed Rules 2, 3 or 13. Under existing Rule 12(k), construction projects covered by Rule 12(k) would not be subject to contributions or deposits under other rules.

Proposed Rule 13 states the Company's policy regarding construction or modification of electric facilities. For residential customers, proposed Rule 13 provides for a construction allowance equal to one year's estimated revenue from new permanent customers to be immediately served from the new facilities. Where the estimated costs of construction or modification exceed the construction allowance, a deposit equal to the difference between such costs and the construction allowance will be required. Refund amounts are based on one year's revenue from new customers added to the system, and a three-year refund period is provided.

Existing Rule 13 provides for a free extension of distribution facilities up to 1,000 feet in length to serve a new residential customer. For extensions in excess of 1,000 feet, a charge of $1.30 per foot over 1,000 feet is made. Existing Rule 13 provides for refunds based on three times the annual revenue received from new customers added to the facilities, and the refund period is five years.

Where the construction of electric facilities is required to serve a commercial or industrial customer or any other customer not eligible for consideration as a residential customer, proposed Rule 13 provides for a

Measles 'Epidemic' Feared In Berrien

There exists a strong possibility that Berrien county will soon be facing an epidemic of hard (seven day) measles, according to Jerome A. Erickson, health director of the Berrien County Health department.

Erickson said there has been concern shown by Washington, D.C. health officials over the current measles outbreak in southwestern Michigan.

He noted that within the past six weeks there have been 125 cases of measles reported in southwestern Michigan, 19 of which were in Berrien county.

Measles is a highly communicable disease which often causes a high fever (101-105 degrees), coughing, a reddish body rash, or swelling of the eyes. It is rarely fatal, but measles can develop into pneumonia or encephalitis in children less than two-years-old.

Dr. Grey Hayden, an official from the Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, Ga., will be meeting with Michigan officials to plan a program to prevent the spread of measles.

Hayden urges all physicians to notify the local health departments of any cases of measles diagnosed. Also, if children have received the vaccine before one year of age, they should be re-immunized.

The Berrien County Health department is currently consulting with the Michigan Department of Public Health regarding the initiation of a county-wide program to stop the spread of measles.

In addition, the Berrien County Health department is presently holding an immunization campaign for the Niles and Brandywine school districts due to an outbreak in some elementary schools there.

County health officials also urge parents whose children are in schools with immunization programs to return permission slips as soon as possible. A child cannot be immunized by county health officials until a parent's signature is obtained.

Parents are urged to see the family physician or one of the health department's immunization clinics if they are not sure of their children's immunization status.

Health department clinics are held at the Benton Harbor location, 769 Pipestone street, Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., and at the Niles Preventive Medicine center each Thursday from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Clinics also are held at Berrien General hospital on the third Monday of each month from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and the Chikaming Medical center on the third Wednesday of each month from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

NY Druggists Will Protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Unless New York City can come up with $5 million in back payments this week, a society claiming to represent 80 percent of the city's Medicaid druggists, will stop filling Medicaid prescriptions next Monday.

The protest action was approved unanimously Sunday by 350 members of the Empire City Pharmaceutical Society, representing nearly 1,400 pharmacist-owners. Many druggists said they would make exceptions in "life and death" situations.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Swings Upward

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today, supported by signs of a continuing decline in interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up a fraction, and gainers moved out to a 4-3 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

The government reported after Monday's close that yields on 13-week Treasury bills had fallen to 5.278 per cent from 5.302 at the previous sale.

And brokers noted persisting speculation on Wall Street that the Federal Reserve would soon lower its discount rate — the rate it charges on loans to its member commercial banks — from the present 6 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent.

Today's early prices included: Borden, unchanged at 28; Household Finance, up 1/4 at 16; Deere & Co., ahead 3/4 to 49 3/4; and Bethlehem Steel, down 3/4 at 30 1/4.

In Monday's narrow decline the Dow Jones industrial average lost .32 to 835.48.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 6-5 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index dipped .01 to 47.23.

Big Board volume was a moderate 14.91 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .29 to 83.63.

Franco Has Congestion In Lungs

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco has developed lung complications and medical sources said the symptoms could indicate the onset of bronchial pneumonia.

Information Minister Leon Herrera, reading to newsmen today the latest medical bulletin from the 82-year-old leader's doctors, reported that Franco had developed a lung edema and small congestive spots in his lungs four days after a major abdominal operation.

The new lung complications came only hours after doctors reported that they had stopped the general's artificial breathing apparatus because difficulties in his breathing had eased.

NY Denies Owing Back Drug Bills

NEW YORK (AP) — City officials have denied allegations that New York owes pharmacy owners $5 million for filling Medicaid prescriptions. The pharmacists had said they would refuse to fill new prescriptions until they are paid for bills up to two years old.

Anthony Vaccarello, executive assistant to Mayor Abraham D. Beame, said, "The oldest unpaid invoice is just a few months old."

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly half of the capacity of U.S. power plants sits idle through the night "while we worry about future power cutbacks during the day," according to William G. Kuhns, chairman of General Public Utilities Corp.

Rhodesia Under Pressure

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rhodesia's white rulers completed a decade of independence today, but Prime Minister Ian Smith faces a troubled year as pressure mounts for black majority rule. The 274,000 whites who hold power over 5.4 million Africans face the prospect of an escalated guerrilla war with black nationalists, increasing pressure from South Africa to seek a political settlement with African leaders and critical economic woes. Smith, rejecting British demands for majority rule, unilaterally declared the independence of the British colony on Nov. 11, 1965.

NOT FOR SCHOOL?

Covert Questions Bill For Vacuum

COVERT — The Covert school board voted last night to turn over to the Van Buren county prosecutor's office a $300 bill for equipment allegedly picked up by a former school board member but never delivered to the school.

Harry Sarno, the former school board member who admits that he picked up a central vacuuming system from a Stevensville firm, said there was a good reason why it was not delivered to the school.

The equipment, he said, was authorized by the township board for, and has been installed in, the township fire department hall.

He said it was never meant for the school.

He said the firm "made an honest mistake" in sending the bill to the Covert school district instead of the township board.

The bill came from the Glenford Home center in Stevensville.

Sarno, who had served on the school board until July, said the board could have cleared up any questions by "making a simple telephone call to me."

Sarno has served on the volunteer fire department for about 35 years. He said he charged the department nothing for labor in installing the central vacuum system.

Supt. William Randall, contacted at his home after the meeting, said the board's attorney advised them to "remain aloof" from any investigation of the Oct. 8 bill and to turn the matter over to the county prosecutor.

In other areas last night, the board voted to purchase a new elementary school heating boiler.

The $8,244 contract for the new system, and for tearing out the present unit, went to Bosch Plumbing of Grand Rapids.

Twin Cities Plumbing and Heating of St. Joseph had bid $11,600 on the job, school officials said.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Swings Upward

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today, supported by signs of a continuing decline in interest rates.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a fraction, and gainers moved out to a 4-3 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

The government reported after Monday's close that yields on 13-week Treasury bills had fallen to 5.279 per cent from 5.602 at the previous sale.

And brokers noted persisting speculation on Wall Street that the Federal Reserve would soon lower its discount rate — the rate it charges on loans to its member commercial banks — from the present 6 per cent to 5 1/2%.

Today's early prices included Borden, unchanged at 28; Household Finance, up 1/4 at 16; Deere & Co., ahead 3/4 to 49 3/4; and Bethlehem Steel, down 3/4 at 30 1/4.

In Monday's narrow decline the Dow Jones industrial average lost .32 to 835.48.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 6-5 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index dipped .01 to 47.23.

Big Board volume was a moderate 14.91 million shares. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .29 to 83.63.

Franco Has Congestion In Lungs

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco has developed lung complications and medical sources said the symptoms could indicate the onset of bronchial pneumonia.

Information Minister Leon Herrera, reading to newsmen today the latest medical bulletin from the 82-year-old leader's doctors, reported that Franco had developed a lung edema and small congestive spots in his lungs four days after a major abdominal operation.

The new lung complications came only hours after doctors reported that they had stopped the general's artificial breathing apparatus because difficulties in his breathing had eased.

NY Denies Owing Back Drug Bills

NEW YORK (AP) — City officials have denied allegations that New York owes pharmacy owners $5 million for filling Medicaid prescriptions. The pharmacists had said they would refuse to fill new prescriptions until they are paid for bills up to two years old.

Anthony Vaccarello, executive assistant to Mayor Abraham D. Beame, said, "The oldest unpaid invoice is just a few months old."

MOON POWER

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly half of the capacity of U.S. power plants sits idle through the night "while we worry about future power cutbacks during the day," according to William G. Kuhns, chairman of General Public Utilities Corp.

Rhodesia Under Pressure

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rhodesia's white rulers completed a decade of independence today, but Prime Minister Ian Smith faces a troubled year as pressure mounts for black majority rule. The 274,000 whites who hold power over 5.4 million Africans face the prospect of an escalated guerrilla war with black nationalists, increasing pressure from South Africa to seek a political settlement with African leaders and critical economic woes. Smith, rejecting British demands for majority rule, unilaterally declared the independence of the British colony on Nov. 11, 1965.

COVERT — The Covert school board voted last night to turn over to the Van Buren county prosecutor's office a $300 bill for equipment allegedly picked up by a former school board member but never delivered to the school.

Harry Sarno, the former school board member who admits that he picked up a central vacuuming system from a Stevensville firm, said there was a good reason why it was not delivered to the school.

The equipment, he said, was authorized by the township board for, and has been installed in, the township fire department hall.

He said it was never meant for the school.

He said the firm "made an honest mistake" in sending the bill to the Covert school district instead of the township board.

The bill came from the Glenford Home center in Stevensville.

Sarno, who had served on the school board until July, said the board could have cleared up any questions by "making a simple telephone call to me."

Sarno has served on the volunteer fire department for about 35 years. He said he charged the department nothing for labor in installing the central vacuum system.

Supt. William Randall, contacted at his home after the meeting, said the board's attorney advised them to "remain aloof" from any investigation of the Oct. 6 bill and to turn the matter over to the county prosecutor.

In other areas last night, the board voted to purchase a new elementary school heating boiler.

The $8,244 contract for the new system, and for tearing out the present unit, went to Bosch Plumbing of Grand Rapids.

Twin Cities Plumbing and Heating of St. Joseph had bid $11,680 on the job, school officials said.

SHAW RESIGNS

Fennville Board Has New Member

FENNVILLE — The Fennville school board accepted the resignation last night of board member Ralph Shaw and appointed Mrs. John (Karen) Schermer to the vacancy, according to Supt. James Tackmann.

Shaw said in his resignation he was seeking employment elsewhere and will soon be leaving the district. Elected in 1973, Shaw has served just over two years of a four-year term, Tackmann said.

Mrs. Schermer was an unsuccessful candidate for the board last June, Tackmann said. She will serve until June, 1976, the next school board election date.

In other areas, the board signed a settlement with a former teacher under which the board has agreed to retire him for the next teaching vacancy.

Tackmann said Patrick Price, a secondary social studies teacher, agreed to the settlement and will withdraw his complaint filed with the state teacher tenure commission.

Tackmann said the case stemmed from Price's decision in 1972 to attend college in Colorado. He requested a leave of absence, but the board did not grant it. The teacher left the school district, and when he returned, sought to be rehired on grounds his leave of absence should have been approved, said Tackmann.

Tackmann told board members that if Gov. William Milliken's proposal to cut $47.5 million in state aid to local schools is passed, Fennville will lose about $80,000. The cuts will hit hardest in the community education classes which are heavily funded by state aid, Tackmann said.

The board agreed to seek bids on four new school buses to replace four which are now seven years old and must be replaced Tackmann said.

NEW EFFORTS to aid poor nations are proposed by Iran. Interior Minister Gamshid Anoushegar in the U.N. General Assembly called for a multi-billion-dollar special aid fund financed by both the oil-producing and industrialized countries.

No Oil Price
Hike Seen Soon

LONDON (AP) — Crude oil prices will not go up before the end of next year and some have come down recently, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said today in an interview in the Daily Telegraph.

Yamani said only a "miraculous recovery in Western economies" and a sharp increase in demands for oil would justify even a slight increase in prices next June, when the 15 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are to meet to discuss prices.

Eau Claire Board Raises
Non-Resident Tuition Rate

EAU CLAIRE — Eau Claire school board last night established higher tuition rates for non-residents students this year, according to Donald McAlvey, board recording secretary.

Tuition rates for secondary students, grades six through 12, was set at $240 per year, an increase of $40. Tuition rates for elementary students was set at $150 per year, an increase of

In other areas, the board denied a request from the Israelite Baptist church of Benton Harbor, to use the middle school gymnasium for a basketball league. School policy does not allow groups from outside the school district to use school facilities on a regular basis, McAlvey said.

VAN BUREN COURT

Two Ask Hearings
On Weapon Charges

PAW PAW — Two Detroit men, Henry Green, 18, and Craig Kinnetz, 28, demanded preliminary examination on charges of carrying a concealed weapon when arraigned yesterday in Van Buren Seventh district court.

The two were arrested by state police near Lawrence Sunday after troopers stopped a car for a traffic violation. A search of the vehicle produced a .32-caliber pistol, according to police.

Kinnetz was ordered held on $500 bond pending a Nov. 18 hearing, and Green was released on his own recognizance pending a Nov. 25 hearing.

In other cases, Billy Sikes, 17, Bangor, was placed on pre-sentence investigation after pleading guilty to a reduced charge of larceny. He had originally been charged with unlawful use of a motor vehicle in connection with the theft of a tractor from Shafer Orchards, Bangor, in October.

Michael P. Kniffen, 26, Romulus, pleaded guilty to an amended charge of failure to present a firearm for inspection and was fined $80 by Judge William C. Buhl.

Kniffen had originally been charged with carrying a concealed weapon, a revolver, in Lawrence township on Nov. 8, 1974.

Berrien Still Lags
In Blood Donations

Blood donations for for Berrien county are still running behind schedule if a goal of 6,000 pints for the year is to be reached, according to statistics recently released by the Berrien County Red Cross.

The county has been averaging about 476 pints per month. To reach 6,000 by June 30 of next year (a collection year is from July 1 - June 30) an average of 512 pints per month will be needed for the remaining eight months.

587 pints of blood were collected in the county in October bringing the total to 1,904 pints, leaving 4,096 pints to be collected.

The Berrien Red Cross is on probation in the regional blood donation program because Berrien failed to meet its quota of 6,000 pints each of the last two years.

The following amounts of blood were collected in blood draws last month, according to Berrien Red Cross statistics:

—153 pints at Auto Specialties, St. Joseph.

—134 pints at St. John's Church of Christ, Niles.

—100 pints at Methodist Peace Temple, Benton Harbor.

—120 at the American Legion hall, Bridgman.

Blood draws coming up in November are: Congregational church, St. Joseph, on Nov. 18 from noon to 6 p.m. and at Andrews university, Berrien Springs, on Nov. 19 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Barbara Jo Price, blood coordinator for the Berrien Red Cross, said nine people have been added to the blood donor honor roll for those who have donated a gallon or more.

The are: Eileen Bradford, David Wetmore, Una Shankland, Robert Villeneuve, Mary Lou Bergman, all of Niles; Harry R. Smith, Wanda Slowik, Walter Slowik, all of Benton Harbor and Nell Bement, Bridgman.

Smith is a photographer with this newspaper. The Red Cross blood program supplies the blood needs of Berrien residents at no cost for the blood itself.

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — An Adrian College student has been charged in connection with a power failure that caused an estimated $2,000 damage at the college Oct. 30, according to police.

Authorities said Robert Keyes, 18, of Madison Heights, was arraigned Monday and charged with malicious destruction of a building.

Prince To Keep Falling
In Love

LONDON (AP) — "I have fallen in love with all sorts of girls and I fully intend to go on doing so," says Prince Charles in an interview published today.

The heir to the British throne, who will be 27 on Friday, told Douglas Keay of the weekly magazine Woman's Own he has decided 30 is the right age for him to think of getting married.

By then, he said, "you have seen a great deal of life, met a large number of girls, been able to see what types of girls there are, fallen in love every now and then — and you know what it's all about."

"I think one has got to be aware of the fact that falling madly in love with someone is not necessarily the starting point to getting married."

Marriage is "essentially a question of mutual love and respect for each other," he continued. "Creating a secure family unit in which to bring up children, to give them a happy, secure upbringing — that is what marriage is all about, creating a home."

"I am very lucky because I have very wise and incredibly sensible parents who have created a marvellous, secure, happy home."

NEW EFFORTS to aid poor nations are proposed by Iran. Interior Minister Gamsid Anouzezar in the U.N. General Assembly called for a multi-billion-dollar special aid fund financed by both the oil-producing and industrialized countries.

No Oil Price Hike Seen Soon

LONDON (AP) — Crude oil prices will not go up before the end of next year and some have come down recently, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamini said today in an interview in the Daily Telegraph.

Yamini said only a "miraculous recovery in Western economies" and a sharp increase in demands for oil would justify even a slight increase in prices next June, when the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are to meet to discuss prices.

Eau Claire Board Raises Non-Resident Tuition Rate

EAU CLAIRE — Eau Claire school board last night established higher tuition rates for non-residents students this year, according to Donald McAlvey, board recording secretary.

Tuition rates for secondary students, grades six through 12, was set at $240 per year, an increase of $40. Tuition rates for elementary students was set at $150 per year, an increase of $25, said McAlvey, the district's former superintendent who retired last year.

In other areas, the board denied a request from the Israelite Baptist church of Benton Harbor, to use the middle school gymnasium for a basketball league. School policy does not allow groups from outside the school district to use school facilities on a regular basis, McAlvey said.

VAN BUREN COURT

Two Ask Hearings On Weapon Charges

PAW PAW — Two Detroit men, Henry Green, 19, and Craig Kinnetz, 28, demanded preliminary examination on charges of carrying a concealed weapon when arraigned yesterday in Van Buren Seventh district court.

The two were arrested by state police near Lawrence Sunday after troopers stopped a car for a traffic violation. A search of the vehicle produced a .32-caliber pistol, according to police.

Kinnetz was ordered held on $500 bond pending a Nov. 18 hearing, and Green was released on his own recognizance pending a Nov. 25 hearing.

In other cases, Billy Sikes, 17, Bangor, was placed on pre-sentence investigation after pleading guilty to a reduced charge of larceny. He had originally been charged with unlawful use of a motor vehicle in connection with the theft of a tractor from Shafer Orchards, Bangor, in October.

Michael P. Kniffen, 26, Romulus, pleaded guilty to an amended charge of failure to present a firearm for inspection and was fined $90 by Judge William C. Buhl.

Kniffen had originally been charged with carrying a concealed weapon, a revolver, in Lawrence township on Nov. 8, 1974.

Bangor Youth Sentenced For Probation Violation

PAW PAW — Timothy A. Bard, 18, Bangor, was sentenced yesterday in Van Buren circuit court to serve four months in the county jail as a result of his guilty plea to a charge of probation violation.

Bard had been placed on two years' probation Aug. 19, 1974 after pleading guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the Village Carpet store, Bangor, during May, 1974.

The sentence was handed down by Judge David Anderson, Jr.

Three Minor Blazes Doused In Benton

Benton township firemen extinguished three small fires Monday, all of which caused only minor damage, firemen reported. A fire in a wastepaper basket in the apartment of William Caldwell, 266 Pine street, was put out about 12:45 p.m. Firemen said cause of the fire, which was confined to the basket, was undetermined.

Another trash fire, in a large container located outside 1216 Blossom lane, was extinguished about 7:45 p.m. Firemen reported damage was confined to the container and said it appeared to have been deliberately set.

Firemen blamed a short in an electrical box for a fire at the home of Ethel Brown, 927 Wauconda avenue, about 3:30 p.m. Fire was confined to the box located in the basement of the home, firemen indicated.

The following amounts of blood were collected in blood draws last month, according to Berrien Red Cross statistics.

—153 pints at Auto Specialties, St. Joseph.

—134 pints at St. John's Church of Christ, Niles.

—100 pints at Methodist Peace Temple, Benton Harbor.

—120 at the American Legion hall, Bridgman.

Blood draws coming up in November are: Congregational church, St. Joseph, on Nov. 18 from noon to 6 p.m. and at Andrews university, Berrien Springs, on Nov. 19 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Barbara Jo Price, blood coordinator for the Berrien Red Cross, said nine people have been added to the blood donor honor roll for those who have donated a gallon or more.

The are: Eileen Bradford, David Wetmore, Una Shankland, Robert Villeneuve, Mary Lou Bergman, all of Niles; Harry R. Smith, Wanda Slowik, Walter Slowik, all of Benton Harbor and Neil Bement, Bridgman.

Smith is a photographer with this newspaper. The Red Cross blood program supplies the blood needs of Berrien residents at no cost for the blood itself.

Adrian Student Is Arraigned

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — An Adrian College student has been charged in connection with a power failure that caused an estimated $2,000 damage at the college Oct. 30, according to police.

Authorities said Robert Keyes, 19, of Madison Heights, was arraigned Monday and charged with malicious destruction of a building.

Prince To Keep Falling In Love

LONDON (AP) — "I have fallen in love with all sorts of girls and I fully intend to go on doing so," says Prince Charles in an interview published today.

The heir to the British throne, who will be 27 on Friday, told Douglas Keay of the weekly magazine Woman's Own he has decided 30 is the right age for him to think of getting married.

By then, he said, "you have seen a great deal of life, met a large number of girls, been able to see what types of girls there are, fallen in love every now and then — and you know what it's all about."

"I think one has got to be aware of the fact that falling madly in love with someone is not necessarily the starting point to getting married."

Marriage is "essentially a question of mutual love and respect for each other," he continued. "Creating a secure family unit in which to bring up children, to give them a happy, secure upbringing — that is what marriage is all about, creating a home."

"I am very lucky because I have very wise and incredibly sensible parents who have created a marvellous, secure, happy home."

In other cases, Susie Mae Gant, 40, route 5, South Haven, pleaded innocent to a charge of felonious assault. She is accused of pointing a pistol at Elisha Fitzgerald, South Haven, Sept. 29 in South Haven.

Kenneth Johnson, 24, M-140, Covert, pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of heroin Sept. 18 in South Haven.

Phillip C. Hegwood, 18, Kalamazoo, pleaded innocent to a charge of attempted armed robbery. The charge, according to Covert police, grew out of a complaint by Mrs. Jane Burton, Covert, that two men armed with a shotgun attempted to rob her at her home Sept. 24.

The pair were frightened off by her husband, police said. A juvenile has also been arrested in connection with the case.

Joel C. Housner, 18, Gobles, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted larceny in a building in connection with the Sept. 18 theft of eight rifles from the Coast-to-Coast store, Paw Paw.

Tom Englehart, 20, Paw Paw, pleaded innocent to a charge of concealing stolen property in connection with the same case.

'Woman Alive!' Episode Tonight Lacking 'Focus'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Woman Alive!" is a new public TV series transmitted Tuesday nights by the public Broadcasting Service. Its aim is to "illustrate what defines the women's movement, who is affected by it and how."

A tall order, but Ronnie Eldridge, executive producer of the WNET series here, is trying to fill it on a $550,000 budget for 10 half-hour programs.

Unfortunately, the series' good intent comes to naught in its fourth edition tonight. The show contains:

—Three tunes, one a funny jab at the idea that women need men to get by, all performed by Malvina Reynolds, a 75-year-old singer and composer primarily known in folk music circles.

—A documentary about three teen-aged Minnesota girls.

—A brief commentary by historian Judith Papachristou, who sharply disagrees with those who feel the women's movement is a passing fad that began in the 1960s and now is running out of steam.

Tonight's effort doesn't hack it because its major segment, the documentary called "Between Times," is so bereft of focus and impact it seems little more than aimless filming and wishful editing.

It follows its three subjects, all from an unidentified Minneapolis suburb, as they work, play and muse about their lives in the week prior to the start of their senior year in high school.

That they're close friends is clear. That they're practicing for another year as cheerleaders also is clear. But that's it.

We hear their observations on matters ranging from why one became a cheerleader to another's admission she didn't realize a lot of her classmates were on the pill.

But there's precious little about what they want to do with their lives, and nothing about how they think the women's movement affects them.

Granted, one show does not a series make. And coming programs on how men are responding to changes brought on by the women's movement or the parallels between racism and sexism, to list two topics, may be much better.

Still, public affairs programs about women are so rare you can count them with one hand. And it'd be nice if each "Woman Alive" program could stand as a reason for the additional funding for the series WNET now is seeking.

But tonight's show doesn't. I only hope it's atypical.

Last week, ABC aired "The Rowan and Martin Report," in which the stars of the old "Laugh-In" series satirized the latest news reports for 30 minutes. The show may become a regular series in January.

What with its realistic-looking anchorman's set, its joshing and its reporter who actually is seen across the street from the White House, "The Rowan and Martin Report" is a frightening prospect for TV.

METAL MAN? Robot swallows man would be an unusual story, but in this case it's not plot but camera angle. Mechanical monster is actually a gas turbine auxiliary unit for Boeing 747. George Heltzel checks it out at Phoenix, Ariz., plant of Garrett Corp.

But tonight's show doesn't. I only hope it's atypical.

Last week, ABC aired "The Rowan and Martin Report," in which the stars of the old "Laugh-In" series satirized the latest news reports for 30 minutes. The show may become a regular series in January.

What with its realistic-looking anchorman's set, its joshing and its reporter who actually is seen across the street from the White House, "The Rowan and Martin Report" is a frightening prospect for TV.

People might mistake it for a local nightly news program.

ONE PSYCHIATRIST says to lead a happier life, just be sure to take your time. . . Don't try to get everything done at once. . . According to statisticians the average man is 5'9" and has a life expectancy of 68 years. The average woman is 5'3" and can expect to live at least 2 years longer. . . Sagittarians are inclined to be overactive and have too many irons in the fire. . . A British magazine says that marriage vows should be altered to include a pledge by husbands to do their share of housework and child-minding. . . Our Confusing Language: college, knowledge, porridge and you, ewe, yew, view, woo and queue. . . Fading Items: gym bloomers, candy dots on paper strips, movie serials, ether for anesthesia, theater dish nights, feather fans, cigar store Indians and rice powder for Milady. . . A Yale University researcher says as a woman grows older, her dreams tend to turn inward, and the cast of characters seems to be all relatives. . . If your hangup is al-gophobia, you're no different from the rest of us. It's a fear of pain!

FAMOUS LAST WORDS: "Just wear whatever you want to the party. I'm sure none of the other guests will dress up."

Breck ("Bottoms Up '75") Wall says a good cold preventer during fuel shortage days is an ounce of vodka and a half glass of hot clam juice complete with two or three cloves. . . Over-worked Phrase: "Let it all hang out." . . Beauty Hint from agent Merrily Kane: "Give your skin an autumn treatment by rubbing oil or cream into your skin with firm circular movements. Then slip into warm bath and soak for a few minutes before washing with a gentle beauty soap." . . Bar-Snooping at the Gaslight Club: For your next after-dinner drink, try cognac European style, with a lump of sugar in it. . . It is claimed that the Japanese read more books than the people of any other country in the world. . . Best-Dressed Couple of the Week: The Henry Fondas. . . Overheard at the North Hollywood Tail O' the Cock: "Money isn't everything! — today it isn't even anything!"
